Corn grower Harry Johnston, McConnellsburg, holds onto "Barley," who quickly learns that the truck can take him much further over Back Run Farm than his 3-month-old legs can. Johnston was the first-place winner in the three-year average division of the 2001 Pennsylvania Five-Acre Corn Club Contest. Fish Farmer Explores Ways To Market

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU

BOYERTOWN (Berks Co.) — Farmers by definition are entrepreneurs — they have to think about the market. I have a great location here. I have the capacity to hold the fish. I'm near millions of people and hundreds of restaurants.

"I had to think about what are my strengths and what I could do better or best compared to my competitors," said Mark Scott, Berks County Commissioner and part-time fish farmer of Mark C. Scott Aquaculture Corporation.

I started with the customer and worked my way back to the farm. What the farm does is what the customer wants not what I want to do.

Scott explained the progress of the farm which has been in his family since 1949.

Scott's grandfather, Erwin Michelfelder as a boy in southern Germany used to catch and keep fish in water of the family's mill then sell the fish to passersby.

When Michelfelder came to the U.S. he always dreamed of raising trout, said Scott so after working in the deli meat business Michelfelder found the farm he was looking for complete with its own spring. In 1949 Michelfelder purchased the farm and opened for business in 1951.

He sold the fish to sportsmans clubs, private landowners and restaurants including the Blue Bell Inn which Scott has continued to supply with fish since Michelfelder began selling to the inn in 1959.

After building the raceways and hatching areas for the fish Michelfelder continued in the business learning as he went until he had a stroke in 1981.

At the time Scott was a lawyer in Reading but decided to take a break from practicing law to move to Boyertown and begin work on the Annual Ice Cream Short Course Serves Up Flavorful Instruction

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Students at Penn State's annual Ice Cream Short Course, conducted Jan. 6-16, quickly found that the course was no soft serve.

They received two thick binders which became their textbooks, did homework, attended lab exercises, completed a final examination, and listened to lectures covering ice cream composition, stabilizers and emulsifiers, rapid hardening systems, nutritional issues, and microbiology.

The extensive work however, did not deter the 92 students who came to Penn State from as far away as Brazil and Jamaica, along with students from all over the U.S.

Ice-cream producing companies sent representatives for training, or individuals with an interest in beginning their own ice cream business attended the course, which is conducted every year.

Michael Popovitch, elected president of the class, works for Dean Foods, Toledo, Ohio, and is a production supervisor for Frostbite Brands, producers of ice cream novelties for numerous companies.

Although Popovitch has been working in the industry for five years, he found the formulation aspect helpful, he said.

Homework — several lengthy problems — included formulas for standardizing mixes.

Christine Law, an executive pastry chef for Postrio Restaurant, San Francisco, attended the course to gather information before she begins her own business.

Sid Osöfsky, Ronnybrook Farm Dairy, Ancramdale, N.Y., and his family operate a dairy 100 miles north of New York City. The family milks 80 cows and produces and sells milk, butter, heavy cream, cheese, yogurt, and yogurt drinks.

They decided to process and sell their own milk in 1991 and began ice cream production in 1996.

Temple Grandin To Speak At Pork Expo

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.)—The 25th annual Keystone Pork Expo will be combined with an Animal Handling Conference on Feb. 4 at the Harrisburg/Hershey Holiday Inn in Grantville. This joint meeting for dairy, poultry, beef and swine producers is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Pork Council and Penn Ag Industries.

The highlight of the conference is the keynote speaker, Dr. Temple Grandin. Grandin is a designer of livestock handling facilities and an assistant professor of animal science at Colorado State University. She teaches courses on the livestock industry, livestock handling, and animal welfare. She has appeared on 20/20, 48 Hours, Larry King Live, and has been featured in People Magazine, The New York Times, Forbes, and U.S. News & World Report. She has authored more than 300 articles in scientific journals and livestock periodicals on animal handling, welfare, and facility design.

Christine Kellett, director of Penn State/Dickinson Ag Law Center, will speak on the laws regulating animal welfare. There

At Convention, Kerrs Receive Virginia Distinguished Dairy Award

STAUNTON, Va. — For the first time, a husband and wife team was honored by dairy producers at the recent 96th Virginia State Dairymen Association's annual convention.

The Virginia Distinguished Dairyman Award presentation went to Jimmy and Donna Kerr from Ameva Farm in Amelia County.

Award presenter W. Ray Murley, professor emeritus, Virginia Tech, said, "It is always a pleasure and an honor for me to present the Distinguished Dairyman Award winner selected from among your fellow dairymen by the committee. This year, for the first time, they chose a man-and-wife team for the award."

The honor adds to several others the Kerrs have collected over the years, such as the W. M. Etgen Alumnus Award, Outstanding Young Farmers Award by the Virginia Jaycees, and the Outstanding Young Conservation Award.

In 1982, Jimmy and Donna each were graduated from the Dairy Science Department of Virginia Tech.

They then returned to the second generation dairy farm operated by Jimmy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kerr.

The Kerrs milk some 160 head of registered Holsteins and run a herd average of 23,300 pounds of milk, 3.7 percent fat, and 3.1 percent protein. Somatic cell count is 220,000.

Some 200 acres of Ameva Farm's land is reserved for the corn they grow to produce sufficient silage. On 75 acres of alfalfa they harvest hay. Some 50 acres support other hay crops and 20 acres are used as pastureland.

The Kerrs employ environmental practices at Ameva Farm that include a rotational loafing lot management system with travel lanes. They are implementing the CREP program with cattle fenced out of streams, waterers in lots, and trees planted in an adjacent stream area.

By introducing very few new cattle to the herd and by a complete vaccinating program on a regular and routine basis, the health of their herd is protected.

Jimmy has held the office of president in both local DHIA and the Atlantic Holstein Club. He is secretary for the board of directors in the Cooperative Milk Producers Association and chairman of the field days for the State Holstein Association. He has twice been a delegate to the National Holstein Association and serves as adviser to the local 4-H club.

Compared to Thursday, slaughter steers sold fully .50-1.00 lower. Monday's supply included a heavy supply of over-fed cattle that weighed well over 1500 lbs. Tuesday's run included some heavies as well, but most weighed over 1500 lbs because of their fill. Bidding remains moderate to firm on all grades, as there seems to be an outlet for them all. The February live cattle contract at the CME has slipped back into the 79.00 category, although even at that level it remains supportive. Boxed beef cutout values indicate that the current market may have reached its peak for the time being, as the cutout was 1.00 to nearly 2.00 lower on Monday. A light, but fancy, test of Holstein steers sold steady to firm. There were not enough slaughter heifers on hand to test the market. Slaughter cows continue to trade very well, as prices trended steady to 1.00 higher. The recent increase in the cow market began on Thursday of last week, and since then buyers continue to throw gas on it. Slaughter bulls are being supported in part due to the hot cow market, and a light test trended with a firmer undertone. The supply included 52 percent steers, 6 percent heifers, 40 percent cows, 1 percent bulls, with the balance feeders.

Note: There will be a special feeder sale after Monday's fat cattle auction on February 3rd.

Compared to Tuesday, slaughter steers sold fully 50-1.00 higher Bidding and buyer activity were both active for a good portion of the run The quality of the run was very good, which also had a big role in the higher market The February live cattle contract at the CMF closed up-the-limit on Wednesday which was very farmer supportive, and by the end of the sale Thursday the contract had closed at over 82 00, which is extremely bullish This is a major adjustment as we head into February in a couple of days. This puts the winter contract back at a 2 00 premium to the Western fat cattle market, which was moving steers from 79.00-80.00 as of Thursday night The only thing that is not on the fast track right now is boxed beef, which has been inching lower all week A nice supply of Holstein steers sold steady to 1 00 higher Slaughter heifers sold with a higher undertone, although they were not well tested due to Tuesday's thin run Slaughter cows continue to trade higher, as prices were another 1 00-2.00 higher; with a few fleshier cows as much as 3.00 higher Keep in mind, that it is even more impressive that buyers had nearly 700 head to choose from, and prices were still greatly improved Slaughter bulls sold firm to 2 00 higher in continued active trading The supply included 34 percent steers, 6 percent heifers, 47 percent cows, 5 percent bulls, with the balance feeders.

New Holland Feeder Pig Auction

NEW HOLLAND, PA
January 29, 2003
Report Supplied By USDA

Receipts: 275 Last Week: 460 Year Ago: 724. Compared to last week, a firmer undertone was noted on most weights of slaughter pigs. A good test of U.S. 1-2 30-37 lb pigs sold 5.00-15.00 higher, with a real fancy 34 lb package trading sharply higher in very active bidding. Bidding was moderate to good on all other classes, as buyer attendance was a little lighter than normal. A snowstorm that laid down a fresh 1-3 inches of new snow moved into the county Wednesday morning, and hampered receipts somewhat. Nearly 100 percent of the run went to slaughter. All pigs were weighed and graded on arrival and sold by the hundred weights.

HEAD WEIGHT PRICE Slaughter U.S. 1-2 4 16 lbs 105.00; 27 21 lbs 145.00 8 25 lbs 75.00; 42 30-37 lbs 150.00-175.00, fancy package 275.00; 4 43 lbs 135.00; 2 47 lbs 60.00; 8 61 lbs 35.00; 3 138 lbs 35.00; U.S. 2 4 17 lbs 75.00; 22 22-28 lbs 100.00-140.00; 2 38 lbs 62.00; 4 50 lbs 150.00; 4 52 lbs 45.00; 12 64 lbs 90.00; 3 75 lbs 42.00; 4 115 lbs 35.00.

National Broiler Market At A Glance
Atlanta, Ga.
January 29, 2003
Report Supplied By USDA

Trade sentiment was fully steady to firm in the West, no better than steady to barely steady in the Northeast, steady in remaining areas. Retail demand ranged slow to good, best where features were in progress and in anticipation of first-of-the-month needs. Food service was light to fairly good, best into fast food areas with ads. Supplies were usually sufficient for trade needs. In the parts structure, breast items were in good balance to tight and continued to trade at premium levels. Wings were increasing in availability and dark meat was mixed, however clearing well. In production areas, live supplies were moderate at weights in a full range.

National Egg Market At A Glance
Atlanta, Ga.
January 29, 2003
Report Supplied By USDA

In Chicago, prices were unchanged. Prices in New York were 2 cents lower on medium and 1 cent lower on the larger sizes. Elsewhere, prices were unchanged, but were trending lower on all weights. The market tone was barely steady to weak. Demand was slow to moderate, slightly better where features were planned or in progress. Supplies of all sizes were adequate to available. Breaking stock demand was light to moderate for sufficient to closely balanced offerings. Light type fowl were fully adequate for normal slaughter schedules.

New York Broilers/Fryers

ATLANTA, GA.
Report Supplied By USDA

Trucklot buying interest on ready-to-cook whole broiler/fryers was mostly fair as dealers were cautious and selective, and kept orders limited to normal commitments. Offerings of all sizes were generally sufficient for most immediate needs. Movement through retail and distributive channels was lackluster. The market tone was about steady.

Virginia Broilers And Fryers

Harrisonburg, Va.
Report Supplied By USDA

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was moderate and clearing the market at a reasonable rate. Demand was moderate with buyer interest and trading. Live supplies were moderate for the market being reported with an estimated slaughter of 1,093,000 compared to 1,322,000 last Tuesday. Weights were desirable. Processing schedules were moderate. Supply of bone-in breast was moderate for the market being reported while the demand was very good and rapidly absorbed.

Negotiated F.O.B. dock prices, 2 pounds and heavier ice-packed broilers and fryers, trucklot sales of US Grade A or equivalent were lower at .55 - .65 per pound; less than trucklot sales .54 - .69 per pound.

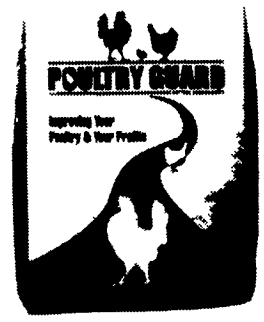
POULTRY GUARD™
LITTER AMENDMENT
New Poultry Guard™ Litter Amendment is a unique activated clay that delivers consistent ammonia control without the handling inconvenience associated with other poultry litter treatments.
Unlike these other treatments, Poultry Guard Litter Amendment is easy and convenient to apply and needs no incorporation or activation. Fewer application variables mean more consistent performance. In addition, Poultry Guard can be applied up to five days before bird set, whenever it's convenient for the grower



Using Poultry Guard Litter Amendment Is As Simple As...
Apply
Simply spread over poultry litter.
• No incorporation
• No moisture activation
• No complicated instructions for heating and ventilation in conjunction with application
Bird Set
Poultry Guard can be applied when it's most convenient, up to five days before bird set.
• No application timing headaches between clean out and bird set
• No last minute application after equipment has been lowered
Control Ammonia
Poultry Guard will deliver immediate and long-term ammonia control and give birds a healthier growing environment.
• No more dangerously high levels of ammonia to stunt growth
You be the judge! We are confident this litter amendment will improve your poultry and your profits.

The Big Dutchman Univent Layer Cage System is the first choice of profitable poultry producers. More than 90,000,000 birds are housed in Big Dutchman battery belt cage systems worldwide.

Efficient manure removal
Manure begins to dry on collection belts and is easily removed from the house.

Univent provides easy access and bird comfort
Doors slide horizontally across the full width of the cage, providing easy bird management.

Wire partitions assure improved air flow and bird comfort, helping birds achieve peak egg performance.

Manufactured of proven Galfan® wire
Galfan wire is coated with a combination alloy of aluminum and zinc, providing up to three times longer life than heavy galvanized wire.

The ultimate feeding system

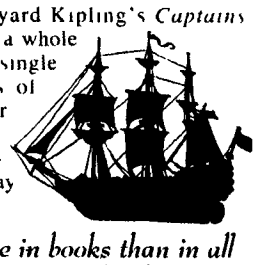
The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

FEBRUARY 3-9, 2003

MOON ON THE EQUATOR, FEB. 5

SHIP REPAIRS IN ORDER

According to the ancients, the 4th of February is considered an auspicious day for the repair of ships. If you haven't got a wooden ship to repair, you can read about them instead. Some classics include Robert Louis Stevenson's Treasure Island, Jack London's The Sea Wolf and Rudyard Kipling's Captains Courageous. If you want a whole string of sea yarns by a single author, read the novels of Patrick O'Brian. But reader beware! Once you get hooked on O'Brian's seafaring adventures, you may never surface for air!



There is more treasure in books than in all the pirate's loot on Treasure Island.

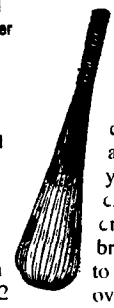
–Walt Disney, film producer (1901–1966)

TIP OF THE WEEK

Always keep a book with you in the car in case of unplanned delays.

CREAMED CRAB

- 4 ounces cream cheese, softened
- 1/2 cup cream, divided
- 1 1/2 tablespoons butter
- 2 teaspoons flour
- 3/4 cup milk
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- pinch of cayenne
- 1 pound flaked cooked crabmeat (fresh or frozen)
- 2 large egg yolks



Blend the cream cheese with 2 tablespoons of the cream. Set aside. Melt butter and stir in flour, then slowly stir in milk. Cook over low heat, stirring until thick, remove from heat. Add seasonings, cream cheese mixture, and crabmeat. Beat egg yolks with remaining cream, and mix with the crabmeat mixture. Heat briefly, but do not allow to boil. Serve immediately over rice or toast.

Makes 4 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

Hawks flying high means a clear sky; when they fly low, prepare for a blow.

A winter's fog will freeze a dog.

Make every day special with the all new and improved 2003 Old Farmer's Almanac. To order or subscribe, call 800-895-9265, ext. 220, or visit our Web site www.almanac.com/go/WUF0302A

OPINION

Our Northern Readers

The State of New York Department of Agriculture and Markets wrote in a letter to friends, dated Sept. 5 last year, about how viable New York agriculture has become over the past decade and its growth to come in the next 10 years.

For years, just like that quote from Sam Clemens (Mark Twain) about stories of his demise being greatly exaggerated, so, too, New York continues to prosper despite the stories you often hear about distance to markets, unsuitable growing conditions, etc.

In fact, ag is a $3.4 billion industry in the state, ranking in the top 10 nationally in commodities. New York ranks third in the nation in milk production and corn silage production, according to Nathan L. Rudgers, commissioner.

The state ranks six in the nation for fruits and vegetables.

"I am proud to say that we have some of the most progressive, hard-working producers in the country — producers who are focused on leading our food and agricultural industry into an era of long-term profitability," Rudgers wrote.

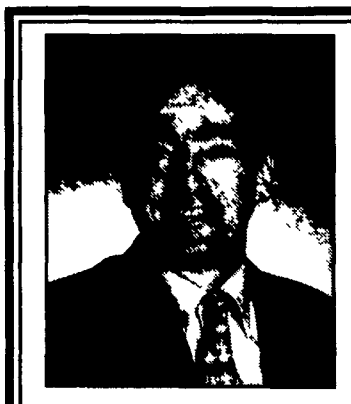
A state survey recently noted that the vast majority of dairy farms in New York are planning not to simply maintain their operations over the next 10 years, but to grow them.

During a recent farmers meeting, state representatives handed out brochures for some of the most notable, fertile regions in New York, including Lewis County, Jefferson County, Oneida County, and St. Lawrence County.

One thing we found surprising: did you know that more than 50 percent of the consumer wealth and population of the U.S. and Canada from New York is within a day's drive? The state is home to Cornell and other excellent colleges and universities that provide a lot of information you read about farming in your family farm newspaper.

Gov. George E. Pataki and Commissioner Rudgers should be commended for a plan and a method to re-inform the mythmakers about living — and making a viable farm life — in New York.

Our readers stretch from North Carolina north to Canada. So we welcome views about regions other than our traditional (but much beloved) southeast Pennsylvania in our paper.



Now Is The Time

To Prune The Shrubs In Your Yard

Most gardeners generally consider this the time of year to enjoy gardening through the stack of seed and nursery catalogs that seem to arrive daily. Snowflakes blowing by the window definitely do not put one in the mood for much outdoor work.

However, Tim Elkner, Lancaster County horticultural agent, reminds us there is some plant "maintenance" that should be done during this time of year that will help keep your shrubs in top shape later in the growing season. We almost always have a brief warm spell sometime during the winter and you should be ready to use the more "temperate" weather to start the gardening year.

Elkner points out late winter is the traditional time to prune the shrubs in your yard. The absence of leaves makes the framework or branching structure of these plants easier to see. It also will make damaged or diseased shoots and branches easier to spot.

Start by removing any crossing and rubbing shoots. Then remove the diseased and damaged branches as well. Finally, cut out any other branches that need to be removed to improve the form of the plant.

It would be helpful to consult a good book on pruning before you start this process if you do not have much experience in this area. Different types of shrubs require different amounts and methods of pruning and a good book will let you know what is best for the plants in your yard.

Remember to prune spring-flowering shrubs after they bloom in the spring or else you might be removing many of the flowers. You should always remove damaged or diseased branches whenever you see them, even if the plant flowers early. There is no reason to give the disease a greater chance to spread throughout your shrub!

You can also do some light pruning on your spring-flowering shrubs if you want to force some flowers for an early spring inside your home. But save the major pruning cuts until just after flowering.

Summer-flowering shrubs should be pruned now. These plants form their flowers on new growth, so you will not be removing potential flowers when you cut out branches now. Some evergreens can be pruned now but others should not, especially those that flower in the spring such as rhododendron. Again, consult a good reference book regarding the proper time to prune your evergreens.

Pruning evergreens can also be a little tricky if you remove too much wood. On some types of shrubs, they will not be able start new shoots on the remaining wood and you may be left with a "hole" in part of the plant. This is another good reason to consult a reference on pruning!

Another task you should complete now is an annual "inspection" of all of the plants in your yard. Some insect infestations that you may not have noticed last year may be easily visible now. Choose a sunny, warm winter day to closely examine your shrubs for pests and enjoy a little time outdoors.

Gardening is a year-round hobby. While some times of the year are busier than others, there is almost always something to do in your yard. So spend some time outdoors with your shrubs this month both you and your plant are sure to benefit from the experience!

To Attend The Mid-Atlantic Fruit And Vegetable Convention

If you produce fruit or vegetables, you don't want to miss the great educational opportunity at the Mid-Atlantic Fruit and Vegetable Convention Feb. 4-6 at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center.

This tristate event features numerous presentations on a variety of topics as well as a huge trade show with many commercial exhibitors.

Topics cover many aspects of production, including season extension with high and low tunnels, labor issues, wholesale marketing, direct marketing, and irrigation. Tree fruit sessions include deer control, control of pear diseases, calcium deficiency, soil renovation in orchards, reducing spray drift, and using the Global Positioning System (GPS) in your orchard. Greenhouse sessions include raising greenhouse tomatoes, integrated pest management (IPM) programs for greenhouses, ornamental varieties for greenhouses, and the importance of water quality.

This year there are several wine grape sessions with topics including vineyard nutrition and grapevine tissue analysis, grape root borer, management of fruit and foliar diseases throughout the season, and canopy management for yield and quality.

Potato sessions will address management strategies for late blight and other diseases, influencing chipping quality in the field, and the challenge of marketing specialty potatoes. Other sessions focus on sweet corn, small fruit production, cut flower production, and organic production. Walk-in registrations are accepted, so you can still attend even if you have not registered.

I found Dr. Ken Bailey's comments on dairy trade issues in the Jan. 11, 2003 issue of the Lancaster Farming to be quite interesting. I would like to comment on a few of the points that he made.

First, Bailey is correct that Milk Protein Concentrate (MPC) imports comprise a relatively small percentage of total dairy imports. However, I think that the big issue here has been the flagrant misuse of MPC. It seems that a few cheese makers were not satisfied with shortchanging dairy farmers legally, so resorted to illegal use of MPC to enhance the bottom line. No one using it has yet gone through the process to get Generally Recognized as Safe (GRAS) status for MPC from the Food and Drug Administration (FDA).

Secondly, Bailey is correct that imports are not evil. However, when they are used to devalue domestic products, siphon money

A MINISTRY OF ENCOURAGEMENT

Background Scripture:

Acts 4:32-37; 9:26,27; 11:19-30; 15:36-40.

Devotional Reading:

Hebrews 10:19-25.

As a brand-new minister in a suburb of Harrisburg, I had a very exalted, if immature, vision of my mission. Within one year I would convert all of Paxtonia, within two years, all of Lower Paxton Township and by the end of three years, all of Lower Dauphin County. It didn't work out that way, for, after five years, when I left for another church, I was still working on Paxtonia.

Many Christians may think unrealistically about Christian discipleship. We would all like to be a St. Francis of Assisi or a Toyohiko Kagawa. There is nothing wrong with that aspiration if we don't let it interfere with seemingly less spectacular opportunities.

Witnessing to the Good News is not something for the special few, but all of us. Barnabas, who grasped every opportunity to live his discipleship, is a shining example for all of us. He is mentioned only briefly in six of the chapters of Acts (also I Cor. 9:6; Gal. 2:1,9,13; and Col. 4:10). But, if we look closely, we will see that his discipleship, though not so dramatic, was very vital.

Called To Minister

Acts 4:36 tells us that his given name is Joseph, a member of the Hebrew tribe of Levi. Levites served various functions in the temple, roles secondary to that of the priests. Barnabas was from the island of Cyprus and apparently of some means, for he "sold a field which belonged to him, and brought the money and laid it at the apostles' feet" (4:37). So he is the kind of Christian who not only hears what should be done, but does it. Without people like Barnabas the church would not have endured and spread.

Barnabas, meaning "son of encouragement," is the surname given him by the apostles. His gift to the early church was the encouragement he gave his fellow followers of Christ through both his words and his actions. Many who helped me most throughout my life were those, beginning with my parents, who encouraged me in my endeavors. Who needs encouragement? Just about everybody. There are opportunities every day.

In Acts 11, the apostles, hearing of many conversions in Antioch, sent Barnabas to that city to report to them what was happening there. Barnabas was so encouraged by the many converts that he decided to stay on in Antioch for a while to establish a congregation there. Acts tells us "he was a good man, full of the Holy Spirit and of faith" (11:24). But Barnabas decided he would need help and went to Tarsus to enlist the aid of a new and untried disciple named Saul (Paul).

I doubt that any other Christian leaders would have taken a chance on Paul, who was better known for his persecution of Christians than he was for his conversion on the Damascus Road.

Playing Second Fiddle

Note that, in the beginning, it was "Barnabas and Saul" (11:30), but by the time we get to 13:43, it has become "Paul and Barnabas." For the sake of the gospel, Barnabas, seeing Paul's great abilities, was apparently willing to let Paul assume the leadership. But, as they are planning their third missionary journey, they disagreed over including John Mark in their party. Paul did not want him along because the young disciple had apparently left their group during the previous journey. But Barnabas wanted to give Mark another chance, so they went their separate ways.

That, however, is not the end of the story. It appears that Barnabas was right in giving Mark another chance because, approximately 10 years later, he was again working with Paul (Col. 4:10; Philemon 24). According to tradition, he founded the church in the great Jewish-Greek city of Alexandria, Egypt, where he also died and was buried.

Unlike Paul and Peter, there are not many churches named after Barnabas. But I think there should be, because most of us are closer to his level of discipleship than we are to that of Peter and Paul. Maybe we ought to start a Society of St. Barnabas to spread the Good News with a vital ministry of encouragement!

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Review

St. Joseph, Mo.
Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER & STOCKER SUMMARY for week ending Jan. 24 — Total Receipts: 463,400, last week 500,700. Direct 48,100, last week 49,800. Video/Internet 124,100, last week 47,200. Auctions 291,200, last week 403,700. This week's reported auction volume included 50 percent over 600 lbs and 44 percent heifers.

Compared to last week, feeder steers and heifers sold steady to 2.00 lower. Downside pressure carried over from last week but demand was much improved and the market was fairly stable. Last week's friendly cattle-on-feed report lent support to this week's prices as notions of healthy feedlot marketings were confirmed. However, most yearling markets posted losses as the futures board was erratic and feedlots were forced to take less money for their showlists.

The fat cattle market could only hold the 80.00 level for one trading session as dressed beef sales slowed this week and packers dug-in their heels. Slaughter steers and heifers ended the week at mostly 79.00 live and 121.00-123.00 dressed, which was 1.00 lower and 2.00-3.00 lower in the beef.

Stocker calves traded unevenly steady this week, especially in the Southeast where frigid temperatures and inclement conditions affected marketing. Some calf sales from Missouri across to Tennessee were reported as much as 3.00 higher as receipts were lighter and the cold weather had calves looking thinner and more app ealing to buyers.

Much of the Midwest and Northern Plains endured temperatures that hovered around zero degrees this week and daily highs were only in the single digits. This will considerably slow feedlot gains, but most heartland feeders will tell you that so far this has been the best cattle feeding winter they've seen in years.

MORE BAD NEWS

- Inventory is up!
- Butter entering the CCC.
- Cash prices weak.

End-of-the-year accounting has been done and it does not look good. The cold storage numbers out this week indicate that inventories for both butter and cheese are well ahead of year-ago numbers.

Of course, a year ago wasn't exactly a boom time for milk production. Let's compare the Dec. 31, 2002 inventory numbers with a five-year average of end-of-year inventory numbers. That way we can get a more accurate read on where things stand.

Butter inventory at the end of 2002 stood at 157.5 million pounds. December inventory for 2001 was 55.9 million pounds. But recall that butter production in 2001 was short, so end-of-year inventories were likely distorted. However, the five-year average for commercial butter inventories is 57.7 billion pounds. Anyway you look at it, there is a lot of butter on hand.

The story isn't so distorted for cheese. American cheese inventories at the end of 2002 were at 495.8 million pounds, compared to inventory of 449.1 million pounds at the end of 2001. Turns out the five-year average for the end of December was 466.6 million pounds. So, for American cheese, end-of-year inventories for 2002 were just 6.2 percent ahead of the five-year average. That's not too bad.

Total cheese inventories at the end of 2002 were 733.4 million pounds, compared to 660 million pounds in 2001. The five-year average was 648 million pounds. Thus, total cheese inventories at the end of 2002 were 11.1 percent ahead of a year ago, and 13.2 percent ahead of the 5-year average. Most of this was likely due to higher inventory levels of Italian cheeses.

The category "other natural cheese," which is mainly Italian cheese, was up 27.8 percent in December 2002 relative to the five-year average. Clearly consumers were less interested in pizza in 2002 than in prior years.

This week marks another bad milestone. Butter entered the U.S. price support program for the first time since 1995. During the week Jan. 20-24 of this year, about 380,835 pounds of butter from the West entered the Commodity Credit Corporation. Butter wasn't alone. Cheese and nonfat dry milk also entered the dairy price support program. For the first time in many years, all three dairy commodities are being purchased under the support price program.

So what does this mean for milk prices in 2003? Class III futures on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange sank under the cold storage news. September 2003 Class III futures, which were about $13.38 per CWT as we entered this year, are now just $12.87 per CWT. And the average Class III price for all of 2003 at the CME about a month ago was $11.90 per CWT. This week the annual average Class III CME price fell to $11.31 per CWT, down almost $0.60 per CWT for the year.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

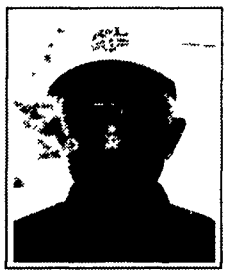
Pasture Perfect® Dealer of the Week:

Hess Farm Supply

This week Ampac Seed Company and Rohrer Seeds recognize Hess Farm Supply of New Holland, PA. "We supply organic and conventional dairy, beef and swine farms with a variety of their needs including forage seed, feed ingredients, homeopathic products and balanced feed programs," explains Leon Hess, owner of Hess Farm Supply. Leon is a great believer in grasses and the value of the General Purpose* Mix. This mix incorporates the valuable attributes of Tekapo orchardgrass, Duo festulolium, Tonga perennial ryegrass, and Kentucky bluegrass to provide an excellent high quality pasture option for all classes of livestock and hay producers. All of the grass varieties in the General Purpose* Mix will provide the very best nutrition quality for your livestock - allowing maximum animal production. The extra persistence of the orchardgrass and festulolium will ensure that these pastures will hold up during hot dry summers and harsh winters, providing quality pasture for years to come.



Leon Hess
Hess Farm Supply

Many of the grasses in the General Purpose* Mix are also well suited for hay production systems. Leon recommends using Tekapo orchardgrass and Duo festulolium with alfalfa for alfalfa-grass mixed hay.

"If a customer is not happy with one of our mixes, we will make custom mixes to meet their needs," says Leon.

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
Report Supplied By USDA

The wheat story remained the same, today, higher bids were due continued dry weather in winter wheat growing areas. Support also stemmed from indications that CCC issued a 108 thousand ton tender of hard red winter wheat overnight. Corn and soybean bids, however, moved moderately to sharply lower on overnight moisture in Argentina. Moisture is also forecast for US areas with some warmer temperatures by the weekend for some places. Light profit taking was noted in soybean pits and weakness in oil trade drove soybean bids sharply lower. Wheat 1 to 2 cents higher. Corn 3 cents lower Sorghum 5 cents lower. Soybeans 12 cents lower.

Corn Belt Feedstuff

St. Joseph, Mo.
Report Supplied By USDA

Feedstuff prices were mixed again this week but narrowly. Trading was slow And many users seem to be changing formulas using cheaper ingredients. Soybean Meal prices were up slightly this week. Cottonseed meal happens to be one of the ingredients less used due to high cotton prices. Hominy feed prices showed some strength from tight supplies. Distillers prices were about steady but demand remains slow. Cold temperatures moved across the US last week, boosting consumption, but this next week is forecast to be warmer

SOYBEAN MEAL: 48 percent rail was 6.50 to 7.50 higher from 172.50-173.50. 48 percent truck was 5.50 to 7.50 higher from 175.50-182.50 per ton.

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.
January 29, 2003
Report Supplied by USDA

Spot prices of class II cream, dollars per lb. butterfat: F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: 1.2840-1.4017. Delivered Equivalent: Atlanta: 1.2840-1.4124 mostly 1.2947-1.3161.

PRICES OF CONDENSED SKIM, dollars per lb. wet solids, F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: Class II, includes monthly formula prices: .9500-1.000; Class III - spot prices - .7200-.8600.

SPOT SHIPMENTS OF GRADE A MILK: FLORIDA: This week: In 0, Out 0; last week: In 0, Out 2; last year: In 0, Out 11. SOUTHEAST STATES: This week: In 0, Out 0; last week: In 0, Out 0; last year: In 0, Out 0.

Milk production is showing a few signs of increasing, particularly in the Deep South. The recent cold weather retarded gains seen early in the month, but output seems to be rebounding in Louisiana, Florida, and Georgia.

In the Middle Atlantic area, the milk flow is mostly steady and temperatures remain cold. In New York, almost daily lake effect snows are adding to an already deep base in the Western and Central parts of the state. This is delaying farm milk pick ups, but there have been no reports of lost milk. In New England, very cold temperatures and snow were common over the weekend and milk output is about steady. Fluid milk supplies are tighter throughout the region.

Bottled milk sales range from good north of the Middle Atlantic area to steady or slower in the Southeast. Scattered school closings seemed to have little effect on bottling schedules. Parts of the Carolinas saw heavy snowfall late last week and some panic buying was evident just prior to the weekend. Due to the continued good bottled milk demand, surplus milk volumes have eased in many sections of the Northeast. Reports of handlers/suppliers looking for extra milk for manufacturing were more common this week. This provided a timely outlet for some plants who had milk orders cancelled early in the week.

The condensed skim market is little changed. Some distressed loads continue to clear at attractive prices to Midwestern buyers. At some drying plants, natural gas supplies have been reduced or cut off altogether and this is impacting condensed skim processing and/or drying.

The fluid cream market is weak, but some contacts state not as weak as it has been. Offerings are more than ample and heavy shipments of excess to Midwestern butter makers continue. Multiples on the excess cream are often in the 112-115 f.o.b. range and based on a yet to be set CME butter price.

Class II cream demand is lackluster at best and prices are slightly lower. Ice cream makers are taking typical volumes for this time of year. Cream cheese makers are reported to be less active in the spot market. A few bottlers have taken an extra load or two, but it is not known if this is the result of increased demand or getting new business at the expense of another producer. Locally, churning activity is steady at moderate to heavy levels.

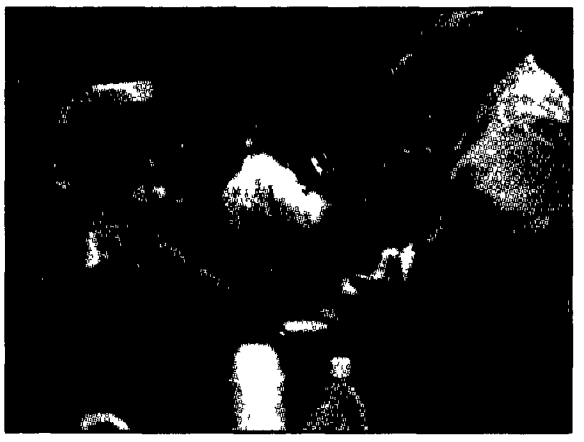
Annual Ice Cream Short Course Serves Flavorful Instruction



Penn State ice cream maker Todd Gantt serves up a batch of ice cream for students learning about different freezing processes.

right," said Osofsky. "People love it (the farm's ice cream), I just want to know if I could do other things to make it better."

The dairy sells to area stores and farmers markets but Osofsky hopes to open an on-farm store in the future.

Hands-on experiences were an important part of the various labs conducted throughout the course.

During one lab, students analyzed vanilla flavor from throughout the world. After they smelled and described the beans, they tasted vanilla extracts and worked together to formulate their own best-tasting vanilla combination.

At one sensory evaluation lab, Bruce Tharp, ice cream consultant and adjunct Penn State professor, helped students assess several brands of commercial ice cream, weighing several characteristics (does it break down quickly in the mouth? Is it crumbly? Does it have a custard, soggy, or cooked flavor? Do the ingredients taste old?).

At another similar lab, students evaluated ice cream made at the Creamery.

Participants also did a melt-down evaluation, carefully putting small portion of ice cream on a blue plate with a melon scoop to avoid disturbing the ice creams structure.

Students also learned about differing freezing systems, from homemade salt-and-ice methods to a batch freezer and the novelty system for popsicles and ice cream bars.

Instructors froze popsicles in a cold brine solution either with or without agitation. Freezing without agitation allows crystals to grow, easily seen in fruit-flavored, but also visible in ice cream popsicles.

During the lab students discussed overrun, the measure of air in ice cream. One gallon of ice cream mix makes two gallons of ice cream at 100 percent overrun, according to Penn State ice cream maker Todd Gantt.

The Creamery makes ice cream with less overrun, so the produce has a creamier texture, according to Gantt.

One of the course's lectures was T. Websters discussion of vanilla.

The old vanilla market, said Webster, was dominated by Madagascar, which in the 1930s put together a cartel for price control. In 1978 crop problems in Madagascar destroyed 20-30 percent of the crop, sending prices higher and grabbing the attention of other countries.

"Indonesia really came into play, and they started to take over the market," said Webster. Also in 1993 Madagascar experienced political problems and the cartel fell.

Prices, however, are now high, as Madagacar experienced a typhoon in 2000, destroying stores of the 1999 crop and vines with fruit of the 2000 crop and sending prices to $95-$110 a kilo.

Although bean prices have continued to climb, he believes that "prices will soften as we go into 2003," Webster said. India, China, Uganda, and Mexico are also now producing vanilla beans.

Students were also given a tour of Borland Lab, site of Penn States Creamery. Tom Palchak, manager of the Creamery since 1986, guided participants through the operation.

Palchak explained the pasteurization and homogenization

Ice Cream Short Course

Dr. Robert Roberts, director of the Penn State Ice Cream Short Course and associate professor of food science, takes popsicles from a cold brine solution for students to sample.

During the freezing lab, students learned about differing freezing systems. Here a participant tastes the difference between the methods, which may yield a crystalline or creamy popsicle.

process. The shearing action of the machines on the milk fat prevents cream layering, he explained.

Powders are added before the pasteurization process, and the entire mixture is heated. Ice cream mix is very viscous and needs two-stage pasteurization, he said.

Palchak also explained the Creamerys clean-in-place (CIP) system that relies on four time-honored factors — four things (time, temperature, conductivity, and proper pressure) that in concert with each other result in the properly cleaned facility, he said.

It may take as long as two hours to clean a pasteurizer, he said.

The CIP system, used in other industries, had its birth in the dairy industry, according to Palchak.

Creamery employees also carefully document the cleaning process. We are dealing with a public health situation, along with employee safety, so cleaning and documentation are paramount, he said.

Following the Ice Cream Short Course was a separate conference, the Successful Ice Cream Retailing Seminar.

The seminar addressed questions about necessary capital for an ice cream business, what type of layout is necessary,and what time of location is right for an ice cream business.

Marketing, promotion, and equipment were also part of the discussion agenda.

The presenters, which included experts from Cape Cod, Mass., Deep Creek Lake, Md., and Ontario, Canada, also spoke about increasing profits, setting prices, and calculating food costs.

In addition presenters discussed what types of frozen dessert to sell, which products are the most profitable and most in demand, and what type of equipment is necessary.

Creamery To 'Moove' To New Facility

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Do you remember the flavor of ice cream you had the last time you were at Penn State's Creamery?

Perhaps you consumed several scoops of Peachy Paterno, Chocolate Cherry Cordial, Bavarian Raspberry Crunch, or Espresso Fudge Pie during your visit.

Although these flavors will still be produced, a new facility will become the home of Creamery.

"We will begin construction on the new building in 2003 but probably won't be moving into the new building 2005, maybe 2006," said Tom Palchak, Creamery manager since 1986.

Groundbreaking is scheduled for mid to late fall this year.

The Creamery move from its 15,000-square foot location to a new 21,000-foot facility.

"We're bursting at the seams," said Palchak.

The vacated facility will become classrooms and studios for the college of arts and architecture, according to Palchak.

Another change will be the shift from cardboard to plastic containers for milk.

Six food or dairy science interns work at the Creamery, along with 21 full-time employees.

Not only two herds on campus (250 milking Holsteins) but also two nearby dairy producers supply the Creamery's milk.

The milk, as all milk is, screened carefully for antibiotics.

Also in Borland Lab students can take a fat readout and do composition tests or butterfat or carbohydrate analyses. The milk is also tested for acceptable bacterial standards.

The Creamery produces 225,000 gallons of ice cream every year.

Pennsylvania Red Meat Production Up Eight Percent In November

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Commercial red meat production in the state during November 2002 totaled 109.2 million pounds, dressed weight basis, up 8 percent from November 2002, according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service (PASS).

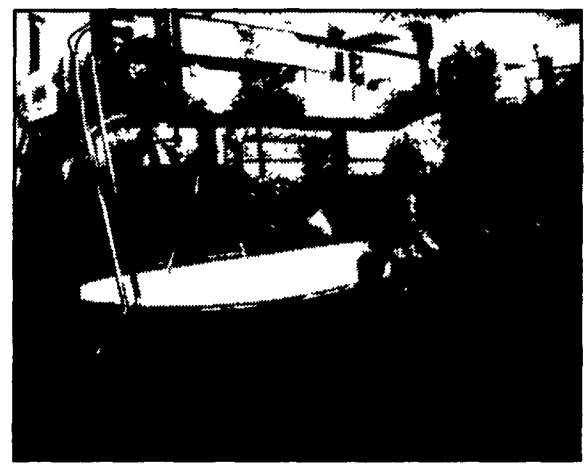
Beef production, at 115 million pounds live weight, was up 11 percent from November 2001. Total head slaughtered was 90,300. Live weight averaged 1,273 pounds, a decrease of 7 pounds from last year.

Veal production was 5.6 million pounds live weight, 4 percent more than a year ago. Calf slaughter of 17,200 head was up 15 percent. Average live weight decreased 38 pounds to 324 pounds.

Pork production, at 58.1 million pounds live weight, was up 9 percent from November 2001. Total head slaughtered was 230,600, up 10 percent from November of last year. Average live weight decreased 3 pounds to 252 pounds.

Lamb and mutton production was 731,000 pounds live weight, up 44 percent from a year ago. The number slaughtered was 6,800, up 45 pounds from November of last year. The average live weight was unchanged from last year.

Creamery Will 'Moove'



Tom Palchak, Creamery manager, explains the cheese-making process to a tour group. The university makes more than 60,000 pounds of cheddar a year.

they hear "Creamery," 60,000 pounds of cheddar, 50,000 pounds of ricotta, 25,000 pounds of yogurt, and 50,000 pounds of cream cheese are also produced yearly. It also sells soft serve mixes, sour cream, dips, spread, sherbet, and frozen yogurt.

Creamery employees hand-dip 750,000 ice cream cones every year at the store alone.

The university-run facility does not want to compete with other nearby dairy businesses, points out Palchak. The majority — more than 80 percent — is sold or eaten on campus.

Besides the retail outlet of the Creamery store, the dining halls, Nittany Inn, and various eateries on campus use or sell Creamery products.

Although the Creamery makes a wide variety of flavors, "vanilla is king," said Palchak, as it accounts for 32 percent of all ice cream sold.

The Creamery's ice cream formulas are public information, along with other educational materials about ice cream production.

"There's no secrets there," said Palchak. "Generally speaking, all the Creamery formulas are public information. It's there to help the industry."

Veneman Names Director Of USDA's Faith-Based And Community Initiatives Center

WASHINGTON, D.C.— U.S. Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman today announced the appointment of Juliet McCarthy as Special Assistant to the Secretary and the Director of the USDA Center for Faith-Based and Community Initiatives.

"Juliet brings her experience and commitment to this important effort at USDA," said Veneman. 'I am pleased that she is joining our team to help us with this important endeavor."

President Bush announced the establishment of the USDA center Dec. 12 during a White House Conference in Philadelphia on Faith-Based and Community Initiatives. The purpose of the center is to coordinate programs for faith-based and other grassroots organizations to improve services directed at reducing poverty and helping people in need.

As a first step in its implementation of the Initiative, USDA will conduct, in coordination with the White House Office of Faith-Based and Community Initiatives, an agency-wide review to identify opportunities to increase the participation of these organizations in federal as well as state and local activities.

McCarthy joins USDA in this new post after having served as the deputy director for the Department of Labor's Center for Faith-Based and Community Initiatives since June 2001. In that position, she developed a plan of the center's first-year activities, managed staff, monitored projects, and served in an outreach capacity. Prior to that, she served on the Department of Labor's transition team establishing the newly created Center for Faith-Based and Community Initiatives in coordination with the White House from January to May 2001.

She received her bachelor's degree from the University of Virginia in Charlottesville, Va. in May 1990 and was graduated from the Emory University School of Law in Atlanta, Ga. in May 1993.

Prior to joining the administration, McCarthy worked as an attorney at the Georgia Justice Project in Atlanta. She joins USDA on Feb. 3.

THE CHAMBER'S 2003 GOALS AND THEIR IMPACT ON THE AGRICULTURE INDUSTRY

The Lancaster Chamber is committed to meeting the needs and providing services for the diverse business community in Lancaster County. But as the business climate, legislation, workforce, and many other business issues change, so must the Chamber stay on top of these evolving influences while providing current effective programs and services to support the business community. The Chamber's board of directors looked at the key business issues in Lancaster County and determined the focus for The Chamber in 2003.

I recently had the opportunity to ask the Chamber's 2003 Board Chairman Philip Wenger, president of Isaac's Deli, Inc., about his vision as it relates to the Chamber's goals and the agricultural industry.

"The Chamber's priorities in 2003 call for a clear focus on better planning for a bright economic future and more intermunicipal and regional thinking to break down the barriers to growth," Wenger commented. "These priorities fit well with the agriculture industry, because the unfair rules and regulations imposed on our farmers and ag-businesses get in the way of successful business growth. The Lancaster Chamber is a place where ag businesses can combine their voices with manufacturers and retail to be certain that our local, state and federal government does a better job of supporting the engine which not only employs many people, but feeds them as well. The Chamber recognizes the importance of the ag industry and wants to partner with their voices to be certain our 2003 priorities around economic development and more inter-municipal and regional thinking are focused on issues important to farmers and farm businesses."

When asked how the agriculture community can become more involved with the Chamber, Wenger suggested, "We are asking all farms and ag businesses, both large and small, to join the Chamber in speaking out when our community fails to recognize the importance of creating a climate where agribusiness can grow and thrive. The agriculture community needs to maintain a grass-roots communication network and help the Chamber speak out about issues important to them."

The Lancaster Chamber's Agriculture Committee provides the leadership to the Chamber's Agricultural Services Program. Chairperson for this year is Sonia Wasco, president of Grant Heilman Photography.

When asked about the Agriculture Committee's strengths and direction for 2003, Wasco commented, "The Agriculture Committee has members from all segments of the agriculture community in Lancaster County. This is our greatest strength as the committee bridges the gap between the agriculture community and the Chamber. We consistently take proactive steps to address the concerns of our members by hosting events that address the issues that impact the economic future of the agriculture community and by bringing together municipal and regional representatives with agriculture industry representatives for open discussions on critical issues impacting our future growth. There is no better forum for the business of agriculture to come together and be heard than through the Chamber."

To ensure a viable business community and vibrant overall community, the Chamber recognizes the role it must play in supporting all sectors of industry, including agriculture. To meet these diverse needs, the Chamber concentrates its efforts in three areas - member services, advocacy, and community leadership. From within these goals there are three priority areas - economic development, downtown revitalization, and building cooperation with local governments and regional efforts.

Next month's Agriculture Insights column will focus on the Agriculture Committee's goals and programs and how they coincide with The Chamber's 2003 program of action.

The Chamber is offering an excellent upcoming educational program for farmers and agribusinesses. The Farm Business Symposium will be on Feb. 11 at Willow Valley Resort from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The program includes a continental breakfast, lunch, and Resource Guide, which highlights all the programs covered during the day. Cost for the Farm Business Symposium is $75 for Chamber members and $100 for nonmembers. Contact Brent Landis for additional information at (717) 397-3531 x 134 or blandis@lcci.com.

Penn State ag economics professor Lou Moore will deliver his highly popular market outlook. This year's program will include about 20 exhibits and educational seminars for producers. The expo will once again sponsor a "Pork Bowl" for competing FFA and 4-H members.

The conference begins at 8:30 a.m. and will conclude at 5 p.m. Space for the conference is limited. To register, please contact Amy Bradford of Penn Ag Industries at abradford+Apennag.com.

President Bush Creates Faith-Based And Community Initiatives Center

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President Bush signed an Executive Order Dec. 12 creating a Faith-Based and Community Initiative Center within USDA.

The USDA works in many capacities to provide programs, grants, and other services that help build stronger communities through rural economic development and investment, food and nutrition programs, as well as food aid. This decision will provide USDA the opportunity to better coordinate delivery mechanisms and work more closely with faith-based community organizations.

U.S. Agriculture Secretary Ann Veneman, who traveled with the President to Philadelphia for the announcement applauded the decision saying, "Our objective is to provide these types of programs to help families and children, improve our neighborhoods, and build stronger communities. Through the President's leadership, we will work with renewed commitment and vigor to achieve results."

Kerrs participate at several levels. They also work with local 4-H dairy judging training and the Hoards Dairyman contest, besides promoting dairy hospitality by conducting dairy farm tours for school children and hosting soil conservation field days.

As far as contributions of the Kerrs to their community, Donna is a Girl Scout leader and vice president of the school district PTA. At their church she serves as treasurer and the Fellowship chairperson. Jimmy is a church elder and Sunday School superintendent.

Rebecca Cornman and Catherine Peacock each received the Paul M. Reaves Award presented by Dr. Steve Nickerson. The dairy science students at Virginia Tech were selected based on the leadership abilities they have demonstrated, academic achievement, and "love for the dairy cow."

Cornman additionally received the W. Ray and Ruby Murley Scholarship. She makes significant contributions to the activities of the Dairy Club, co-chairs milkshake sales at sporting events, co-edits a dairy publication, is active in dairy judging, and is a leader in the New River 4-H Dairy Club. After graduation, she will be employed by AMS Genetics.

Peacock has been a Dairy Club leader, chaired the A.R.E. dairy bar, and the Little All American Dairy Show. She has done reporting and had the first place production paper at national ADSA meetings and is a dairy judging team member. Peacock will pursue a graduate degree in reproductive physiology and has a goal to own a farm.

Eric Paulson and Charles Beau Leech V received the first scholarships from the newly established Jack and Leta Lester Scholarship Foundation for Virginia Tech dairy science students.

The following 2003 VSDA officers were made official at the convention. They are president — James P. Townsend, Manquin; first vice-president — Bobby Combs, Chilhowie; second vice-president — Joseph A. Houck, Culpeper; and executive secretary-treasurer — Dale A Gardner, Bridgewater.

Directors for 2003 are Dist. 1 — Joseph A. Houck, Culpeper; Dist. 2 — Wayne W. Miller, Locust Grove; Dist. 3 — Daniel Lee, Dewitt; Dist. 4 — Robert P. Coffman, Harrisonburg and Steve W. Craun, Bridgewater; Dist. 5 — James Alexander, Fairfield; Dist. 6 — Tommy Motley, Chatham; Dist. 7 — Melvin Montgomery, Wirtz; Dist. 8 — Curtis Sowers, Floyd; Dist. 9 — Maxie Aker, Wytheville; and Dist. 10 — Bobby Combs, Chilhowie.

Directors-at-large are Charles F. Moyer, Amelia; J.D. Hardesty, Berryville; and Allen Sisson, Shawsville.

At the banquet, Dr. James P. Wightman was master of ceremonies. Miss Virginia, Jennifer Pitts, conducted the milk toast that opened the gala event.

The Wes Allen Trio was responsible for dinner music and Robert F. Earle, general manager of SUDIA, gave a report of SUDIA activities, as did Eric McClain.

Catherine Peacock is also an outstanding student at Virginia Tech in dairy science and maintained an in-major QCA of 3.5. She, too receives the Paul M. Reaves Award from Dr. Steve Nickerson. Peacock is from Stephen City.

Rebecca Cornman from Pennsylvania is pictured receiving the Paul M. Reaves Award from Dr. Steve Nickerson. Cornman has been an outstanding student for seven semesters at Virginia Tech with an in-major dairy science QCA of 3.4.

PREWEANED CALVES AND COLD WEATHER

Dr. Arlen Mills
Extension Veterinarian
Capitol Region

We have all realized by now that winter is upon us and hopefully we have reacted properly to meet the challenges of cold weather.

We put on that extra coat, those heavy gloves. or whatever is needed to keep as comfortable as possible while we wait for spring to come.

But what about those calves? Do they notice the cold as well? When temperatures drop below 50 degrees, the young preweaned calf must begin to adjust to its surroundings to compensate for the lowered temperature.

I have visited several farms within the last month because calf deaths had increased. Cold stress was a major factor in each of these and in two instances, no infectious agents were identified. Cause of death was attributed to the cold weather.

At temperatures below 50 degrees, the calf needs extra energy to make body heat. If this extra energy isn't available from the feed, then the calf will begin to break down body tissue. Fat will be used first but, if not available, then muscle mass will be used and the calf rapidly loses weight. Dampness and drafts make the problem worse.

These negative effects of the cold can be lessened by one or all of the following ways:

• Proper housing for calves is important. Calves can tolerate a lot of cold temperatures if they are kept dry, well bedded, and protected from drafts. The "calf blankets" that are available are a supplement to good bedding and not a replacement.

• Calves burn calories to produce body heat. This means that in cold weather, we need to increase the supply of calories to fuel the heater. This can be done by increasing feed intake. Preweaned calves can be fed an additional volume of milk. The goal is to feed the calf at such a level that it will maintain a normal body temperature and have enough reserves left over to grow. A rule of thumb is to increase feeding rate in cold weather by 25 to 50 percent. This means feeding up to three quarts twice daily if two quarts is the "normal" routine. I have seen some recommend mixing replacer at a "stronger" rate but I would be cautious in trying this, because it can result in a nutritional diarrhea. Another way to increase the calf's caloric intake is to feed a milk replacer that is higher in fat content. Fat supplies the major portion of the energy for the calf. The fat content of dry whole milk is almost 30 percent while milk replacers vary from 10 percent to 20 percent fat levels. In cold weather, be sure to use a replacer that has a fat content at the top of this level. Also, when mixing replacer, be sure to use water that is at least 110 degrees so that the fat in the mix goes into suspension. Colder water may result in replacer with reduced availability of fat. And feeding cold milk will also drain additional energy from the calf.

Dr. Arlen Mills

• Make sure that you keep a high quality, fresh, dry starter available. The very young calf will not eat enough starter to provide a major amount of energy. The primary function of starter is to develop the rumen of the calf. As the calf approaches weaning age, we hope the rumen is developed enough so that the calf begins to transition from milk to solid food as a source of energy.

Successful calf raising during the winter will require extra energy. This can be done in several ways or in a combination of ways. Start feeding increased energy when daytime temperatures are below freezing. And don't forget to offer water, which will encourage calf starter intake.

And, yes, spring will be here before we know it.

Commodity Classic To Offer Profit Opportunities

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Commodity Classic, Feb. 27-March 1, in Charlotte, N.C., will be an exceptional opportunity for soybean and corn producers to gather information and knowledge that will help them increase their future profitability. Based on individual interest, growers will choose sessions they want to attend from a two-day schedule of concurrent sessions on many topics. In addition, because of the importance, all growers will have the opportunity to attend a stand-alone "Marketing Session."

Commodity Classic, the eighth annual convention and trade show of the American Soybean Association (ASA) and National Corn Growers Association (NCGA), provides numerous opportunities to learn, discuss hot topics, see new products, and network with other growers.

ASA President Dwain Ford said, "Farmers, agribusiness leaders and other key players in the agriculture sector come together at Commodity Classic to share a variety of valuable information about production, products and resources."

NCGA President Fred Yoder said, "With nearly 700 booths, the trade show is an excellent opportunity for growers to see a wide variety of equipment and products in one convenient location, making it easier to compare and ask questions."

The special "evening of entertainment" will feature an exciting and energy-filled show by Diamond Rio, an award-winning country music group. Commodity Classic is a perfect opportunity for growers to include their families and spend a few extra days enjoying the many activities in and around Charlotte. Complete details and registration information are on the Web at www.commodityclassic.com or call (636) 928-3700.

Extension Offers Pesticide Update Meetings

EBENSBURGH (Cambria Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension in Cambria County will be conducting pesticide update trainings for crop producers this winter. A pesticide applicator certification exam will also be given.

Meetings will take place Feb. 4 and March 4 from 1 to 3 p.m. at the extension office in Ebensburg. Two Category 1 credits and two Core credits will be offered.

Topics for the three meetings will include Problem Weeds of Pennsylvania, Herbicide Adjuvants, Insects in Forages, New Herbicides, and Drift Control.

The registration fee is $3 per person for individuals who preregister. Cost for walk-ins will be $5 at the door. To preregister, send or drop off a check made payable to Cambria County Extension, P.O. Box 390, 499 Manor Drive, Ebensburg, PA 15931 at least five days prior to the meeting date. Be sure to indicate which meeting(s) you wish to attend.

The pesticide applicator's license exam will be given Feb. 21 from 9 a.m. to noon at the extension office in Ebensburg. No preregistration is required to attend, but call the extension office at (814) 472-7986 to ensure adequate seating. Persons interested in taking the exam should contact the Penn State Publications Distribution Center at (877) 345-0691 to order the appropriate pesticide training materials. The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture will be administering the exam.

Holstein Silent Auction To Feature 60 Lots

TULARE, Calif. — The Next Generation Holstein Silent Auction during World Ag Expo, Feb. 11-13 in Tulare, will be featuring 60 lots from the industry's highest quality cow families. Comprised primarily of first choice female consignments, there will also be some prominent flush cows selling, as well as a number of frozen embryo lots.

The sale will be open for bidding during normal trade show hours (9 a.m. - 5 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday; 9 a.m.-4 p.m. Thursday) in the Dairy Pavilion of Western Dairy Business.

The sale will be organized and managed by Burton-Fellers Sales Inc., of Berryton and Overland Park, Kan. The experienced sales manager duo conducts hundreds of sales every year, including the Stars of the Silent Screen Sale, a silent auction conducted during World Dairy Expo.

The Next Generation Holstein Silent Auction will feature 8x10 photographs of the dams of each consignment. Bids can be placed by name or bidding number (available at the sale information table), with minimum bid increments being $200.

For more information on the sale, contact Dallas Burton at (785) 379-9774 or fax (785) 379-9775; or Ed Fellers at (913) 897-4121 or fax (913) 897-0954. Inquiries may also be e-mailed to dallasburton@msn.com.

Dairy Risk Management Workshop Set

SHELOCTA (Indiana Co.) — A dairy risk management workshop is scheduled for Monday, Feb. 10, at Sandy Kaye's Restaurant in Shelocta. The workshop will begin at 10 a.m. and conclude at 3 p.m.

The objective of this workshop is to help Pennsylvania dairy farmers develop the skills needed to plan and budget future milk production, income and expenses, and to incorporate dairy futures into a marketing plan. The workshop will focus on understanding the basics of how milk is priced, evaluating the milk check, computing "basis," understanding futures markets, learning how to forward contract/hedge milk, developing a marketing plan, and using a hedging strategy.

The speaker for the workshop is Ken Bailey, associate professor of dairy markets and policy at Penn State. Bailey has developed a Web site to help Pennsylvania dairy producers better understand marketing questions: (HYPERLINK http://dairyoutlook.aers.psu.edu/ http://dairyoutlook.aers.psu.edu/).

Cost of attending the workshop is $5 per person, with a registration deadline of Wednesday, Feb. 5. This program is supported in part by a USDA grant from the Northeast Center for Risk Management Education.

Please bring a calculator and your 2002 milk check stubs.

For additional information, and registration details, please contact Eugene Schurman at (724) 465-3880 or email at HYPERLINK "mailto:exs10@psu.edu" exs10@psu.edu.

Land O'Lakes Supports Proposed PMMB Pooling Regulation

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — Land O'Lakes, Inc., is encouraging all Pennsylvania dairy producers to contact their legislators and ask them to approve the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board's (PMMB) proposed regulation to pool 45 percent of the Pennsylvania over-order premium among all dairy farmers in the state.

Land O' Lakes was among several organizations who asked the PMMB to draft a pooling regulation more than two years ago. After a deliberative process open to all processor and producer groups, the board submitted a final regulation.

"We commend the board on its regulation, formed through a compromise of all groups," said Dennis Schad, Land O'Lakes director of Mid-Atlantic regulatory and marketing affairs. "We have evaluated the effects that this regulation would have on the state's producers and on Class I milk sales in Pennsylvania, and we've shown that pooling would more fairly distribute the premium dollars without having any impact on Class I sales."

"With the current low milk prices and last year's drought situation, all Pennsylvania producers need those premium dollars now more than ever," Schad said. "Postponing the pooling regulation's release would needlessly delay dairy producers in the state from receiving their fair share of the premium dollars."

According to Schad, a processor's decision on whether to bottle their Pennsylvania Class I milk in the state is dependent on in-state and out-of-state milk prices and should not be confused with the pooling regulation.

"We're talking about two separate issues," he said. "The pooling regulation addresses producer inequities, and it was a compromise that pools a minority of the premium dollars. It provides little incentive for a producer or producer organization to evade it.

"Delaying the release of the regulation any further would do more harm than good,"Schad said.

Virginia Farm Show A Success

GAY BROWNLEE
Virginia Correspondent

FISHERSVILLE, Va.—On Jan. 21, the folks who braved the bone-chilling cold to attend the 2003 Virginia Farm Show at Augusta Expo Land did so for varied personal reasons.

For some, the fun of a day's outing was too good to miss, but serious issues brought other attendees. At the farm show there were people to exchange ideas with, especially experts who were prepared to field their topical questions and send the answers across the farmer's home plate.

Sam Harris from Spotsylvania, for instance, talked about being a beef farmer in partnership with his brother, W.D. Harris. The siblings run a finishing operation and have 250 brood cows. Their land produces 200 acres of corn, 200 acres of soybeans, and 60 acres of alfalfa.

With Ellen, his wife and their three young daughters, the Harris family strives to be aware of new possibilities that will enable them to profitably maintain the farming lifestyle they love. And they are concerned about the generation that will have depended on their leadership to pave their way. Twenty years from now, how will their girls cope with new agricultural issues if they, too, decide on a life of farming?

Demonstrations such as log sawing by Timber Harvester, were popular at the Virginia Farm Show and attracted many spectators away from the heated tents and main building into the frosty outdoors where the sawdust was flying out of a chute.

Harris and Ellen began pondering the possibility of purchasing a few goats as they were strolling through a heated tent and were introduced to Southfork Farm's exhibit by Nathan and Sue Ellen Haver, Goshen. An enclosure featured a full-blood Boer dam and three adorable kids aged 3-weeks.

"Anything new—like these goats," said Harris. "Doing something different."

"Something to teach the children responsibility," said Ellen.

"And to get them interested in farming at a young age," said their dad, already doing the mental calculations.

Goats, in time, would generate some profit. Meanwhile, expanding the Harris family interests and diversifying the livestock could be a very healthy decision.

Visitor Monty Heatwole, however, was taking his questions about semen to another exhibitor. Heatwole manages Cub Run Dairy in McGaheysville for his dad. The Holstein operation is comprised of a milking herd of 250 head.

With support from her mother, Ellen Harris, Brandy Harris, 4, gets to hold a 3-week old Boer kid goat at the Va. Farm Show held Jan. 21, 22 at Expo Land.

Bill Meyerhoeffer, independent dairy consultant from Harrisonburg, was taking advantage of the opportunity to absorb the latest information that could be helpful to his clients.

"Basically, I came to get some technical information and see new feeding equipment and talk with people in the industry. We live in a progressive area and people try to keep up on things," he said.

(Turn to Page A30)

Visitors to the Virginia Farm Show — Titus Landis, Harrisonburg, Va. and LaVern Frey, Doylesburg, Pa. — are very interested in "person comfort" for the dairy farmer as much as they are creature comfort for the cows. They stop to learn more about the interlocking parlor cushion mats that are thick and comfortable and non-slip to walk on.

On the other hand, there was a hairdresser from Orange County making a first-time ever visit to the farm show. The outing with her husband, who is a small-scale farmer, was delightful.

Another group of three males of varying ages was lured by the tractor exhibits in Expo Hall. One of them was intrigued that an 8-horsepower import model could boast a price tag of less than $30,000.

"I'm droolin'," the young farmer confided, replacing a panel that covered the engine after he had fully examined the components.

Some 140 exhibitors had displays and demonstrations.

An import tractor has caught the attention of one visitor to the Va. Farm Show that was held Jan. 21, 22 at Augusta Expo Land. With the panel aside he can better inspect the mechanics of the engine. Later, he commented that he was "droolin' " for the machine because he learned the 8-horsepower piece was being marketed for under $30,000.

Transition Cow Management Workshops

PORTERSVILLE (Butler Co.) and GREENSBURG (Westmoreland Co.) — Transition cow management workshops are scheduled for southwest Pennsylvania on Tuesday, Feb. 25, at Brown's Country Kitchen Restaurant in Portersville, and Thursday, Feb. 27, at the Westmoreland County Extension Office (Donohoe Center) in Greensburg. Each workshop will start at 10:30 a.m. and conclude at 2:30 p.m.

Why is the Transition Cow Management Program so important? A recent article in Dairy Herd Management magazine cited a Journal of Dairy Science research study which detailed that fresh cows with milk fever were 23.6 times more likely to have ketosis, 7.2 times more likely to have dystocia problems, 4 times more likely to retain fetal membranes, and 5.4 times more likely to have clinical mastitis. Consequently, many of these cows start off very sluggish and this has a great impact on milk production for that lactation and consequently affects profitability. Many of these problems can be avoided if producers follow a transition Cow Management Program. Nutrition is one important area where changes may need to be made. However, many times cow comfort, feed bunk space, and water quantity and quality have a significant impact.

Speakers for the event include Dr. Bob Van Saun, Penn State extension veterinarian and John Tyson, Penn State extension agricultural engineer. They will outline the management steps and protocols that should be followed to help minimize problems.

Cost of attending the workshop is $15 per person with a registration deadline of Friday, Feb. 21.

For additional information, and registration details, contact Eugene Schurman at (724) 465-3880.

Varying Soil Conditions Can Impact Nutrient Levels

WOOSTER, Ohio — This growing season's topsy-turvy weather may have impacted more than crop performance and subsequent yields.

Maurice Watson, an Ohio State University Extension soil specialist with the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center (OARDC), said that the wet spring followed by a summer drought may have also affected soil nutrient concentrations.

As a result, growers should test their soil for nutrient availability following harvest to determine whether or not fertilizer is required before spring planting.

"Most growers test their fields to determine nutrient concentrations. We recommend testing every three years, so that growers over time get a feel for the natural variation of nutrient levels in the soil," said Watson. "This year is just more of a concern because of the extreme wet and dry conditions we encountered."

Watson said that varying soil conditions affect a plant's ability to uptake nutrients effectively. Under extreme wet conditions, the oxygen supply to the roots is limited, affecting the uptake of nutrients, even though the nutrients are present in sufficient concentrations. Under drought conditions, plants are unable to take up nutrients because of the lack of water flow to the roots and the lack of growth or slow growth of the plant.

"Because of this year's drought, it is possible not as much fertilizer will be needed by next year's crop on a field that was sufficiently fertilized this year. In addition, it is possible that not enough fertilizer was applied this year because of the very wet spring," Watson said. "Despite either condition, a soil test will determine whether or not nutrients are at their optimum levels."

Watson said growers should mainly test for phosphorus and potassium, the two main elements that can impact a plant's performance if they are in deficient levels.

"In a nutrient-deficient situation, the biochemical reactions are not going to be what they should be under normal conditions. You may get a reduction in protein formation, which is the main building block of the plant," said Watson. "A plant will tend to take some nutrient elements from the older leaf tissue and put it toward the younger leaves to compensate, particularly in the case of nitrogen or potassium deficiencies. As a result, you don't get the normal development of the plant and yield is then reduced."

Plants may also run into a nutrient imbalance if nutrient levels are too high in the soil.

Nutrient levels are also impacted by soil type (sandy soils have less of a reservoir for nutrients than clay or silt loam soils), as well as the type of crop being planted. For example, corn silage and alfalfa remove more potassium from the soil than grain crops.

Guidelines for choosing a quality soil-testing laboratory can be found online at http://ohioline.osu.edu/hygfact/1000/1133.html. More information on fertilizer and lime recommendations for corn, soybeans, wheat and alfalfa is available in the Tri-State Bulletin E-2567, which can be obtained from local county Extension offices or online at http://ohioline.osu.edu/e2567/.

Fair Time's Coming: Hundreds Get Ideas For Future Fairs

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania State Association of County Fairs and the Pennsylvania State Showmens Association combined to sponsor the 91st annual convention of fairs, an event that drew more than 1,700 people to Hershey Lodge and Convention Center, Hershey, recently.

During the conference, 19 county fair queens competed for the title of Pennsylvania State Fair Queen, with the coronation ceremony during Saturdays program.

The event also featured a trade show, talent showcase of various entertainment options for county fairs, spouses' programs, a ride safety session, educational seminars, and board meetings.

Additionally, 45-minute roundtable discussions enabled participants from various fairs to both give and receive ideas for their respective fairs.

Attendees presented their ideas about how to count attendees, or handle the media. Participants also learned about animal health regulations and changes in exhibiting livestock.

During the opening celebration Frank Oliveto, Recreation Management Associates, was the keynote speaker. Olivto discussed Motivating Your Board. Dennis Grumbine, Farm Show director, also made Farm Show presentations during the opening ceremony.

Education seminar topics included emergency disaster procedures, planning for the future of your fair, a certified food handlers course, or involving schools in the fair.

The Pennsylvania State Association of County Fairs and the Pennsylvania State Showmens organization each conducted their annual banquet during the conference.

Shirley Moyer set up an idea for an apiary display.

More than 100 attendees came to an educational session geared toward fair chairpersons/superintendents.

"We've done judges' schools for the past two years,' said school organizer Beverly Gruber. Consequently, this year's school offered a different slant, as fair leadership came to get ideas to take back to their own fairs.

Before the breakout sessions, Gruber, vice president of the Pennsylvania State Association of County Fairs and the competitive exhibit manager at four fairs, gave an overview of competitive exhibits.

Peggy Lipinski, associate secretary of competitive exhibits at the Schaghticoke Fair, Rensselaer County, N.Y., followed her. Both women have presented all over the nation and Canada for the International Association of Fairs and Expositions (IAFE).

"What purpose or function do competitive exhibits have?" asked Gruber. "People like to compete. It's a way to showcase their talents, and it gives fair-go'ers a look at the best of the best."

Gruber advised building morale within the volunteer ranks by conducting picnics or a Christmas party. "They have to think of themselves as a group," she said.

To increase entries, she recommended advertising a day care, summer camps, boy or girl scouts, flower and garden clubs, retirement home, or doing in-store (such as fabric businesses) promotions.

Adding new categories, such as diabetic foods, window boxes, or having an essay contest may also give renewed interest to a fair, according to several suggestions from the audience.

Besides changing the entry categories, Gruber suggested that in lieu of plaques or banners, fairs could give away crocks, chairs, gifts, or jackets.

Another change may be the layout of the displays. "Conceptualize new layouts without straight lines and tables, she said, keeping in mind the usual path of travel.

To get press coverage, she suggested offering newspapers features ideas and keeping handy a list of good contacts for possible interviews for interested media personnel.

"Fairs are rural razzle dazzle," said Gruber. "Believe in the concept of agricultural fairs, have a good attitude, keep current, think out of the box, and dedicate yourself to putting together the best fair that you possibly can."

Peggy Lipinski discussed education and participation ideas. Lipinski hoped to help fair leadership take their department to a new level — "make it a tool to educate and entertain your fair-go'ers," she said.

Competitive exhibits can also become a means for the public to be participants in your fair, she said. "If the majority if your fair-go'ers are not exhibitors, then we need to find a way to get the non-exhibiting public involved in the competitive exhibits. People now expect a lot of flash and activity. They also want to be a part and doing something," said Lipinski.

Her ideas for activating a static display is to add a person with tools to produce items, allow people's choice awards, conduct judging seminars, have the judges explain criteria the judging process, have handouts ready, conduct tasting, feeling contests, involve the public in making an item (butter churning), identify tools and their uses, have childrens crafts, and allow them to display them.

A few specific ideas for the fruits, vegetables, and flower departments are to decorate pumpkins or make vegetable items, have the fair-go'ers guess the weight of the pumpkins, identify kinds of apples and uses, seed plantings or pictures, construct a Mr./Mrs. Potato Head, identify herbs by small, make a corsage, or guess how many seeds in a jar.

For the clothing and needlework department, Lipinski suggested allowing people to crochet, knit, or quilt in a community item (and auction it off, she proposed), have rug braiding, or hooking demonstrations, and identify needles and their uses.

For photography and art departments, Lipinski's ideas included having a community painting available, perhaps by having an artist draw an outline and allowing participants to fill it in.

Inviting children to do drawings and then displaying them may also lead to the children becoming exhibitors in future years, she said. Fair-go'ers may also try judging selected photos that were not part of the regular competitive exhibits area.

In the food and baked goods department, participants could decorate cupcakes, build marshmallow structures, share recipes, and identify spices. Add sounds and smells, such as a bread making machine, she suggested.

"If you can get them involved in these activities, they can see how easy it might be to enter and will exhibit next year," she said.

In the breakout sessions participants were given ideas on how to best display variety of exhibits. Rainy Linn, Venango County, discussed foods, canned goods, and baked goods; Annie Clark, Tioga County, spoke about displaying clothing, needlework, and crafts; Don Fretz, Fayette County, presented about grains and hay; Shirley Moyer, Berks County, addressed apiary, wine, and nuts; Dawn Krautter, Wayne County, spoke about displaying fruits, vegetables, and flowers; and Pat Horstman, Washington County, discussed photography and art displays.

To display needlework and crafts, Annie Clark advised using, for example, Christmas trees to display holiday items, denim cloth to show off patriotic items, or a country/traditional red-and-white checked fabric to display needlepoint.

"The challenge is, how can we create exhibits using technology farmers are using on the 21st century farm," asked Don Fretz, grains and hay presenter.

The goal of displays is to educate, he said, using tools as simple, interactive signs such as a sign that explains a corn kernel and what is in it, or a display of which products need corn, wheat, etc.

Perhaps a display detailing how many boxes come from one bushel or corn, with corn displayed in bushels, would help educate the public, he said.

Fretz also spoke about a fair that used soy diesel in the tractor that transported fairgoers throughout the fairgrounds. The tractor carried a sign that described soy diesel.

To display photography, Pat Horstman suggested purchasing cheap fabric to fold, staple or tape underneath pictures to add interest and background.

Pennsylvania Fair Convention Sets Record

The 91st Annual Combined Convention of the Pennsylvania State Association of County Fairs and the Pennsylvania State Showmen's Association attracted a total of more than 1,800 people for the event which runs four days.

This makes it the largest convention in the history of the organization.

During the confernce officials conducted election of 2002-2004 PSACF officers. Elected to the office of president was Beverly Gruber, CFE, New Tripoli. Gruber is involved in four Pennsylvania fairs. She has been secretary/treasurer of PSACF for eight years and a board member for 22 years.

Elected as vice president is Lee

Robinson, McDonald, president of the Washington County Fair. Lee has served his fair for the past 40 years and was awarded the American Heritage Award by the International Association of Fairs and Expositions in 2002. In PSACF he has served on nearly every committee and has been a board member for 11 years.

Re-elected to the office of secretary/treasurer is Bruce Koppenhaver, CFE, Gratz, his his eighth year as PSACF Secretary/Treasurer. In 2002 he was awarded the Outstanding Association Secretary by the International Association of Fairs and Expositions.

The trade show at the convention was the largest ever, featuring 140 booths. The variety of displays included ribbon companies, musical entertainment, hand wash stations and racing pig shows.

The educational component of the convention included both seminars and 31 roundtables.

Two entertainment showcases were conducted. A total of 21 acts performed to a full house. Many fairs do the booking for their stages at this event.

The Pennsylvania State Showmen's Association also elected officers at their annual meeting during the convention. Elected to the office of president was James Daugherty, Connellsville. James is the owner-operator of carnival Fayette Amusements.

Elected to the office of vice-chair is the Eastern Chapter Chairman, Mary OJevich, Warrior Run, Pa. She and her husband operate jewelry concessions at fairs. Reappointed secretary is Beverly Gruber, New Tripoli, Donna Kramer, Reinholds, was also reappointed treasurer. Donna operates food and games concessions.

One of the highlights of the convention is the communication awards. A total of 147 entries were judged. This represented 39 fairs across the state. Fayette County was the Best of Show winner this year. John and Hazel Blaney, Perryopolis, served as committee chairs.

Two outstanding individuals are chosen each year to represent their organizations. The Fair Person of the Year was Lee Robinson, McDonald. The PSSA Showman of the Year was Jeanie Sieffert, Monroeville.

Elections, Entertainment Part Of Farm And Home Foundation's Meeting

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The 39th annual meeting of the Farm and Home Foundation of Lancaster County drew more than 100 guests to the banquet and subsequent meeting at the Farm and Home Center.

During the business meeting, officers conducted an election for new directors, who include Doris Bewley, Larry Groff, Lois Harnish, Jim Kettering, Robert J. Kindig, Lloyd Welk, and Paul M. Wolgemuth Jr.

Leon Ressler, director of Lancaster cooperative extension, updated the audience about the seven $1,000 scholarships that were awarded to several area students.

These scholarships, from the Farm and Home Center Foundation, are awarded for one year but can be renewed if the students maintain a 3.0 grade point average and stay in the agricultural or home economic-related major.

Besides the seven new scholarship winners, extensions were given to 14 previous scholarship winners. Applications for the next round of scholarships will soon be mailed to high school guidance counselors.

The application is also available by calling the Farm and Home Center's office at (717) 394-6851.

John Moose, foundation president, summarized the past year at the Farm and Home Center. Major building renovations were completed last winter and into spring as office space was moved or more office space was given to existing tenants.

The former conference room has now been changed to offices and a new conference room is located in the basement. The room includes phone and DSL hookup in meeting rooms that are available for rent for business meetings.

Landscaping projects for the grounds are also ongoing, and a new sign was added at the end of the road to help visitors find their way to the building.

Mark Cunningham, associate administrator of COBYS, gave the audience an overview of the organization.

The family service organization, said Cunningham, began in 1980 as Church of the Brethren Youth Services (COBYS) to help at-risk youth. Now the organization works with not only youth but also organizes foster care, has an adoption unit, and offers counseling and family life education. COBYS also operates a group home for teenage mothers.

We continue to look for good Christian foster homes willing to take children, Cunningham said. Last year the organization helped 100 children with the foster care program.

A new adoption program finalized 22 adoptions last year. Three full-time caseworkers are in the adoption department.

In addition, six girls reside in the group home at one time, said Cunningham.

COBYS also takes their family life education to schools and workplaces, teaching skills for parents.

Businesses, churches, grants, and the county fund the organization.

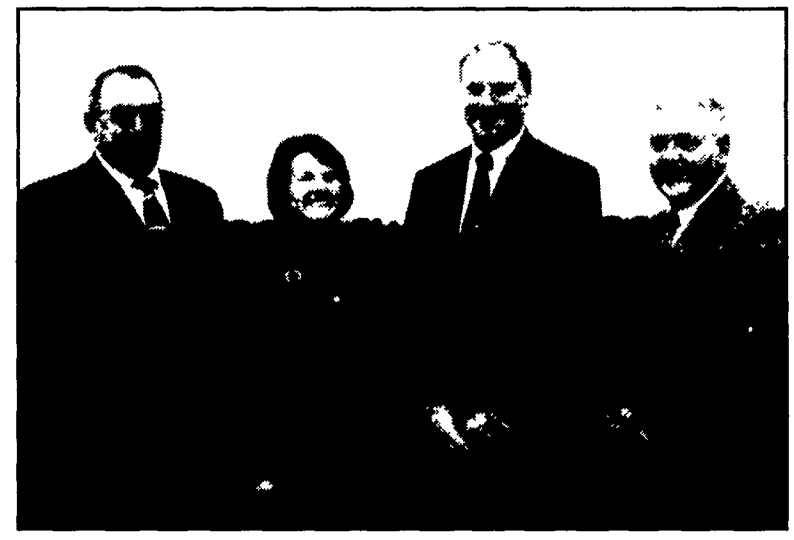
The Farm and Home Center is a multipurpose facility that houses such organizations as the Lancaster County Cooperative Extension, USDA, Natural Resource Conservation Service Lancaster County Conservation District, and Brentwood Builders.

Since opening in 1968, the building has hosted about 35,000 meetings conducted by a wide variety or organizations.



Officers completing their terms include J. Robert Kindig Jr., vice president; Linda Esbenshade, secretary; John Moose, president; and Paul Wolgemuth, treasurer.

Mount Joy Co-Op Honors Members At Annual Meetings

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Mount Joy Farmers Co-op conducted annual meetings for dairy producer members this week, with leaders reporting a positive year for the co-op in 2002.

The banquet meetings took place Tuesday and Wednesday at Yoder's Restaurant, New Holland, and East Fairview Church of the Brethren, Manheim.

Manager Dale Hershey reported producer members shipped 540,032,999 pounds of milk, up 7.2 percent from the previous year. Milk prices dropped to an average of $13.65 per hundredweight — $2.46 lower than 2001 levels.

The co-op signed on 36 new producer/members last year. With a number of members also selling their herds in 2002, the co-op totaled 327 members at the year's end — a net gain of six members.

Hershey said milk price projections for the first months of 2003 show little change. Higher prices in later months, however, should bring the year's average prices up about $1 a hundredweight, he said.

Member equity in the co-op continues to decrease, with average equity standing at $1,727, or 66 percent less than that invested by members five years ago.

That's a positive trend, according to Hershey. "It's not our goal to have a lot of your money tied up in the co-op," he told members.

Hershey pointed out a decrease of 2 cents per hundredweight in the net costs of running the co-op, an improvement largely brought by lower milk-hauling costs. New fuel storage capacity has allowed the co-op to save on bulk fuel purchases.

Milk production in the co-op is expected to go up this year, both from current members shipping more and from new farmers joining, according to Hershey.

"Prospects look good for the coming year," he said. "As of January 1, production levels have really taken off."

The co-op projects an increase this year of at least 4 percent in pounds of milk shipped.

Mount Joy Co-op recognized a number of producers for good management and milk quality.

Lawrence Z. Good of Womelsdorf, Berks County, received the superior management award for 2002.

Sixty-two producers were honored for receiving 12 consecutive months of quality premiums. Sixteen of these also aced at least one inspection during the year, entitling them the co-op's "inspection honor roll." These 16 were Lester B. Weaver, Lawrence Z. Good, Leon S. Lauver, Leroy H. Hoover, Paul E. Horning, Reinford Farms, Amos F. Stoltzfoos, Lester Z. Nolt, Kenneth L. Balmer, Kenneth L. Harnish, Jay L. Wise, Walnut Run Farms, Jason E. Glick, Samuel S. Stoltzfus, Gerald C. Neal, and Marlin S. Lauver.

Other speakers included Don Risser, president of the co-op, Brett Rigby of the Mid-Atlantic Dairy Association, and John Siglow of Dairy Marketing Services (DMS), the agency formed in a joint marketing venture between Dairylea and Dairy Farmers of America cooperatives.

DMS handles all of Mount Joy Co-op's milk marketing, along with that of a number of other, smaller member co-ops and independent co-ops.

Siglow said that DMS supports a $1.50 over-order Class I premium for milk produced, processed, and sold in Pennsylvania. DMS made the request at a hearing this week before the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board (PMMB).

DMS is also asking the PMMB to review its proposal that the premium be pooled statewide.

Herefords Compete In Open Breeding Show

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — In the Farm Show's open Hereford Beef Breeding Show, "we had classes with depth down 3-4 deep at least — that's what a breed is interested in," said show judge Jim Gilooly.

"I'm as optimistic about the future of this breed as I've ever been. They fit into a commercial program so well, with their structure and their hardiness.

"I think it is a good time to be a Hereford breeder."

Morgan is the daughter of Mike and Martene Firestine. Her sister, Margeaux, also exhibits Herefords.

The family also took home the premier breeder and exhibitor honors of the open Hereford show. In addition, Morgan exhibited the reserve junior champion homebred Hereford. Thirty head of cattle are at home on the Firestines' operation.

Morgan has spent eight years exhibiting animals and has eight years of experience showing animals at the Farm Show.

In the open show, grand champion status went to a bull owned by C.J. Furlong, Mount Joy, C.J. Cattle Company; Maple Spring Farms, Jonestown; and Calloway Farms, Seaford, Del.

Furlong exhibited three breeds of cattle during the Farm Show, including 15 Herefords. He also operates a fitting service.

Furlong was also the breeder of Morgan Firestine's grand champion heifer.

Jim Gilooly, Washington, Ind., was the judge of the show. Gilooly produces purebred Angus and polled Herefords on his farm, besides seed corn.

He graduated from Purdue University and got his master's degree from Penn State. He has judged national shows for 12 breeds and several national junior shows.

Morgan Firestine's heifer took home the champion open and junior breeding beef show titles. Morgan is joined by Jen Shultz, Pennsylvania Hereford Princess.

4-H And FFA Teams Compete In Farm Safety/Health Bowl

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Four 4-H and four FFA teams competed in the Farm Safety and Health Quiz Bowl at the 2003 Pennsylvania Farm Show.

The team members had first competed at their summer state achievement days. A few weeks later, the top eight teams went on to compete in the semi-finals at the Penn State Ag Progress Days.

The competition culminated with the finals at the Farm Show. Teams of four competed against one another, answering questions about equipment, weather, animal safety, fire safety, and general safety on the farm.

Cumberland County was this year's champion in the 4-H division. The team consisted of Levi Smith, a junior at Big Springs High School; Megan Kurtz, a senior at Shippensburg High School; Morgan Creek, a sophomore at Big Springs High School; and Sara Gutshall, a senior at Big Springs. Kris Speers coached the team.

According to Smith, the team practiced extensively before the contest. "We have been practicing since the summer, about once or twice a month to prepare. It is very gratifying to see all our hard work pay off."

The runner-up in the 4-H division was Potter County. Third place honors were claimed by Huntington County, who lost the semifinal game to the champions. Fourth place was Clearfield County.

In the FFA competition, it was the team from Mifflinburg FFA that was victorious. Mifflinburg built a strong lead in the first round and maintained that advantage throughout the rest of the contest, finally winning in a close match, 140-125.

Second place went to West Snyder FFA, third place to Selinsgrove FFA, and fourth place to Manheim FFA.

In one of his last official duties as Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture, Sam Hayes was on hand for the awards presentation.

Hayes congratulated the teams on making it to the state finals and on the hard work that it took to accomplish that. He also thanked the parents and coaches of the teams and concluded his remarks by reminding everyone to have a "safe and fun 2003 Farm Show."

USDA Urges Farmers to Begin Early Farm Bill Sign-Up

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Concerned about the slow pace of sign-up for major farm programs under the 2002 Farm Bill, top USDA officials are urging producers to begin the process quickly to ensure timely distribution of benefits and to avoid long lines and delays next year.

"We are hopeful that the extensive outreach, education and training USDA has conducted throughout the country will enable producers to quickly focus on signing up for programs," said U.S. Ag Secretary Ann Veneman.

Undersecretary JB Penn said, "If producers are putting forth a New Year's resolution, we hope it is to understand the importance of signing up early."

He said that late harvest in many parts of the country as well as the program changes in the law requiring more information from farmers are reasons for slow sign-up. USDA has developed new software, trained personnel, prepared new directives, and conducted education seminars to help move the process forward.

Pennsylvania Young Farmers To Host Winter Convention

LEWISBURG (Union Co.)—Pennsylvania young farmer members from across the Commonwealth will gather in Lewisburg to discuss social and economic elements which impact their future, as well as, their concern about agriculture as a way of life and the continual decline to Pennsylvania's number one industry.

The Young Farmers Association will host their annual winter convention February 4-6, at the Best Western/ County Cupboard in Lewisburg. While here members will conduct business meetings, attend educational workshops, recognize outstanding members in their association, tour local farms and areas of interest, and share in fellowship with other members of the agriculture community.

The convention will kick off on Tuesday morning at 10:00 a.m. with the first portion of the spokesperson for agriculture contest, a media blitz to be held at Weis markets on Route 15. Contestants will be judged on their interaction with consumers and members of the media while discussing Ag issues and answering questions asked of them. The PYFA will also select one lucky shopper and pay for the grocery items in their cart.

Tuesday afternoon will be spent touring the Wolfe's Power Line Dairy and Hackenberg Apiaries. In the afternoon the spokesperson contest will reconvene with the final portion of the competition, a 5-minute impromptu speech, followed by a 10 minute question and answer session. The entire contest will culminate in the evening when the winner is announced at the opening banquet.

While the delegates of the convention conduct their annual business meeting on Wednesday morning, the women will be having their own program including a craft demonstration by Linda Hackenberg, lunch at the Brookpark Bed and Breakfast, and shopping at Brookpart, The Roller Mills, and House of Shops. After lunch the men will participate in educational workshops on "Marketing—A Plan For Your Operation," "Survival of the Farmer," and "Feeding For Nutrient Management."

Wednesday evening at the awards banquet the highlight of the convention will be where individuals will be honored for their work in the agriculture industry. These individuals have dedicated themselves to the betterment of their farm businesses, their families, their communities, the young farmer organization, and the Ag industry as a whole.

The convention will end on Thursday at the closing luncheon, which will take place after a tour of the Boops Dairy Farm, Spanglers "Harmony Springs" dairy farm, and the Mifflinburg Buggy Museum.

New Cumberland County Ag Group To Canvas Farmers

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — Volunteer visitors will canvas about 100 of Cumberland County's farmers during January and early February in a survey to understand their concerns about agriculture.

The farm visitation program is sponsored by a new organization, the Future of Cumberland County Agriculture (FOCCA). FOCCA, originally started by the Penn State Cooperative Extension board in Cumberland County, is an alliance of citizens and representatives from various organizations who are concerned about the future of agriculture in the county.

FOCCA volunteers will visit the farms to conduct face-to-face surveys. These community leaders are being trained on how to conduct the survey, which will pinpoint farm needs, concerns, and development plans.

Farmers will be interviewed about a number of topics, including markets, availability of supplies, and development pressure. Those interviewed were selected from lists of farmers provided by local agencies.

Once the interviews are complete, Penn State faculty and Cumberland County community leaders will analyze the information and prepare an initial draft report for the FOCCA task force, including recommendations. Individual farm data will be kept confidential.

The FOCCA task force, made up of representatives from across the county, will use the report and a strategic planning process to develop an action plan for agriculture. Local implementation teams will then spearhead efforts to achieve the goals in the action plans. Farms, agribusinesses, other local businesses, and a variety of agencies may be drawn into the process by these teams.

According to County Extension Director Duane Duncan, FOCCA grew out of a study group that reviewed the challenges facing Cumberland County Agriculture, market and production trends, and possible solutions. A recent Penn State survey found that more than 40 percent of the county's farmers did not know whether their land would still be farmed in 10 years. Uncertainty means farmers will be hesitant about investment decisions they need to remain competitive, making them more likely in the long run to go out of business.

According to Duncan, FOCCA has several goals. In the short-run, the group hopes to provide community support for local farms, resolve immediate individual farm concerns, and increase the public's understanding of agriculture's role in the county.

Duncan said long-run goals include increasing the competitiveness of local farms and agribusinesses; sustaining a healthy local farm economy and improving the business climate; and implementing a strategic action plan to ensure the future of farming in Cumberland County.

During November, FOCCA sponsored three "Let's Talk" meetings attended by over 100 citizens and farmers. Concerns and opportunities raised at those meetings helped shape the farm visitation questionnaire being used across the county this month.

For more details about FOCCA, contact Duane Duncan at the Cumberland County extension office: (717) 240-6500.

Visitors Choose Top Winners In Farm Show Christmas Tree Contest

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Among many of the attractions at the Farm Show this year was a forest full of trees residing in the McClay Street Lobby of the Farm Show Complex.

This assortment of fine Fir, Pine and Spruces were all gathered to compete in the Christmas Tree Competition. Judging the contest was James Thomas, a resident of Bel Air, Md.

Darryl L. Bowersoy, Middleburg, exhibited the grand champion Christmas tree which was the first place winner in the Concolor Fir class. The reserve champion was the first place Fraser Fir of Paul Shealer, Auburn.

The two champions were chosen by the Farm Show visitors who cast their votes for the top two from the eight trees placing first in their classes. The winners will have the opportunity to exhibit at the national level during the 2004 convention scheduled to take place in Pennsylvania.

Thomas judged the 53 entries made by nineteen exhibitors based on competition guidelines. Trees must be between six and eight feet tall, grown exclusively in Pennsylvania, and compared on such categories as Foliage, Taper, Density, Handle, Color, Naturalness, and Damage/Defects, which could include crooked stems or holes.

Thomas scanned the trees looking for quality representations in each of eight classes. He also looked for debris like leaves and dead branches, along with insect damage that could mar the overall appearance of the tree.

The judge said that the trees should look "as natural as possible, and not too tight." He is an experienced tree grower and judge, critiquing trees in Maryland, North Carolina, and now Pennsylvania, and was a former Director of the National Christmas Tree Association.

Paul Shealer, a Christmas tree grower from Schuylkill County, told about what he likes to see in a Christmas Tree. "A good tree will have many places to hang ornaments." Additionally, he discussed the many color variations within a species, and differences in natural look when a tree has been excessively sheared compared to one that has been left untouched.

Shealer has had the honor of displaying his Christmas trees in Washington D.C. at the White House. This honor comes to those who exhibit and win at the National Christmas Tree Convention held once every two years. For Pennsylvania growers to make the trip to the National Convention, they must not only have winning trees in the eyes of the judge, but the public will be the final critics.

This year's class winners were:

Class 001: Scotch Pine - Tom & Audrey Balthaser, Millerstown.
Class 002: Douglass Fir - McClellans Tree Farm, Middleburg.
Class 003: Colorado Blue Spruce - Abrarzinskus Nursery, Catawissa.
Class 004: All Other Spruces - Quaker State Plantations, Bloomsburg.
Class 005: All Other Pines - Ron Huntzinger, Schuylkill Haven.
Class 006: Fraser Fir - Paul A. Shealer, Auburn.
Class 007: Canaan Fir & Other True Fir - Matesevac Christmas Trees, Elizabethtown.
Class 008: Concolor Fir - Darryll Bowersoy, Middleburg.

Dairy Managers, Others Attend Hispanic Workforce Management Conference

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — The Spanish-speaking workforce is growing rapidly on dairy farms and other agricultural operations in the area.

A common experience among farm managers is that Hispanics are loyal and hard-working, but tend to be reluctant when it comes to accepting supervisory roles.

That was one of the main topics addressed this week at a conference called "Managing the Hispanic Workforce" put on jointly by Penn State and Cornell Universities.

About 90 people attended, including dairy farmers, mushroom growers, and packing plant representatives.

Jorge Estrada, a native of Guatemala and president of a leadership development firm based in Washington state, was one of the speakers throughout the two-day conference. Estrada said that he has assisted in a variety of cases where Hispanics were successfully promoted into manager positions on North American farms.

"Yes, it is happening," Estrada said. He calls his program "Developing Supervisors from Within."

Herd expansions and the growth of the workforce are making it increasingly necessary for employees to step into supervisory roles, Estrada pointed out. Grooming workers for management positions can also allow greater flexibility in the farm operation and in lifestyles.

"Don't you want to have a family life? Don't you want some vacation time?" Estrada asked, naming some of the reasons for dividing management responsibilities on a farm operation.

Estrada and other speakers at the conference explored some of the cultural dynamics that can help or hinder in managing Hispanic workers and coaching potential leaders for supervisory roles.

Angelo Mino, a native of Ecuador, spoke on the high value placed by many Hispanic workers on their families, native country, and beliefs. He urged employers to welcome, respect, and support Hispanic workers by connecting in these areas, and by providing them with constant learning opportunities.

Jorge Estrada helps farm managers groom Spanish-speaking employees for supervisory roles.

"If you want to keep me forever working for you, create a challenge for me," said Mino, president of Summit Counseling Services, Lenexa, Kan.

Other speakers included Thomas Maloney and David Grusenmeyer of Cornell, Richard Stup and Vinton Smith of Penn State, and attorneys who spoke on handling naturalization issues with Hispanic workers.

More reports on the conference and on Hispanic workers on dairy farms is scheduled for Lancaster Farming's Feb. 15 issue of Dairy Plus.

Program Provides Market Opportunities

PHILADELPHIA—Farm to City has launched its 2003 direct marketing programs. This Philadelphia-based organization connects farmers to customers through farmer's markets, CSAs, and its Winter Harvest program. Last year, Farm to City's programs resulted in more than half a million dollars in sales by southeast Pennsylvania and south Jersey producers.

Farmer's Markets. This year Farm to City plans to operate 10 farmers's markets located in neighborhoods throughout Philadelphia. These outdoor markets will start in late May and early June and run weekly through October, some into November. Several are established markets needing specialty growers. Others are new markets this year seeking vegetable grower and orchards. Farmers come to these markets to sell what they produce.

Some of the markets will follow the example of the very successful Girard and 13th Street market that matched produce growers with a barbecue stand. This year, if all goes as planned, there will be five locations for this type of market and there is room at all of them for vegetable growers and orchards.

Bob Pierson, program director of Farm to City, observes, "the smell of chicken cooking in a neighborhood is a very strong draw. Our Girard and 13th Street market is the most successful market we have ever opened in Philadelphia." Pierson has planned and operated 14 farmers markets since 1996.

One of the markets in West Philadelphia and another in Germantown offer indoor space year-round in addition to an outdoor market during the warmer months. These markets need producers growing a wide range of fresh and prepared foods to sell year-round.

•CSA services. Farm to City also offers support to CSA farmers to help them get a following in Philadelphia. "When we got started in 2000," Pierson said, "there were very few CSA shares sold in Philadelphia because it was very difficult for farmers to market them." In 2001, Farm to City helped farmers sell 240 shares; last year 313 shares were sold, more than 10 times the number of shares delivered before 2000.

•Winter Harvest. "Right now, it's Winter Harvest time," said Pierson. Winter Harvest is a buying club in which its members order from a list of 220 locally-produced items for weekly delivery to eight Philadelphia-area communities. "Winter Harvest is a way for all that good food from nearby farms to come into the city when the farmer's markets and CSAs are shut down for the season," Pierson said. About 20 producers participate in Winter Harvest.

Farm to City is cooperating with the Pennsylvania Association of Sustainable Agriculture, FoodRoutes, and Philadelphia food advocacy groups on a "Buy Local, Buy Fresh" campaign, which will be applied to farmer's markets, CSAs, and sales to restaurants this spring and summer.

PASA board member Paul Hauser points out the virtues of his peaches to customers at the South and Passyunk Farmers' Market in Philadelphia.

Large dairies often require a huge labor force. How do dairies deal with communication management issues involving Hispanic labor? What are the challenges other producers have faced and what are their suggestions? See the next issue of Lancaster Farming's Dairy Plus, geared toward large-scale dairy operations, in the Feb. 15 issue. Also scheduled: news from the Penn State Hispanic Workforce Management Conference and what's required for the survival of the Northeast dairy industry.

Dairylea, DFA, State Grange Ask For $1.50 Over-Order Premium

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A dairy representative testified Monday before the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board (PMMB) in favor of maintaining the over-order premium at $1.50 per hundredweight from March through June for milk produced, processed, and sold in Pennsylvania.

Ed Gallagher, agricultural economics and milk marketing specialist, spoke on behalf of Dairylea Cooperative, Dairy Farmers of America's Northeast Council, Dairy Farmers of America's Mideast Area Council, Dairy Marketing Services, and the Pennsylvania State Grange.

On Dec. 4, 2002, the PMMB issued a general order which reduced the $1.65 per hundredweight over-order premium to $1.50 for January, $1.40 for February, $1.30 for March, and $1.25 for April through June 30. This order was the result of hearings conducted before the board on Nov. 6, 2002.

Gallagher testified that Class I prices are estimated to be 32 cents lower than were testified in November. "This is an additional 3 cents a gallon decline for consumers, on top of the 20 cent per gallon decline from 2001 price levels predicted at the November hearing," he said. "Today, we ask that you take action that will result in the milk marketing board's premium being increased, at most, by 25 cents per hundredweight. Even with this increase, retail milk prices will be 47 cents per hundredweight, or 3 cents per gallon, lower than I had anticipated in November.

"Pennsylvania's milk production continues to decline," Gallagher said, "The Southeastern United States continues its trend of declining milk production as well. The over-order pricing agency in the Southeastern U.S., Dairy Cooperative Marketing Agency (DCMA) has maintained strong premiums, and during February will be increasing them . . .In Ohio, Class I premiums under the Mideast Milk Marketing Agency (MEMMA), are scheduled to be increased 5 cents per hundredweight to $1.60."

Gallagher compared plants in Ohio and Pennsylvania and showed that the blended premium to an Ohio plant would be $1.20 and the blended premium to a Pennsylvania plant would be $1.27. This shows a spread in favor of the Ohio plant of 7 cents relative to premiums. In December, the same calculation would have shown a spread of 23 cents in favor of the Ohio plant, according to Gallagher.

"Clearly, the actions on the part of the milk marketing board and MEMMA have mitigated premium price differences between Ohio and Pennsylvania."

Gallagher said that, in some cases, this spread is causing Pennsylvania milk to be shipped across the border to Ohio warehouses. When this milk is packaged and then distributed back into Pennsylvania there is an added cost of almost 83 cents per hundredweight, he noted.

Satellite Program To Help Beaver County Residents

BEAVER (Beaver Co.)—Ponds can provide many recreational benefits to homeowners, but they have their share of problems, according to a water resources specialist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Some may develop leaks or fill with sediment," said Extension Associate Bryan Swistock. "The water may be muddy or choked with weeds and algae. And sometimes that big fish you hoped would be there for the kids to catch just doesn't materialize."

To address the basics of pond management, experts from Penn State, the Pennsylvania Fish and Boat Commission, and Mansfield University will offer a live satelite clinic from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Feb. 27. The program will be aired locally at the Penn State Beaver Campus at the Lab Classroom Building, Monaca. Local programming will begin at 6:45 p.m.

Swistock recommends that people who own a pond develop a management strategy. "How you manage your pond depends on your goals," he said. "People who want a pond for swimming, for instance, usually want a clean, sandy bottom without many weeds. But if you want a good fishery, you'll need some plants and structures."

During the program, the experts will offer tips and advice on common pond problems and proper management. Attendees will be able to ask questions by telephone.

The clinic is free, but preregistration is required. To register for the satellite program or for more information on pond management, contact the Beaver extension office (724) 774-3003.

Potato Meeting Set For Cambria County

EBENSBURG (Cambria Co.) — The annual Cambria County winter potato meeting will take place Tuesday, Feb. 11 at the United Church of Christ in Ebensburg. The event will begin at 9 a.m. and conclude at 3 p.m.

Speakers scheduled for the meeting include Dr. Bill Lamont of Penn State, Dan Sharrets of Snyder's Potato Chips, Kelly Ritchey of Pennylvania Farm Bureau, Sara Mahoney of Penn State, and Lou Kopczyk from the Cambria County Conservation District, Dolly Little of Cambria Co. New Major — Zoo Science — At Delaware Valley College

DOYLESTOWN (Bucks Co.)—Delaware Valley College announced it will offer a bachelor of science degree in zoo science, effective August 2003.

The only degree program of its kind in the eastern U.S., the zoo science major will be offered through the college's Animal Biotechnology and Conservation Department. DelVal offers the major in collaboration with the Elmwood Park Zoo in Norristown.

"This is an exciting partnership that is central to the development of future conservationists," said Dr. Gary Fortier, chair of the Animal Biotechnology and Conservation Department. "Students will benefit from the relationship, because we both share a common mission centered on education and both strive to train conservationists through programs that focus on wildlife management and preservation."

The zoo science major combines a strong science education, conservation training, and internship experiences at an accredited zoological park. Students in the zoo science program will benefit from the diverse expertise offered by the staff at these two institutions and have the unique opportunity to work directly with zookeepers, curators, educators, and administrative personnel.

Core courses and basic science classes are taken at the college. Five specialized courses, including two internships, are taught at the zoo, providing hands-on experiences that are rarely available to students. Graduates of the program are well equipped for positions in zookeeping and conservation.

Students in the zoo science program will study all aspects of zoo science and conservation, including husbandry, handling, care, nutrition, disease, behavior, training, and software and data management. They will complete a one year, part-time internship at the zoo—one half is spent on animal husbandry and the other half is devoted to public education. The specialized requirements for the zoo science major include the following courses: introduction to zookeeping, wild animals in captivity, animal training and enrichment, animal record keeping systems, zoo internship I: animal care, zoo internship II: public education, zoo animal health and disease, and nutrition for exotic animals.

In addition, students take at least two specialized electives from ornithology, herpetology, mammalogy, and aquaculture. They also need three credits from the following courses: wildlife management, animal behavior, invertebrate zoology or entomology, basic design, livestock management, and reproduction and nutrition.

For more information about the zoo science program, call Dr. Gary Fortier, chair of the Department of Animal Biotechnology and Conservation, at (215) 489-4890.

Food Trust Expands Farmers' Market Program

PHILADELPHIA—A great opportunity for farmers to find new markets for their products is emerging as The Food Trust, an award-winning nonprofit organization, will expand its highly successful farmers market program next season.

The expansion will include participating farmers, sales, and regional market locations. From the farmers' perspective, the need for expansion is clear, as many farmers are looking for more market opportunities. The effort is beneficial to farmers and rural communities.

To respond to farmer's need for markets, the Food Trust has started a major farmer recruitment effort as part of a larger campaign to expand regional farmers' markets over the next two years. There is room for expansion, as currently less than one third of farmers participate in farmers' markets.

The primary barriers to market opportunities are information and logistics, with 59 percent of farmers not knowing how to find out about market sites, and almost half of all surveyed farmers believing that it takes too much time and effort to come to market. Despite the perceived obstacles, trips to market can be lucrative. 68 percent of farmers participating said that revenues at markets met their expectations, and 17 percent claimed that their revenues exceeded expectation.

Daily sales at markets average $650 per farmer, with some of the best farmers surpassing $1,000 per day in peak season. "It never did make sense for me the farmer to grow something and basically put most of the work in the product, to sell it to someone else and let them turn around and sell it for twice as much. I don't feel the marketing end takes that much work . . . if the farmer is going to grow it, he might as well direct-market it and get the full value . . ." claims one farmer.

Next season, The Food Trust plans to open four new markets in a variety of communities. In 2002, more than 30 farmers sold at 12 farmers' markets sponsored by The Food Trust in southeastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey. "Farmers are used to being out in the their fields. Now we have a generation of farmers who are coming on. Agriculture's changing so much that you have to start finding direct markets," commented one farmer who participates in markets.

Food Trust markets run from late May through November and operate for four to six hours at a variety of times throughout the day. The earliest markets start at 9 a.m. and all markets are closed by 7 p.m.

Passing On The Farm Workshop Feb. 19

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) Planning for your successor, or someone to take over your farm, is the most important task you need to complete if you want your farm to survive into the next generation.

Yet, according to some recent statistics, many farm families have not identified a successor for their family business or even talked to family members about what will happen to the farm when they die.

To assist you in this process, Pennsylvania Farm Link and Penn State Extension will hold a Passing on the Farm workshop at Kreider's Restaurant south of Manheim on Feb. 19, from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Farmers seeking ideas for successfully passing their farm to family members, or those interested in locating interested, unrelated farmers to take over an operation, should attend. Beginning farmers are also urged to participate to glean ideas for building their businesses. Topics covered will include bringing the next generation into the farm business, business planning for a farm transfer, financing for new farmers, crop insurance, estate planning and legal implications, and farmland preservation.

The workshop will conclude with a panel of local farmers discussing how they transferred their own farms.

Lunch will be served in the restaurant and reservations are required. Please mail payment of $10 per person to Pennsylvania Farm Link 2708 N. Colebrook Road, Manheim, PA 17545 no later than Feb. 10 to make your reservations. Contact Pennsylvania Farm Link at (717) 664-7077 if you have any questions. Kreider's Restaurant is located one mile south of Manheim on Rt. 72.

Distinguished DairyOne Producers From Chester County

BLUE BALL (Lancaster Co.) — DairyOne is conducting a series of meetings around the state to update dairy farmers on changes to herd recordkeeping since last year's merger with Pennsylvania DHIA. The meeting on Thursday at Shady Maple Restaurant also included award presentations to DairyOne members from Lancaster and Chester counties. Pictured here are Chester County producers, from left, David and Becca Lair, low SCC; Gideon Stoltzfus Jr., high protein; Edward Kulp, second low SCC; and Bob Peifer, fifth high protein.

More news from the meeting is scheduled for the Feb. 15 issue of Dairy Plus.

Extension's New Directors

away from farm communities, and rob farmers of their equity and retirement, they are evil. Each nation should have food sovereignty and be free to implement policies that work for their own farmers.

Thirdly, while Bailey is correct that import issues are complex, that is no excuse not to explain them in lay terms. The tanker load illustrations attempt to do this. No one making these illustrations has claimed that all of this milk is arriving in tankers. The illustrations concern how much domestic milk is being displaced by imports. Actually, to say that we don't import tankerloads of milk is incorrect. A significant number of tanker-loads of farm milk do cross the border from Canada.

One thing is clear: dairy farmers are suffering unjustifiably and are hurting too deeply to be pacified by lame excuses. Hopefully Bailey will be sincere in his research. But until farmers get a just and adequate price for their milk, there will likely continue to be "scathing editorials."

Dandie says... We've Got Great Corn Hybrids Too!

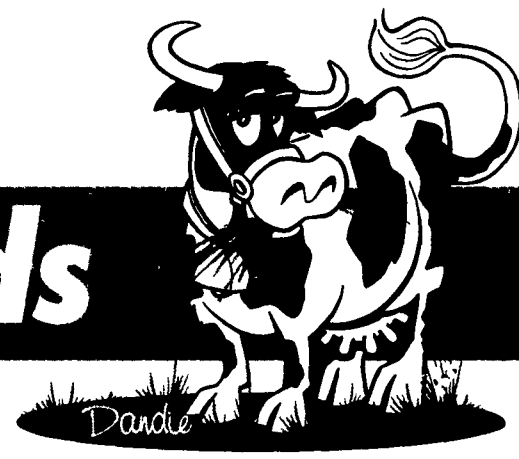
Grain & Silage Hybrids



Three Locally Proven Hybrids!

BALDRIDGE 567

115 days. A great performer. Impressive grain and silage hybrid. My neighbor says, "BH567 has done just as well as the best Doebler's or Pioneer hybrids I've ever had."

- High Yields
- Excellent Standability
- Great Disease Resistance
- Nice Big Ears

MASTER'S CHOICE 615

- High Sugar Content
- Excellent Digestibility
- Very Low Lignin Content
- High Protein Grain

BALDRIDGE 705

120 days. Very high tonnage silage hybrid We get lots of good comments on BH 705 One custom silage operator in the Mifflintown area said it was the best corn he'd cut in 2002.

- High Silage Yields
- Great Stress Tolerance
- Large Diameter Stalk
- Low Lignin Content

Call us or your local dealer for info on shorter season hybrids.

51 Contestants Gather For Pennsylvania Fair Queen Pageant

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Last weekend at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center 51 contestants vied for the Pennsylvania Fair Queen title.

Cassandra (Cassie) Hay, representing the Somerset County Fair, was selected to reign over Pennsylvania's 114 fairs. Named first runner-up was Jamie Jo Orcutt, Clearfield County Fair.

Each of the 51 contestant had been a first place winner at a local fair where more than 375 women competed.

During final competition, contestants needed to present a 3 to 5 minute speech about "Why You Should Come To My Fair."

Five finalists selected from the 51 contestants included the following: Jamie Orcutt, Clearfield County Fair; Christie Regula, Fayette County Fair; Carla Martin, Manheim Community Farm Show; Cassandra (Cassie) Hay, Somerset County Fair; and Ashliegh Gardner, West Lampeter Fair.

Finalists on stage needed to answer an impromptu question: "If the legislators threatened to shut off funds for your fair, how would you convince them to continue funding?"

Cassie Hay's answered, "Fairs are an American tradition for the

Sarah Ann Leonard Reigns As Virginia Dairy Princess

GAY BROWNLEE
Virginia Correspondent

STAUNTON, Va. — Sarah Ann Leonard's wide smile on January 22 was every bit as magnetic and engaging as the glistening tiara placed on her tresses at the 2003 Virginia State Dairy Princess Coronation, where she won the title and Ashley Shifflett was named the alternate Virginia dairy princess.

Leonard had performed a skit entitled "Joe Moola," and later commented: 'It's hard doing this in front of your friends. It's easier to embarrass yourself in front of strangers."

But, then turning serious, she added, "I enjoy living on a dairy farm and promoting (the dairy industry)."

Most shocking for the 17-year old Liberty High School junior is the statistic that 70 percent of teenage girls do not get enough calcium in their daily diets.

Perhaps her official influence as Virginia dairy princess, coupled with her position of president of the Virginia Junior Holstein Association can help to reverse the unhealthy trend.

Leonard is the fourth generation involved with the family's dairy operation and says very affectionately of the black and white cows: "I love my Holsteins." Then added that she also loves her Brown Swiss.

She believes that to make an impact for the dairy industry the dairy message must reach young people.

"I want to target the youth market to increase milk and dairy product consumption and make it a habit early in life," she said.

Leonard has gone to state and national 4-H Dairy Quiz Bowl, is active in 4-H dairy club, FFA, and shows dairy cows. She had been a dairy maid for two years.

Additionally she is active in high school cross-country, lacrosse teams, and at the Methodist church she attends.

Jeff and Patty Leonard of Midland are her parents. Her sisters Elizabeth and Katy are also dairy maids in Fauquier County.

Ashley Shifflett is the 15-year-old daughter of Larry and Susie Shifflett. The family operates a 200-cow dairy in Fort Defiance. In addition to participating in 4-H dairy club, and FFA, Shifflett is a member of the Virginia Junior Holstein Association dairy judging (she won a national title in FFA dairy judging), dairy bowl, high school forensics, and soccer, and the Methodist church.

Raechel Kilgore, Pennsylvania Dairy Princess, and Dusti Vanderwende, Delaware State Dairy Princess, attended the pageant.

Dairy maids recognized and presented awards are Kallie Barnard, Sarah Barnard, Jamie Kerr, Lindsay Bariker, Amelia Co.; Cassandra Philips, Kelly Skeen, Michelle Skeen, Billie Jo Swope, Augusta Co.; Molly Brathwaite, Casey Canterbury, Beth Dickey, Leslie Hardesty, Maggie Long, Amanda Mackintosh, Megan Mackintosh, Keely McCall, Riley McCall, and Victoria Russell, Clarke County.

Culpepper County dairy maids receiving awards are Kelly Mayhugh, Stacy Mayhugh, and Esther Smith; Fauquier County, Elizabeth Leonard, Katy Leonard, Amanda Messick, and Stephanie Messick; Floyd County, Ciera Sowers; Frederick County, Kristen Windle; Rockbridge County, Jennifer Leech; Rockingham County, Sarah Joseph, Rosemary Liskey, Kathryn Liskey, Kelsey Morris, Veronica Paulson, Charlotte Will, and Jenny Will.

From Smyth County is Hillary Overbay; Tazewell County, Alana Osborne, Allison Osborne, and Ashley Rubush.

Judges for the contest were Lisa Perrin, member services of Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers and a former New York state dairy princess; Julie Linton, a W.Va. dairy princess coordinator, and a former West Virginia state princess; Patsy Props, Augusta County poultry specialist and a farm manager.

Judges' responsibility was to choose the candidate who best combined the elements of dairy industry knowledge, speaking ability, poise, personality and appearance.

Special guests were Raechel Kilgore, the Pennsylvania state dairy princess, Dusti Vanderwende, Delaware state dairy princess; and Jennifer Potts, Miss Virginia.

In a farewell speech, Joanie Will recapped appearances she had made as the 2002 princess. State princess Lindsey Potts (1999) presented a 2002 Royalty slide show.

Coordinators for the Virginia Dairy Princess Program are Marty Potts and Laura Jackson.

present and future generations that must be preserved because of the importance to families and agriculture."

Cassie's speech was a skit in which she portrayed a detective investigating why so many people attended the Somerset County Fair instead of watching television. In the investigation she detailedall of the exhibits, and other areas of her fair, and told of the importance of agriculture. While giving all the reasons about "Why You Should Come to My Fair," she discovered what FAIR stood for. F — Family Fun; A — Activities; I — I need to get involved; R — Rewards.

When Cassie introduced herself at the Friday evening event, she said, "Whether faced with a tragedy or a miracle, or simply making memories at the fair, Somerset countians are just ordinary people doing extra-ordinary things."

Cassie is the 18-year-old daughter of Larry and Gale Hay, Berlin. She lives on High Manor Farm, which has a Seminole cow/calf operation. Her farm will achieve Century Farm status in 2004. Cassie is majoring in communications at the University of Pittsburgh at Johnstown.

Cassie received the Student Leadership Award and was name the Elk's Student of the Month as an honor roll student at Berlin Brothersvalley High School. Cassie was elected president of the class of 2002, competed in district forensics, and was captain of both the varsity soccer team and cheerleading squad. She also performed with "Plus One," chorus, and the band.

Cassie was a runner-up in the 2002 Pennsylvania Outstanding Young Woman Contest. She was Pennsylvania's representative to National 4-H Congress last April. She also went to California as part of a 4-H Exchange Student Program and has showed hogs at the Somerset County Fair for six years.

Cassie's 4-H public speaking experience helped her win the title of Somerset County Fair Queen. She has been employed at Hillside Shooting Range, Laurel Mountain Tax Agency and Maggie Mae's Neighborhood Cafe.

Cassie volunteers at the county fair, Bible School, as well as Ag Progress Days and many other 4-H events. She enjoys fishing, swimming and spending time with her family and friends.

As state fair queen, Cassie receives a $1,500 scholarship. The alternate receives a $300 scholarship.

Anjuli Taunk from Unionville Community Fair was selected Miss Congeniality by her peers and was awarded a set of luggage.

In her farewell speech, Jacqueline Pratt, 2002 PA Fair Queen, spoke of her experiences during her year-long reign. Pratt said the experience made her a better person and changed her life's goals. Previously she planned to enter the medical field like her father. Instead she decided to attend Penn State University to study communications and agriculture. She thanked the fair board, her family, former Secretary of Agriculture Sam Hayes, and her coordinator Sarah Long for helping make memories for a lifetime.

The Queen Coronation was held in conjunction with the Pennsylvania State Association of County Fairs and the Pennsylvania State Showmen's Association Annual Convention.

More than 1,100 people attended the evening gown competition prior to Fairman's Banquet on January 25. The coronation luncheon had more than 850 in attendance. Master of Ceremonies was Jere Gish of WGAL TV.

Judges for the two-day event were Mike Firestine, Fulton Bank, Lebanon; Becky Brashear, CFE The Great Frederick Fair, Maryland; and Helen Karchner, Ursinus College, Collegeville.

On Being a Farm Wife

Sit!

Stay!

Don't you dare come out of that hole in the ground.

This message is a public service announcement for the general groundhog population of the area, of anticipation of tomorrow's holiday.

Do not, repeat, DO NOT, come out of your burrow. DO NOT see your shadow. DO NOT cause us to have six more weeks of winter.

Fat chance that'll work.

Then again, what can it hurt?

Winter this year—not the official calendar-date start of the season but the actual nasty, bitter weather—blasted in a good four or five weeks sooner than most years. We've had rain storms, sleet, nor'easters, southwesters, snow squalls, 10-inch-snow blankets, light ice, heavy ice, and pipes frozen that haven't seen ice in several years. Doesn't it stand to reason that we could hope (plead, maybe?) for it to break earlier than usual as well?

So we don't want to take any chances with groundhogs seeing their shadows and scooting, scared-stiff, back to bed until mid-March.

This is all quite in contrast to just a year ago, brought back to mind vividly one day last week. In the midst of tossing stacks of old newspapers onto one of the heifer pens bedding pack, a headline caught my eye. The chuckle I got from it countered my shivering while pausing to ponder the big, bold newsprint letters.

"Groundhog or no, we need some snow," pleaded the area publication quickly snagged before it sailed into the midst of the weaned calves, gleefully kicking their heels while they raced through the layer of freshly-tossed paper. Warnings were already going out early last February, regarding the dire straits of the ground moisture conditions around the region, and the drought potential for the upcoming summer months.

Recall, too, that temperatures for last January averaged—averaged!—36 degrees, which is some 5 degrees above the normal average for the first month of the year. And, like the January of 2001 before that, remained practically barren of moisture, either rain or the more seasonal snowfalls.

So, here we are, a year later, having bid farewell to a January of extended, prolonged deep-freeze living, accessorized with the likes of burst water lines, stalled vehicles, multiple vehicle skid-slide-crash pileups, Minnesota-like-ice-fishing conditions and rapidly disappearing stacks of firewood.

So, consider this: what groundhog in its right little mind would even consider poking a furry face out of its nice, snug, no-wind-chill-effect, underground burrow?

But, just in case one would make an attempt to stagger out of hibernation to encounter a scary shadow, let's not take any chances.

So, please join our Six-More-Weeks-Of-Winter, Anti-Groundhog, Stomping Session.

Go find your nearest groundhog hole and stomp several big chunks of ice down in as far as you can shove it without getting lodged in there with a family of furry rodents.

Do it today. Tomorrow may be too late.

Ladies Day Program Set For Pa. Holstein Convention

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Ladies Day program has been set for the PA Holstein Convention in Bethlehem on February 20.

The Ladies Program will begin a short distance from the Holiday Inn, at the Hotel Bethlehem, with morning snacks and beverages. After the official welcome, the ladies program will move to the Moravian Museum of Bethlehem. The museum is located in the 1741 Gemeinhaus (Community House), the oldest building in Bethlehem and a National Historic Landmark.

The group will congregate in the Terrace Room at the Hotel Bethlehem, after their historic tour, to take in the words of Dr. Leo Frangipane, who will be speaking on "Focusing on the Right Stuff."

Frangipane has been a practicing surgeon for almost a quarter of a century, sharing his life with patients who face disease, tough decisions, fear, anger, even death. Frangipane received a B.S. from St. Joseph's University and his M.D. from Temple University School of Medicine. He speaks nationally and internationally on issues of wellness, and is a consultant to healthcare organizations across the U.S.

A well-prepared luncheon prepared by the Hotel Bethlehem staff will provide the energy needed to complete the day for the ladies at the Holstein Convention. For the remainder of the afternoon ladies of the dairy industry will be set loose to "gaze" at the various small shops that line Main Street of Historic Bethlehem. Busses will be returning to the Gateway Convention Center at 3:30 p.m. and 4:30 p.m.

If you have questions about the Ladies Day Program, contact Andrea Semmel at (610) 799-3489.

A bevy of daffodils greets visitors at the Longwood Gardens Welcome Spring display, Jan. 18-April 11, featuring three acres of warm, colorful gardens under glass. Fragrant old-fashioned flowers, lush lawns and exotic plants flourish beneath glass roofs that keep winter at bay. Daily programs, including gardening and cooking demonstrations, children's Fun Days, and Sunday concerts, add to the charm of this wintertime refuge.

Longwood Gardens near Kennett Square is open every day from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. (6 p.m. in April). The Conservatory opens at 10 a.m. For information, call (610) 388-1000 or visit online at www.longwoodgardens.org.

Here we are again at the beginning of another new year. Did you make any resolutions this year? If you did, most likely your resolution had something to do with your health; eating better, getting in shape, or quitting smoking. If you did make a resolution, good for you. But if your motivation is already beginning to fade, or you haven't quite started on those resolutions yet, here is some information that may help you get motivated.

Motivation is needed to make any change in your life, whether in your job, hobbies, relationships or your lifestyle. Nutrition author, Anne Fletcher, M.S., R.D., along with Kathleen Zelman, M.P.H., R.D., spokeswoman for the American Dietetic Association, came up with some sound advice for getting, and more importantly staying motivated to make changes in your life. Here are 10 tips to help you with your motivation.

1. Choose successful role models. Find someone who has accomplished the same goal you are striving for. Learn how they dealt with setbacks, and they stayed motivated. Then apply it to your own life.

2. Get a motivational buddy. Find a friend, co-worker, or maybe your spouse that is working toward a similar change and support each other in your journey. Make use of phone calls, e-mail, and cards to share your successes and failures along the way.

3. Set realistic goals. Goals can be motivating, but they should be attainable. Setting unrealistic or extremely high goals can squelch your motivation.

4. Use humor. Try your best the majority of the time, but give yourself the freedom to laugh at yourself and your mistakes. Start anew right away; don't; think one or two mistakes will ruin all of your hard work, it won't.

5. Keep a diary or log. Writing down or tracking your habits, whether it's keeping track of what you eat or your physical activity, has proven to help people stay motivated. It acknowledges that these efforts are worthy of your time and attention.

6. Individualize your approach. A diet plan or exercise regimen that works great for a friend may not work for you. It is important to do what works for you—your lifestyle, your schedule, and your preferences.

7. Get active. Exercise will not only make you feel better physically, but will boost your self-esteem and help give you a positive outlook on life. This will make you more successful in the changes you are trying to accomplish.

8. Have a mantra or motivational motto. Find a quote or two that inspires you. Write it down and carry it with you. Read it when you are feeling vulnerable to help strengthen your resolve.

9. Make a list of rewards. Reward yourself along the way, not just when you reach your final goal. For example, reward yourself for every five pounds of weight lost, or for exercising regularly for two weeks. Only you know what would be the best reward for yourself.

10. When frustrated, take inventory. If you make some progress, but it seems the sacrifices are not worth it anymore, make a list of all the positives and negatives of your journey. Remember how you felt before you started to make some progress toward your goal. Do you really want to go back to how you felt then? Chances are, probably not.

Motivation is the key to success to reach your New Year's resolution, or to make any changes in your life. Realize that no one can do everything perfectly all of the time, or stay 100 percent motivated all of the time. An occasional set-back or slip-up is normal. Just pick yourself up and continue on your journey. If it was too easy, you wouldn't have as much to celebrate when you successfully reach your goal.

Tasty Recipes For Better Health

By selecting the proper foods, especially five or more servings of fruits and vegetables a day, you can significantly reduce your risk of various types of heart disease and stroke.

Thanks to research, carrots, onions, garlic, cucumbers, and many other vegetables taste better and contain more nutrients than ever before. In fact, today's carrots pack more than twice the beta carotene as their predecessors did 30 years ago.

Nutrition information can be a lot more complex than most people realize. And that's especially true when talking about fats in the diet.

People seem to have gotten the message that "fat is bad for you," but it's not that simple.

For example: Most people believe milk fat is bad. However, more and more evidence is being uncovered about the healthy effects of conjugated linoleic acid, or CLA — a type of fat in milk.

Some studies indicate that CLA could reduce the risk of breast, prostate and colon cancer. There are indications that CLA could help reduce the accumulation of body fat. While each finding seems to raise even more questions, one thing is clear: News about milk fat, like that of other fats, is far from simple.

What to do? It might help to go back to basics: Maintain a healthy body weight. Exercise regularly. Don't smoke, and if you drink alcohol or consume "empty calories," do so in moderation.

Eat a balanced diet: Plenty of vegetables and fruits should accompany your entrees and snacks. There's no need to avoid any one food, as long as it's consumed in moderation.

Featured Recipe

"Eat 5 or more a day," is the battle cry of the Produce for Better Health Foundation and the National Cancer Institute. The slogan refers to five servings daily of fruits and vegetables to reduce the risk of cancer, heart disease, and other illnesses.

Cancer, heart disease, and stroke are three leading causes of death in this county. All three are diet-related due to diets too high in fat and too low in fruits and vegetables.

People who eat five a day have half the risk of developing cancer as those who eat only one-two servings a day. In fact, more than one-third of the 500,000 cancer deaths each year could be prevented by eating a diet rich in fruits and vegetables.

Research shows that phytochemicals, a natural plant substance found in fruits and vegetables, works with nutrients and dietary fiber to protect against disease, and may help slow the aging process and reduce the risk of many other diseases such as high blood pressure, cataracts, and urinary infections.

Many people ask, "What is a serving?"

A serving is smaller than you think. One serving can be 1 medium-size piece of fruit; ¾ cup of 100 percent fruit or vegetable juice; ½ cup cooked or canned vegetables or fruit; 1 cup raw leafy vegetables, ½ cup cooked dry peas or beans; or ¼ cup dried fruit.

Here are some suggestions for meeting your 5-A-Day right away:

• 45-Second Fruit Salad: Open a can of juice pack mandarin oranges and empty into a bowl; add one sliced banana, one cut-up apple, and a few frozen blueberries.

• 1-Minute Banana Split: Cut a banana lengthwise and place into a dish. Fill with one or two scoops low-fat or non-fat vanilla or lemon frozen yogurt and top with frozen strawberries and canned crushed pineapple.

• 30-Second Veggie Platter: Buy cut-up vegetables from the salad bar. Arrange on a platter, place a bowl of non-fat dressing on the table.

• 1-Minute Vegetable Salad: Place some vegetables from last night's dinner (corn, peas, green beans) into a bowl; add a sliced tomato, grated carrots, and sliced green onions; pour over low- or non-fat Italian dressing over the top, and toss lightly.

SENSATIONAL SALAD WITH POPPY SEED DRESSING

1 can mandarin oranges
½ cup sliced strawberries or 2 kiwis, sliced
1 head romaine lettuce
1 head curly leaf lettuce
1 bunch endive or kale
1 can chow mein noodles

Dressing:

1 cup canola oil
½ cup sugar
⅓ cup cider vinegar
1 tablespoon poppy seed
1 tablespoon grated onion
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon dry mustard

Rinse lettuces and endive. Blend dressing ingredients, drizzle over salad. Top with chow mein noodles. Serving size: 1 cup with 1 tablespoon dressing. Makes 8-10 servings.

Nutrient content per serving: Salad: 60 kcal, 1.5 g protein, 3 g fiber, 50 mcg folate, 1281 vitamin A. Dressing: 90 kcal, 100 mg sodium, 10 g fat per tablespoon.

ROASTED VEGGIE WRAP

2 cups thinly sliced zucchini
2 cups thinly sliced carrots
2 cups thinly sliced mushrooms
2 cups thinly sliced red pepper
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
¼ cup low fat mayonnaise
3 cups fresh spinach leaves
1 small clove garlic
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
4 fajita-size flour or spinach tortillas (6-inch)

On large baking sheet, toss vegetables with oil. Bake at 450 degrees for 12-15 minutes or until vegetables are just tender.

In food processor, blend mayonnaise, spinach, garlic, and Parmesan cheese until smooth.

STIR-FRIED CARROTS AND POTATOES

1 tablespoon oil
4 medium-sized carrots, peeled, and cut into matchstick strips
½ cup water
1 large potato, peeled, cut into matchstick strips
⅛ teaspoon black pepper
1 tablespoon parsley flakes

In a 10-inch nonstick skillet, heat oil. Add carrots, cook, stirring one minute. Stir in ¼ cup water and steam 2 minutes on medium heat, shaking pan often until liquid is gone.

Add potatoes and remaining water and steam 3 minutes until water is evaporated and vegetables are tender. Season with pepper and sprinkle parsley on top. Serves 4.

This is a healthy meal.

Ten-inch flour tortillas can be used to roll up almost any sandwich filling. Roll-ups can generally be prepared ahead of time. Wrap and refrigerate up to eight hours before serving.

QUICK GINGER PORK

1 tablespoon vegetable oil
½ pound pork tenderloin, cut into thin strips
1 clove minced garlic
2 tablespoons lite soy sauce
¼ teaspoon sugar
⅛-¼ teaspoon ground ginger
½ cup water
1½ teaspoon cornstarch
Hot cooked rice

Heat oil in a large skillet over medium-high heat. Stir fry pork and garlic for 3 minutes. Combine soy sauce, sugar, and ginger; add to skillet. Reduce heat to medium; stir-fry for 3-4 minutes or until pork is no longer pink. Combine water and cornstarch until smooth; add to skillet. Bring to a boil; boil and serve 2 minutes. Serve over rice. Yield: 2 servings. One serving without rice 227 calories, 554 mg sodium, 67 mg cholesterol, 5 gm carbohydrate, 25 gm protein, 1 gm fat. Diabetic exchanges: 3 lean meat, ½ starch, ½ fat. •

BERBER CHICKEN AND TOMATO SALAD

1 cup bulgar
1 cup chopped tomatoes
2 cups skinless cooked chicken pieces
3 tablespoons chopped fresh basil, or dried basil to taste
1 teaspoon chopped fresh mint, or a pinch or two of dried mint
2 minced cloves of garlic
⅓ cup olive oil
3 tablespoons red wine vinegar
Salt and pepper to taste
Chopped fresh parsley for garnish

Cook bulgar in large pot of boiling salted water, until tender, 20-25 minutes. Drain and set aside to cool.

In large bowl, combine the cooked bulgar, tomatoes, chicken, basil, mint, and garlic. Toss, then add oil and vinegar, salt and pepper. Sprinkle with parsley. Serves 4-6.

This is an easy dish to prepare when you want a change from a heavier winter meal. It's nice to have in the refrigerator, too, for when you need a tasty bite to eat. The recipe is from Morocco.

Vegetarians can omit the chicken and still have a highly nutritious meal; each quarter pound of bulgar has 11.2 grams protein, 75.7 grams carbohydrates, 338 milligrams phosphorus, and 229 milligrams potassium, as well as calcium, iron, thiamine, riboflavin, and niacin. This is about as many nutrients as in a whole loaf of whole wheat bread!

Cookbook Author Prepares Stuffed, Marinated Mushrooms

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Give Pennsylvanian mushrooms to Italian chef Grace Pilato and voile — a tasty combination to savor.

Pilato is gracious enough to share her recipes with our readers. If you like these recipes, you will want to purchase her cookbook available in bookstores called "Cooking With Grace."

GRACE PILLATO'S STUFFED MUSHROOMS

1½ pounds white button mushrooms, wiped clean with a damp paper towel (caps intact, stems removed, diced)

Stuffing:
- 1 pound fresh spinach or Swiss card (washed, drained)
- 4 tablespoons virgin olive oil, divided
- ½ cup finely diced celery
- ½ pound ground pork or beef (optional)
- 2 cloves garlic, chopped fine
- 1 cup cracker crumbs (preferable Ritz or Townhouse)
- 1 large egg, lightly beaten
- 4 tablespoons Italian flat-leaf parsley
- ½ cup shredded Fontina cheese
- 1 tablespoon butter
- ½ cup sherry or dry white wine
- Freshly grated Romano cheese, for sprinkling

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Cook the spinach or Swiss chard in the microwave. Chop it fine.

Place a large skillet over medium high heat. When the skillet is warm, add 2 tablespoons of olive oil. When the oil is hot, saute celery for 2 minutes. Add ground meat if using, and saute until just cooked. Add diced mushroom stems and garlic and saute for 2 additional minutes. Place these ingredients in a medium bowl and set aside.

Add the cracker crumbs, egg, parsley, spinach, and Fontina cheese and toss lightly. Set it aside.

Butter a medium baking dish. Sprinkle the mushroom caps with 2 tablespoon oil, place them in a baking dish, and bake in 350-degree oven for 8 minutes. Drain off any liquid; remove the mushrooms from the baking dish, and stuff by placing the stuffing in a mound into each cap.

Pour the sherry into the bottom of the baking dish. Place the stuffed mushrooms back into the baking dish and bake for another 15 minutes. Sprinkle with Romano cheese, place until the broiler, and broil for 1-2 minutes, or until tops are golden.

Transfer mushrooms to a serving platter and serve hot, warm, or at room temperature. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

GRACE PILLATO'S MARINATED MUSHROOM SALAD

Marinade:
- Juice of 1 medium lemon (about 3 tablespoons)
- 2 tablespoons wine vinegar
- ½ cup extra virgin olive oil (more if needed)
- 1-2 cloves garlic (chopped very fine)
- ¼ cup chopped Italian flat-leaf parsley
- 1 teaspoon dried oregano
- ¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon red pepper flakes

Garnish:
- 1 head Boston lettuce
- 2 tablespoons toasted pine nuts (chopped or ground, optional)

Combine all the marinade ingredients in a large bowl and stir.

Clean the mushrooms by using a damp piece of paper towel to gently remove and soil particles. Cut the mushrooms in ⅛-inch slices and add to the marinade. Toss lightly to coat the mushrooms. Taste for seasoning and adjust accordingly. You might need more oil — there should always be a very tiny bit of oil in the bottom of the bowl.

Place plastic wrap directly onto the surface of the mushrooms and refrigerate for 1 to 2 hours.

To serve, arrange a tender leaf of lettuce on a plate, and place marinated mushrooms on top. Sprinkle with toasted pine nuts if desired.

Hint: Any leftover marinated mushrooms will keep in the refrigerator in a covered container for several days.

Bathroom Tips

(NAPS)—To prevent microbes from using your bathroom, experts suggest you keep these helpful hints in mind:

•Always keep an all-purpose cleaner and a sponge in the guest bath so you can sneak away and clean up when unexpected company shows up.

•Steam helps to loosen buildup, so why not clean while you're in there.

•To avoid bathtub rings, don't use oily bath preparation. Use a water softener if you live in a hard-water area, and rinse the tub immediately after bathing.

•Can't get to that dirt in the corner? Make a pointed tool by cutting an old whisk broom at a 45-degree angle.

•To avoid bacteria from breeding in your bathroom use products with built-in antimicrobial protection. Products with antimicrobial protection, such as those with Microban® protection, provide continuous protection.

QUESTION — Barbara Reed, a northern Berks County reader, is looking for what a friend calls a three-milk cake with a fruit filling between layers. She thinks it might be a Caribbean or Latin American recipe.

QUESTION — Mrs. Riehl, Narvon, is looking for a recipe for chicken gumbo, which is served in the soup and salad bar at Shady Maple Restaurant.

QUESTION — Linda Fletcher, Walnutport, is looking for a recipe for Beef Barley Soup.

QUESTION — Marg Sharp, Glenmoore, writes that when her granddaughter was small, her baby-sitter used bread dough to make steamed buttons served with a sauce. Marg would like that recipe.

QUESTION — Linda Fletcher, Walnutport, requests a recipe for pineapple squares, which has a cake base. She thinks the recipe is quite old.

QUESTION — Melissa Evarts, Guilford, Ct., writes that her dad remembers his mother making a vanilla custard using 13 eggs. Does anyone have a recipe like that and also one for homemade ice cream that uses pudding and sweetened condensed milk and is hand-cranked.

QUESTION — Mary Templon, wants the recipe for pina colada zucchini bread, which had been printed in this paper she thinks in August or September.

QUESTION — Esther Sheaffer, Kirkwood, requests a recipe to make good meatballs.

QUESTION — Shirley Schwoerer, Wysox, wants to know if sesame seeds can be sprouted. She is familiar with alfalfa seed sprouting.

QUESTION — Ralph Kieffer, Halifax, wants a recipe for Aunt Flossie's tomato soup, which he heard is printed in a Lancaster County cookbook.

QUESTION — A reader wants low-fat recipes and diabetic recipes that other readers have tried and liked.

QUESTION — A Narvon reader writes that she accidentally discarded two recipes, which she had clipped from this column, that her family really liked. One recipe was for waffles, and the lady who had submitted it wrote that she sold them at a stand when she was young. The other recipe was for biscuits that used cold butter cut into the flour. Anyone know to which recipes she is referring? Please send in to be reprinted.

QUESTION — June Martin, Oxford, N.J., wants a recipe to make venison hot dogs.

ANSWER — A steady reader wanted to know how to make natural vinegar, which is a vinegar that gets a "mother" in it. And if there is a place to buy such vinegar? Thanks to Shirley Orfanella, Quarryville, who writes that many years ago, when she brought her first home, the basement had huge jugs with these "things" floating on top. She nearly fainted. Since then, she learned about Mother-of-vinegar, and writes that when a "mother" gets too wet, it sinks to the bottom and will be useless. Here's the scoop, which makes interesting reading but is not endorsed by this paper:

Mother-Of-Vinegar

Mother is the term used to describe the mass of sticky scum that forms on top of cider when alcohol turns into vinegar. Mother is formed by the bacteria which creates vinegar.

You can grow your own mother by combining 1 cup vinegar and 1 cup cider. Let set in open air for days or weeks (depends on temperature). The scum which forms will be a mother, which is used to grow your own vinegar for "nibbling." Lore is that a bite or two, morning and evening will keep germs, infections, and parasites away. "This is where I draw the line —ugh," writes Shirley.

Vinegar was originally started as a byproduct of the wine industry. It's fairly simple but also time laborious to make your own vinegars. If interested in making vinegar, Shirley recommends sending for "The Vinegar Book" by Tresco Publishers, 718 12th St. N.W., Canton, Ohio 44703.

ANSWER — Shirley Schwoerer, Wysox, wanted to know if butter can be made in a blender. Thanks to a reader who writes the answer is "yes." She writes: "I have a 5-cup blender container so I put 3-4 cups of cream in and blend on high until it gets thick. I then pulse and/or shake by hand to get the butter to clump. It is obvious when it is finished as you can see the butter and the buttermilk does not cling to the sides of the blender. Do not blend too long or you will mix the butter back into the buttermilk!

"Pour butter and buttermilk into a strainer over a container to catch the buttermilk. Then put the butter into a bowl and press out the buttermilk. (I use the back of a large spoon). Next cover butter with cold water and rinse, pouring off the water and pressing again. Repeat until water comes off clear and is all pressed out of butter.

"I have found that the temperature and age of the cream makes a difference. Cream that has just been skimmed off fresh milk should be left in the refrigerator for a day or two. I usually freeze cream until I have several quarts to do. I set the cream out the evening before so it is thawed and nearly room temperature in the morning. I've also had better luck in the winter than in the summer since room temperature is usually too warm in the summer.

I save the buttermilk to make cakes, cookies, waffles and pancakes."

ANSWER — Mary Templon, Grantsville, W.V., writes that she canned sauerkraut in jars this past summer, but the seal broke by six weeks, and the sauerkraut got brown and went bad. What went wrong? There are many methods to can sauerkraut, but Shirley Orfanella, Quarryville, writes that the following method works best for her.

Sauerkraut

Select firm large heads of cabbage. Remove outer leaves (save) and remove core. Cut heads into quarters. Using a slaw shredder, place overtop of a large crock. Shred cabbage until you have a few inch thickness. Sprinkle small amount of canning salt over and tamp down gently. Continue doing this until about 3-4-inches from top. Cover with old white sheet "circles" tucking into crock. Put several layers of large cabbage leaves on top and weigh down with an old plate with a brick on top. You can also eliminate last step and place a very heavy duty trash bag filled partially with water on top. This works well to keep out air. Let set about 4-5 weeks at approximately 68 degrees.

At that time, remove all old leaves and if thin layer of scum has formed, remove.

Rinse to remove salt. Cook in large kettles to 180 degrees. Pack into quart jars and place in boiling water bath approximately 15 minutes.

Some people like to leave kraut in crocks and use as needed, but Shirley prefers to can to eliminate the odor.

ANSWER — Pat Elligson had requested a recipe for an old-fashioned fruit cake. It's amazing how much recipes vary. D. Bonnell, Barker, N.Y., sends in this Scottish recipe that is updated from the really old-fashioned kind, but it's in the traditional cake-shape rather than the loaf-shape that is more common in this area. Bonnell writes, "This recipe is an endeavor to make and not for those who demand instant consumption, but for fruit cake lovers, it's worth the wait."

Royal Fruit Cake

2 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon cloves
1½ cups currants
1½ cups dark or light raisins
1½ cups diced mixed candies and peels
1 cup mixed candied fruits and peels
1 cup candied red/green cherries
½ cup ground almonds
4 eggs
1 cup sugar
¾ cup saltless butter, melted
½ cup rum, whiskey, brandy or orange juice
3 tablespoons lemon juice
More rum, whiskey, brandy or orange juice
8-ounce can almond paste
1 recipe royal icing (follows)

Grease two 9-inch round cake pans. Line bottom and sides with parchment or waxed paper to prevent overbrowning; grease paper.

In large bowl, stir together flour, cinnamon, baking powder, baking soda, nutmeg, and cloves. Stir in currants, raisins, fruits and peels, cherries, and almonds. Set aside.

In mixing bowl, beat eggs until frothy, with a fork. Add sugar, butter, ½ cup rum or whiskey and lemon juice; stir until combined. Stir egg mixture into fruit mixture; pour into pans.

Bake in a 300-degree oven for 1¼-1½ hours or until toothpick inserted near center comes out clean. Cover pans loosely with tin foil after one hour to prevent overbrowning. Cool in pans on wire rack.

Remove cooled cakes from pans. Wrap layers separately in rum or whiskey-soaked cotton cheesecloth and overwrap with foil. Store in refrigerator or cold room for 1-2 weeks. Every 3-4 days, moisten cheesecloth with rum or whiskey, or when dry.

Assemble by placing one cake layer, top side down, on serving plate. Spread with half the almond paste. (If paste is too thick, form into ball, place between waxed paper layers and roll to size a little larger than 9-inches in diameter. Trim to 9 inches and place on top of cake by removing one sheet of waxed paper, inverting on top of cake. Peel off remaining waxed paper.

Spread some of royal icing over almond paste. Add second layer, top side up; top with remaining paste. Frost top and sides with remaining royal icing. Makes 16 servings.

Royal Icing:

Combine:

4 cups sifted powdered sugar
½ cup water
¼ cup meringue powder
1 teaspoon vanilla

Beat on high speed 7-10 minutes or until very stiff. Use immediately, covering icing in bowl with a damp paper towel. Store in refrigerator. Also freezes well for months if sliced first and well wrapped.

ANSWER — Here is another version from Audrey Lohr, Mount Pleasant.

Stained Glass Window Fruit Cake

1½ pounds pitted dates
1 pound candied pineapple chunks
1 pound candied red/green cherries
2 pounds walnuts or pecans or combination
2 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
4 eggs, beaten
½ cup dark corn syrup
¼ cup firmly packed brown sugar
¼ cup corn oil

Grease 10x4-inch tube cake pan. Line with greased paper.

Mix together fruits and nuts. Sift dry ingredients. Mix eggs, corn syrup, sugar, and oil. Gradually beat in dry ingredients; pour over fruit mixture and mix. Firmly pack into pan. Bake at 275 degrees for about 2 hours and 15 minutes or until top appears dry. Cool in pan. May also be baked in two 9x5x3-inch loaf pans.

How Much Protein Is Needed?

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Is it true that people need only a few ounces of protein a day?

Actually, that is true. Adults should get 10 percent to 35 percent of their calories from protein. That means adults who consume 1,800 calories a day should get between 180 and 630 of those calories from protein, or between 45 grams (about 1.5 ounces) and 157 grams (about 5.5 ounces) of protein a day.

However, we're talking about pure protein here, not protein-rich foods. Take a look at Nutrition Facts labels or the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Nutrient Database (http://www.nal.usda.gov/fnic/cgi-bin/nut—search.pl) and you'll see that you can't assume that protein-rich foods are totally made up of protein. On the other hand, even foods that aren't considered "good" protein sources often contain some protein.

Take, for example, a three-ounce portion of roasted chicken breast. That weighs 85 grams, 26 of which are protein. A three-ounce can of tuna has 25 grams of protein. Either would give a typical consumer more than half of the protein they need each day.

Other protein sources are plentiful. A cup of fat-free fruit yogurt has 10 grams of protein. A cup of 2-percent white milk has eight grams. A half-cup of baked beans has seven grams. A large hard-boiled egg has six grams. A medium-sized baked potato (about 7 ounces) has five grams of protein. A slice of bread usually has two grams. Two tablespoons of peanut butter have eight grams. A half-cup of corn has two grams. A half-cup of cooked brown rice contains two grams.

According to national food intake surveys, American adults typically get about 16 percent of their calories from protein a day — more than they absolutely need, but usually within the recommended range. With the increasing popularity of high-protein diets, protein consumption could increase. Men typically consume more protein than women.

Ida's Notebook

February 1, in my mind, could be called the "dead of winter." It has been very cold for quite some time. When I really notice this is when I take my daily walk. It isn't so bad until I turn around and head for home and then the wind is in my face. It is always nicer to have the wind at your back pushing you along.

It is a time to sit down and write a letter or two. They say that writing letters is a lost art since computers make it easy to communicate quickly. I've actually heard a few people say they wish they did not have E-mail. It is something that I do not expect to contend with as I find enough junk mail in our mailbox. It fills the wastebasket too quickly.

Do other people collect recipes that look interesting and then not use them? I think that I'll use them and then there is an ingredient that I do not have on hand. However, I'm pretty good at improvising as when you've cooked for so many years, you do learn a few tricks and can substitute. Then if it doesn't turn out to your liking, you can blame it on the substitution.

We recently had our 55th wedding anniversary, and it brought back the memories of the weather of our wedding day. It started to snow in the morning and it snowed all day. We got to the church and home again. But, we were not able to start on our trip to Florida until the next afternoon. It was the first time that either of us had been that far south and so the scenery was new to us. A few years ago we went the whole way to Key West which is as far south as it is possible to go and quite close to Cuba.

Apply For Dairy Of Distinction Award By April 15

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Pennsylvania dairy farms are invited to apply for this year's Dairy of Distinction award from the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program. Applications must be submitted by April 15.

The award is based on the idea that attractive farmsteads enhance consumer confidence in the wholesomeness of milk and stimulate milk sales and public support for the industry. Dairies receiving the highest scores in each of 10 Pennsylvania districts will be awarded an 18- by 24-inch Dairy of Distinction sign to display in front of their farm.

"This program is run by volunteers and recognizes the hard work and dedication of dairy producers who promote a positive image for the dairy industry," said Mike O'Connor, secretary of the Pennsylvania Dairy of Distinction program and professor of dairy science extension in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

Roadside judging will take place in May. Judges will look at factors that can be controlled by the farmer, such as clean and attractively finished buildings; neat landscaping, ditches, roads and lanes; and well-maintained fences. They also will take into account other aspects of the farm, such as cleanliness of animals,the barnyard, feed areas and manure management.

Winning farms will be notified in late June. Because this is a yearly award, previous winners are reevaluated each year to see if they are still maintaining excellent standards.

To receive an application, call Mike O'Connor at (814) 863-3913 or e-mail him at HYPERLINKmail to: MOConnor@psu.edu.

Since 1987, Pennsylvania's Dairy of Distinction Program has recognized more than 700 dairy farms. The Pennsylvania program is part of the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program, which also includes New York, New Jersey, and Vermont. Dairies in these states can contact the program secretary in their state for applications.

HOW IS YOUR FARM SCORED?

Awards will be based upon neatness, good maintenance, and other factors, which can be controlled by the farmer Attractive background scenery should not be weighed heavily in judging. All judging observations should be made from a vehicle at one or more points on an adjacent public highway (or if farm is off the road, the nearest lane). Judging should give equal consideration to old wood construction and new construction of metal or concrete block.

The award program may be used for subsequent advertising or promotion activities for dairy products or dairy farming. Farmers who apply for awards agree that, if selected, they will cooperate with these activities and make all reasonable efforts to maintain both the exterior and interior of their properties in an acceptable condition.

HOW THE JUDGING WORKS

Judging teams will visit the farms during the month of May. Farms will be judged each year as the award is presented on an annual basis. Any dairy failing to maintain appearance standards will be asked to remove their sign. The Dairy of Distinction signs remain the property of the committee, not the property of the dairy farmer. All farms must achieve a compliance score of 90 percent on their Dairy of Distinction score card. Your cooperative or milk handler will be contacted to approve your milk quality.

RULES FOR THE DAIRY OF DISTINCTION AWARD

1. The Dairy of Distinction sign remains the property of the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program Committee (NEDFBP).

2. The post and bracket shall be supplied by and maintained by the dairy farmer. NEDFBP suggests that a wood post 4" x 4" x 12' or iron pipe 2" x 12' be used. Posts or pipe should be installed and maintained in true vertical position with 8' above ground Top of the bracket should be lower than six inches from the top of the post. In addition, NEDFBP suggests that the sign be mounted in a frame to provide additional stability

3 The sign shall be displayed in front of the dairy at roadside An attractive post and bracket, or other frame shall be used to display the sign No more than three signs should be displayed from the sign frame or post, and all shall be of a style, general size and quality comparable to the Dairy of Distinction sign. The sign should be secured on all sides to avoid wind damage

4 Signs shall not be moved to other premises New owners of a Dairy of Distinction farm must apply to retain the sign.

5 Replacement of damaged signs shall be at the discretion of the committee

6. No producer shall be charged with scoring or sign expenses.

7. The judges' decision will be final.

8 Judging will take place between May 1 and May 31.

9. Farms awarded a Dairy of Distinction sign in previous years will be judged between April 1 and April 30. If they do not qualify, they will be rejudged between May 1 and May 31 so they have the opportunity to keep the sign.

10. Farms that do not requalify will return the sign to their regional Dairy of Distinction Committee.

Dairy of Distinction
2003 Pennsylvania Application

PURPOSE OF PROGRAM

Attractive dairy farms give the consumer greater confidence in the wholesomeness of milk and stimulate milk sales which encourages public support of the dairy industry. The award gives recognition to the dairy farmer for maintaining a well-kept farmstead.

ELIGIBILITY

All Northeast dairy farms producing milk for sale are invited to submit an application for the award. Dairies receiving the 10 highest scores in each of the 21 districts will receive an 18" x 24" Dairy of Distinction sign to be displayed in front of their farm.

Juggling Syncopation Provides Energetic Entertainment For Banquet

Cunningham eats an apple as he juggles it, in addition to a machete and a flaming torch.

Trays and cups balanced on top of each other also pose no problem for Cunningham.

Can he top this? Mark Cunningham balances a folding chair.

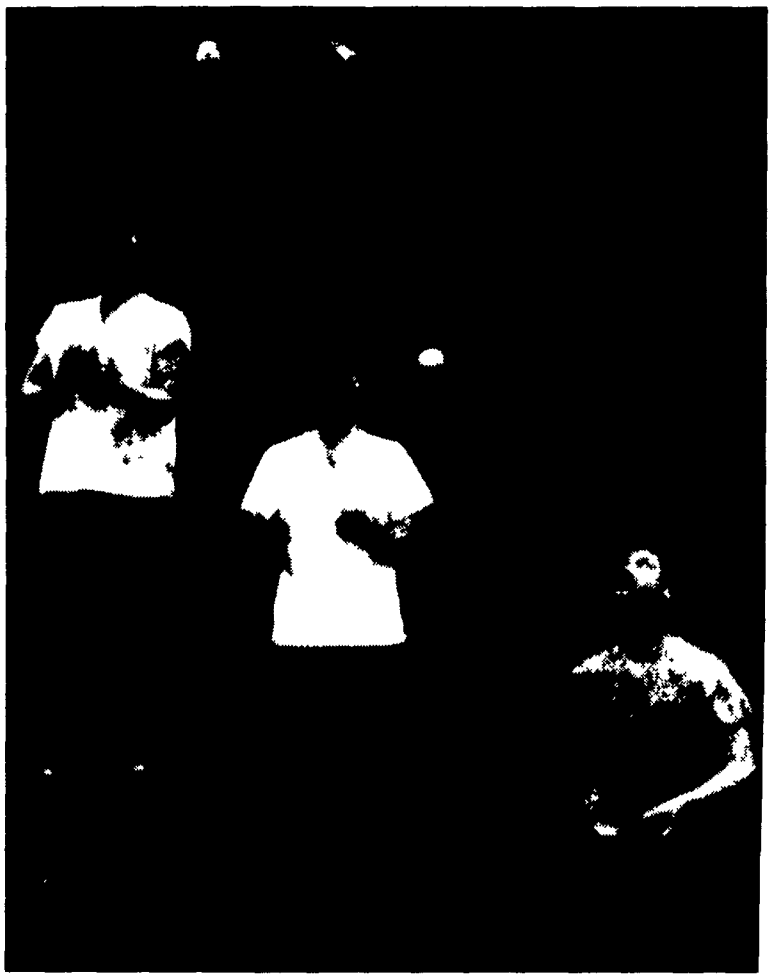
LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — At the recent Farm and Home Center Foundation's annual meeting, Mark Cunningham, Phil Hershey, and Drew Brubaker provided entertainment — dubbed "Juggling Syncopation" — for the audience. Here are a few pictures from their, not only coordinated, but also comical performance.

The only way to do better than a folding chair is to balance a stepladder, which Cunningham also accomplished.



Juggling doesn't mean standing in one place. The entertainers shift positions often in this maneuver.

Fore! Keeping balls aloft as they are golfed over to the jugglers was part of the routine.

They bounce pass the ball during this move.

'PawsAbilities' Benefits Service Dogs

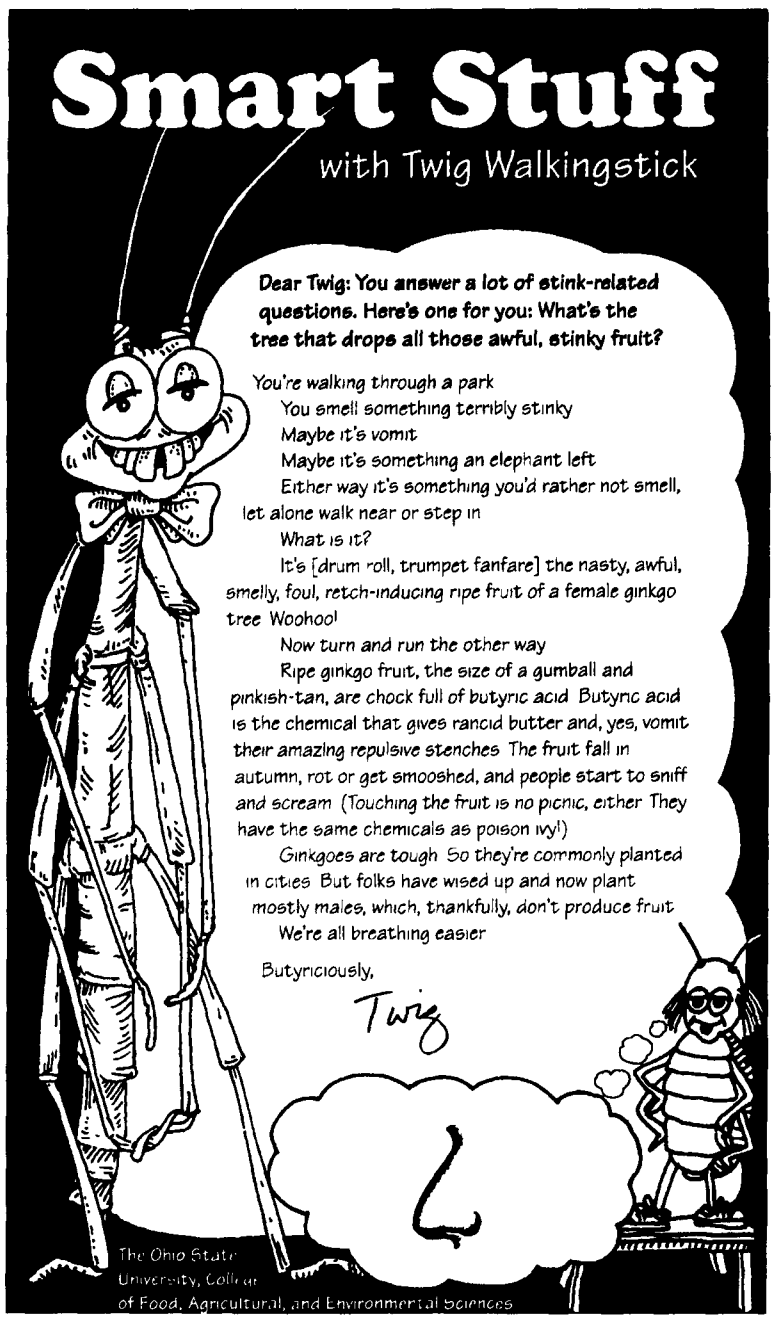
HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — What are all the dogs barking about? PawsAbilities 2003! The annually impressive event is expected to draw dog-lovers and their furry friends to the Pennsylvania Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg on March 15 and 16 from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. to support Susquehanna Service Dogs.

Susquehanna Service Dogs raises, trains and places service and hearing dogs with people who have physical disabilities, offering an opportunity for each person to lead a more independent life.

PawsAbilities is a weekend devoted to canine companions and their human friends. Families with pets, show professionals, trainers and dog enthusiasts are encouraged to attend for fun-filled events such as Dog Olympics (games are open to all dogs), obedience show-and-go, ability fun match, breed fun match, and many other activities.

Seminars will be offered throughout the weekend on such topics as teaching your dog tricks, teaching basic manners, preparing for breed competition and using positive reinforcement (clicker training) in training your dog, just to name a few. Availability is limited so preregistration is encouraged. Other events include a dog costume contest, a parade, pet photography, dog wash, Service Dog demonstrations, and search and rescue techniques.

Tickets purchased prior to March 7, cost $6 for adults (13 and older) and $3 for children ages 4-12, children under 4 are admitted for free. Tickets purchased after March 7 (including at the door) will cost $8 for adults and $4 for children ages 4-12. Each ticket covers admission for both days of PawsAbilities 2003! For ticket purchases or more information, please call (717) 671-7813 or online at www.keystonehumanservice.org/ssd.



Smart Stuff
with Twig Walkingstick
Dear Twig: You answer a lot of stink-related questions. Here's one for you: What's the tree that drops all those awful, stinky fruit?
You're walking through a park
You smell something terribly stinky
Maybe it's vomit
Maybe it's something an elephant left
Either way it's something you'd rather not smell, let alone walk near or step in What is it?
It's [drum roll, trumpet fanfare] the nasty, awful, smelly, foul, retch-inducing ripe fruit of a female ginkgo tree Woohoo!
Now turn and run the other way
Ripe ginkgo fruit, the size of a gumball and pinkish-tan, are chock full of butyric acid Butyric acid is the chemical that gives rancid butter and, yes, vomit their amazing repulsive stenches The fruit fall in autumn, rot or get smooshed, and people start to sniff and scream (Touching the fruit is no picnic, either They have the same chemicals as poison ivy!)
Ginkgoes are tough So they're commonly planted in cities But folks have wised up and now plant mostly males, which, thankfully, don't produce fruit
We're all breathing easier
Butyriciously,

It's Raining 'Cat's Meows' In Meyersdale

SANDRA LEPLEY
Somerset Co. Correspondent

MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.) — It's raining mostly cats in the southern Somerset County town of Meyersdale.

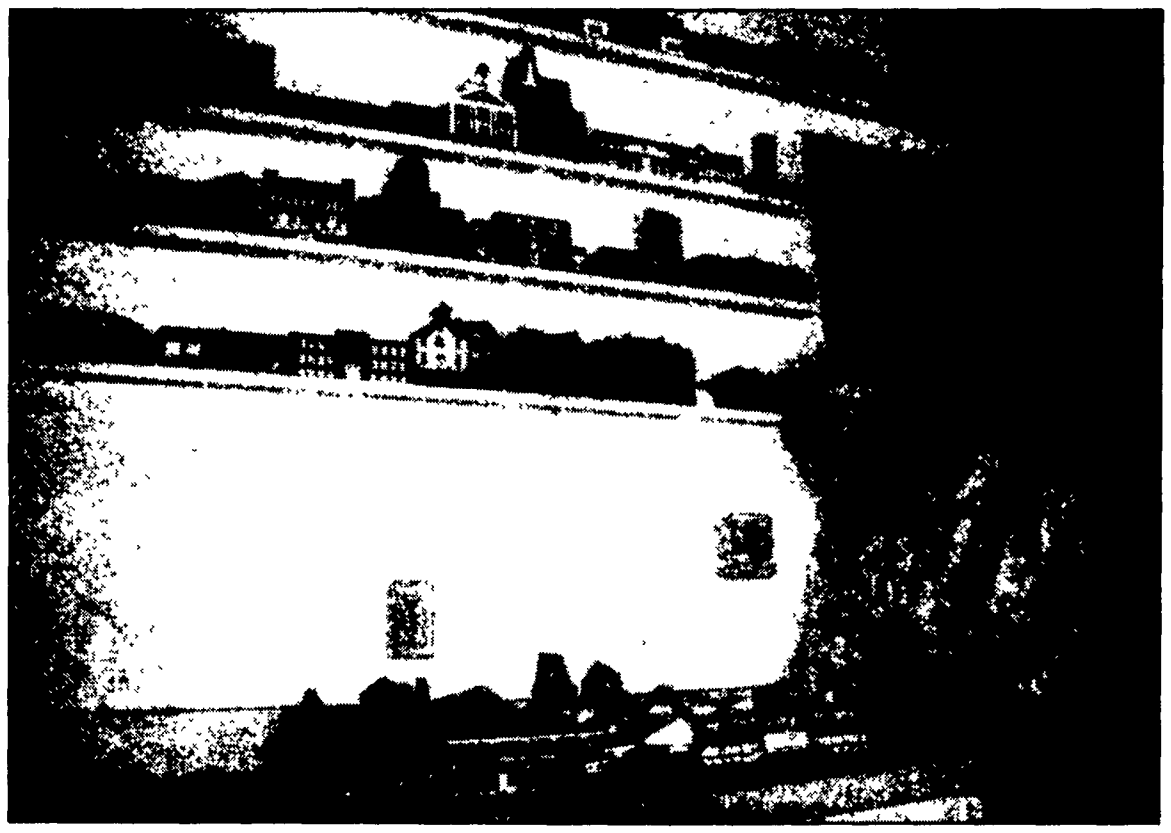
Lately, in this historic railroading and farming town, there has been an upsurge of fundraisers going on with Cat's Meow wooden shelf sitters.

"I jokingly say that there are probably more Cat's Meow cats in Meyersdale than there are actual cats," said Don Walukas, a member of Meyersdale Borough Council and Meyersdale Area Historical Society.

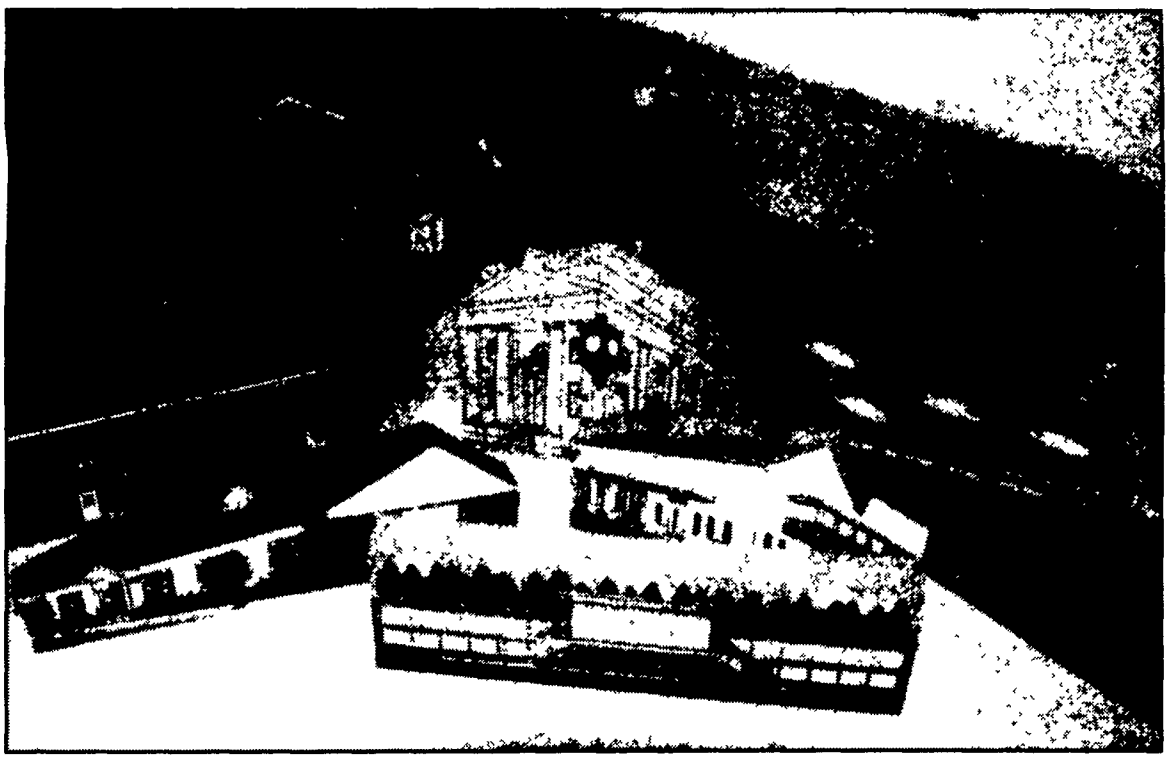
Walukas' wife Barbara is a board member of the Historical Society and she believes that the Cat's Meow fundraisers have helped those with an interest in history and those with an interest in collecting to better appreciate the historic value of the town, while at the same time raise much needed funds for nonprofits.

"This is a very special little town," said Mrs. Walukas, who is a native of Meyersdale but lived in the Midwest and the South before retirement. "Some people used to collect the old postcards of the 1920s and 1930s, which give us a glimpse into what different areas looked like back then. I think the Cat's Meows will be something someone picks up 100 years from now and will be able to see into the past because buildings may not always be there."

The initial project took off a little more than a year ago when members of the Meyersdale Area Historical Society decided to remake the historic Western Maryland Train Station in Meyersdale into a Cat's Meow shelf sitter. The train station, build in 1912 and closed in the early 1970s, sat in disrepair for several years until the society recently refurbished it and opened it as their headquarters a few years ago. The station sits along the Allegheny Highlands Biking Trail, which is currently being completed for hiking and biking throughout Somerset County to the Maryland line, and will connect into the Western Maryland system of rail paths from Pittsburgh to Washington D.C.



Nancy Hornig of Meyersdale began collecting Cat's Meow shelf sitters about 10 years ago. She never imagined her simple hobby would become a big fund-raising project for the nonprofits of Meyersdale.



When the entire little Cat's Meow wooden collectibles are placed together, the town of Meyersdale looks like a little Dickens' village.

The Western Maryland Train Station, built in 1912 for the Western Maryland Railroad and closed in the 1970s when that line was completely abandoned, serves as the headquarters of the Meyersdale Area Historical Society, the group that refurbished it in recent years. The society started out doing a fund-raiser by making a Cat's Meow replica of the property and the idea has since caught on.

"The society ordered an initial batch of 90 stations and then had to reorder four more batches of 60 in order to satisfy the demand," said Nancy Hornig of Meyersdale, who had been instrumental in starting the project. After that, the society ordered some of the Salisbury Viaduct, which also sits on the former Western Maryland railroad and has been completely restored as part of the biking path.

Hornig began collecting Cat's Meow shelf sitters about 10 years ago after picking some up at her and her husband Herb's favorite vacation spots of Rehoboth Beach. Now, she has collected more than 130 pieces, including some from eastern Pennsylvania, New England, and the Midwest. Her collection is displayed on shelves in her home near the town of Meyersdale. Her friends sometimes visit to talk and admire her collection.

"They are quite a conversation piece," she laughs. "I have a friend who has been here many times, and she stills just sits and looks at them. What I like is that they (Cat's Meows) are a lasting memory of where I have been and they don't take a lot of care."

Hornig never imagined that her simple collections would turn into a town project but a few years ago, she presented the idea to the historical society board because she believed it would be a great fundraiser.

Since that time, many of the churches in and around Meyersdale, including Mt. Carmel Lutheran Church, Meyersdale United Methodist Church, Meyersdale Church of the Brethren and Meyersdale Lutheran Church, have all sold the collectibles as fund-raisers.

In addition, the Somerset Trust Company and Citizen's National Banks have sold their replicas of their sites. Somerset Trust has donated the money to the Meyersdale Renaissance Inc. for a main street manager program and Citizen's has donated the money back to the historical society.

Also, the Meyersdale Volunteer Fire Department, the Meyersdale Borough, the Meyersdale Library and the Meyersdale Hospital have each sold the Cat's Meows as fund-raisers for their organizations. Meyersdale Chamber of Commerce did one of the World War I Doughboy Monument in the center of Meyersdale. And, the borough also did one of the Paul Fuller Playground.

The latest one done is of Maple Manor, the oldest structure in Meyersdale and the focal point of the Pennsylvania Maple Festival. The Maple Festival committee held the fundraiser.

Now, the youth group at the Meyersdale Church of the Brethren is taking orders for the Wilmoth Mansion, a stoic structure built in Meyersdale in the mining heyday but has since been torn down.

Collectibles have also been done of the windmills in Garrett and the historic gristmill outside of Meyersdale.

"The possibilities are endless," said Hornig. "There are sites in Salisbury that have been destroyed by the tornadoes a few years ago that may be a new venture. The Cat's Meows are inexpensive and they never wear out. They are a great collectible for anyone and they are a great fund-raiser for any nonprofit."

Virginia Grazier Sold On Bermuda Grass

GAY BROWNLEE
Virginia Correspondent

HARRISONBURG, Va.— Michael Phillips has something to prove. On July 27 during the Second World Feeder Bermuda Grass Field Day, some 145 persons learned what it is.

"My goal is an average year is to graze your animal and not make hay," Phillips said. "I'm gonna do it."

The progressive grazier didn't predict when this would happen, although he warned he's been known to "talk the ears off a mule or cow."

Phillips hosted that day presentations by staff members of the Animal Science Dept. without their pushy and dry demeanor. He spoke about the benefits of the versatile grass on which he grazes a variety of livestock, including beef cows.

"The cheapest machine you can run has four legs and a fly swatter," he said.

For every person who is willing to listen and bold enough to try something new there are scores of non-believers when it comes to Bermuda grass moving north from the deep south where it is generally grown.

"Some say it's too cold here for Bermuda," Phillips said.

He reported being laughed at so much that he tries to avoid "within the neighbors can't see."

Phillips said he tells Jersey owners it supplements grazing during summer, all cows and you can't tell the difference in milk production.

Bermuda grass is also valued by beef or by sheep. Gaines for forages ranges. Phillips said a stockman converted poultry houses that, so far, have survived unscathed in the 2002 avian influenza outbreak.

Bit by bit, Phillips continues to kill off the fescue on his farm in order to plant more Bermuda grass. The preferred time for this is in the fall, just before the first killer frost hits, he said. He then seeds winter rye — rather than ryegrass — prior to planting Bermuda grass "sprigs" the following year.

"I will not use ryegrass," he said. "It emotionally wants to come back."

The Bermuda sprigs are planted by hand or by machine. Gaines for forages ranges. Phillips said a stockman converted

Lehigh Hay Exporter Keeps Delivering In Drought Year

Efficient Hay-Handling Efficiency

David Fink climbs on the front quadrant of his hay processing machine. These compartments, he says, allow him to provide consistency when some plants and grass mixtures have matured. Fink's farm in Lehigh County harvested more than 45,000 tons of hay this year, marking an increase of 5,000 tons for the year.

ANSWER — Charles Mason, West Decatur, wanted the words to the poem that talks about God having to choose the right parents for a special needs' child. Thanks to Jennifer Douglas, Marietta, who said the poem was given to her when she and her husband gave birth to a special son 35 years ago. Also thanks to Louella Martin, Lititz; Edna Massimilla, Hatboro; Anna Martin, Denver; Glena Eisentrant, Bruceton Mills, W.Va.; Anna Mary Hoover; Margaret Sharp, Glenmore, who also found the poem meaningful because she and her husband had a special child, and many others for answering this request.

Heaven's Very Special Child

A meeting was held quite far from earth!
"It's time again for another birth,"
Said the angel to the Lord above,
"This special child will need much love."

His progress may seem very slow,
Accomplishments he may not show.
And he'll require extra care
From the folks he meets way down there.

He may not run or laugh or play,
His thoughts may seem quite far away,
In many ways he won't adapt
And he'll be known as handicapped.

So let's be careful where he's sent,
We want his life to be content
Please, Lord, find the parents who
Will do a special job for you.

They will not realize right away
The leading role they're asked to play,
But with this child sent from above
Comes stronger faith and richer love.

And soon they'll know the privilege given
In caring for this gift from heaven,
Their precious charge, so meek and mild
Is heaven's very special child.

ANSWER — Marlene Hurst, Ephrata, is looking for a reasonably-priced used book, "I Lift My Lamp." A reader writes that the book is a collector's item and sells from $140-$300 at Lancaster County auctions. It is unlikely she will find one in good condition that is reasonably priced.

ANSWER — Susie Hoover, New Holland, received an answer for her request for a used pitch pipe in fair condition at a reasonable price. She also received the words to the song she requested. Here are the words for others who are interested:

Back Where The Old Home Stands

Oft in my dreams I wander, Back where the old home stands
Back to the little cabin, Back to the old homelands
There I could see the roses, Growing beside the door,
There on the balmy breezes, Catch sweet perfume once more.
Oh dear old home of childhood, Under the poplar tree
I fain would be returning, At twilight hour to thee.
There perfect rest and shelter, Comfort and peace are found
There ever true affection, Shows all the year around.
Would that today could take me, Back to the old home place
Where I could be beholding, Each dear familiar face,
Then we would join in singing, Songs of departed days
For Father dear and Mother Love those old happy days.
Chorus:O take me back once more
Back to the outstretched hand
Back to the roses sweet
Back where the old home stands.

ANSWER A steady reader wanted to know where to mail order the following books: "McGuffy's Speller," and "Ray's New Arithmetic," by Joseph Ray. Thanks to Kathleen Reiff, Stevens, who writes that she has had excellent satisfaction ordering from Farm Country General Store, 731 North Fork Road, Metamore, IL 61548. Call (800) 551-FARM. Kathleen also writes a note similar to many we receive: "Our family really enjoys the You Ask-You Answer column. We have received answers and made dear friends through it."

Lancaster Farming thanks readers who take the time to answer these requests. We couldn't do it without you.

ANSWER — Walter Glatfelter's request for a runner 36-inches wide of the old-fashioned rainbow carpet was answered.

Fiberglass Wheels & Springs - Upholstery Fabric
Powder Coated and Zinc Plated Carriage Parts

700 Country Lane, Paradise, PA 17562 Hrs. Service (717) 627-7120

★ ★ New Products Now Available ★ ★

~ • The Advantages of the Fiberglass Wheels are: ~

Fiberglass Wheels

- Very Low Maintenance Costs These wheels are built to last a lifetime and beyond without ever having to replace any parts on the wheels under normal use. The only maintenance required will be tightening up or replacing the tire or rubber.
- High Performance Regardless of the Elements Wheels stay tight even in hot, dry conditions – No more loose rattling spokes – ever!
- Rugged Heavy Duty Design It takes a major accident or impact to break or twist these wheels.
- Hard Durable Surface Resists scuffs and scratches; paint job stays shinier.
- Easier Cleaning Spokes have all rounded corners, no tight spots for dirt to get into.

~ • The Advantages of the Fiberglass Springs are: ~

Fiberglass Springs

- Lightweight A fiberglass spring weighs 22 lbs less than a steel spring; 44 lbs less weight on the carriage
- Durable One Piece Design No bolts to give out or wear
- Better Performance With Heavy Loads The more weight, the better the ride, will not go flat and bottom out
- No Rusting Ever Paint will not blister or peel off No rust stains running out between the plys, providing a nicer appearance and much easier cleaning
- A Lifetime Guarantee If these springs ever break under normal use, we will replace them free of charge
- Stabilizer Kits – Now Available For a smoother ride and less bounce

Home, Contents Become Manheim Museum

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — It seems as if everyone is taking, taking. taking. I wanted to give," Elizabeth Keiffer said of the reason she chose to turn her home filled with antiques into a museum.

Elizabeth died last year, but her home chronicles years of amassing treasures that others can now enjoy. The pieces that she and her husband Miles had treasured, recap a bit of Manheim history for those who visit the Keiffer's home.

Appreciation for the old was not always a part of Elizabeth's nature. She candidly reveals in a videotaped interview available for visitors to view, "I did not always like old things, but I learned that I needed to — unless I wanted to be without a husband — if you know what I mean."

Her husband operated Miles H. Keiffer Electrical Engineering and Construction Company. On weekends the couple canvassed the area for treasures, especially those pertaining to Manheim. Miles passed away in 1975. The couple had no children, but rather than sell their collection, Elizabeth wanted to share it with others. She thought the museum would be the ideal place for visitors to learn about the historical significance of many pieces.

Most intriguing to most visitors, perhaps, is a collection of Stiegel glass made during the 18th century at the Manheim glass factory. The factory no longer exists but the rare pieces that remain preserve the legacy of William Stiegel, Manheim glassmaker.

The Stiegel glass display includes pieces from 1765-1773. Small colored glass scent bottles were used for smelling salts. A tea caddy with a glass lid was used to store loose tea. The dark blue sugar bowl with a diamond-shaped pattern is especially valuable.

Also on display are small plates, medicine bottles, and decorated bottles, which are said to have been handed out at weddings.

Another piece fashioned by a Manheim craftsman is the grandfather's clock. "Made by Christian Eby" is written on the dial.

A Bible belonging to Henry William Stiegel's second wife, Elizabeth, and a wooden Bible box that belonged to Henry William Stiegel are some other rare pieces of Manheim history.

A walnut Dutch cupboard from 1790 is unique in that it has 18 panes and rat-tail hinges. A display of English china made for the American market shows the varied styles that were available. These include patterns in spatterware, Leeds, canary yellow, and mocha.

Another room has a large display of R.S.Prussia china made between 1890-1910 and sold in Manheim stores. Individual pieces of the Victorian style china sold for less than $1 and now command prices of several hundred dollars each.

Two miniature blanket chests are on display. One was made by Andreas Bartruff who built the third house in Manheim. Another was made by John Dyer in 1832, which has inlaid mahogany shell forms.

A few pieces of redware pottery made by Christian Singley, who had a shop in Manheim during the 1890s, and dolls assembled by the Manheim Queensware Factory and sold at the General Merchandise store make up part of the collection.

Elizabeth's husband's maternal grandmother was part of the Ensminger family who contributed greatly to the development of Manheim. In 1792, Samuel Ensminger surveyed the land that came to be known as Manheim. In 1803 the Ensminger family opened an apothecary shop. That same year, Manheim's first newspaper, The Sun, was printed.

A brass scale made by H. Troemner of Philadelphia was used in Ensminger Drug Store and is on display.

Also included in the museum is the Ensminger library stocked with an expanding collection of books pertaining to Manheim and early Americana for those interested in research.

The museum, located at 26 Market Square, had been used as an a telephone office. The Keiffers had rented the top floor, but purchased the entire building when the company moved.

Today, the first floor houses the museum. The top floor is rented for residential use. To prepare the house for the museum, the woodwork was completely stripped and repainted. Walls and ceilings were replastered.

Jim Hosler, a collector and former friend of Elizabeth, oversaw the establishment of the museum by setting up a nonprofit organization that supports historical research relevant to the area.

Hosler said, "These are wonderful pieces used to educate others about local history."

In back of the house is a garden with a gazebo, a Cedar of Lebanon tree, and a carriage house for meetings. About 22 ground lights illuminate the walkway, and a bell from Manheim's first public school is on display.

On special occasions, the grounds are open for concerts, and for special events such as reenactors of Americana history, art shows, etc.

The Stiegel glass display includes pieces from 1765-1773. Small colored glass bottles were used for smelling salts. The dark blue tea caddy with a glass lid was used to store loose tea. The dark blue sugar bowl with a diamond-shaped pattern is especially valued.

The display changes periodically to include not only Elizabeth's collection but also acquisitions of other pieces that foretell Manheim's history. Each piece on display has a descriptive card for visitors to read.

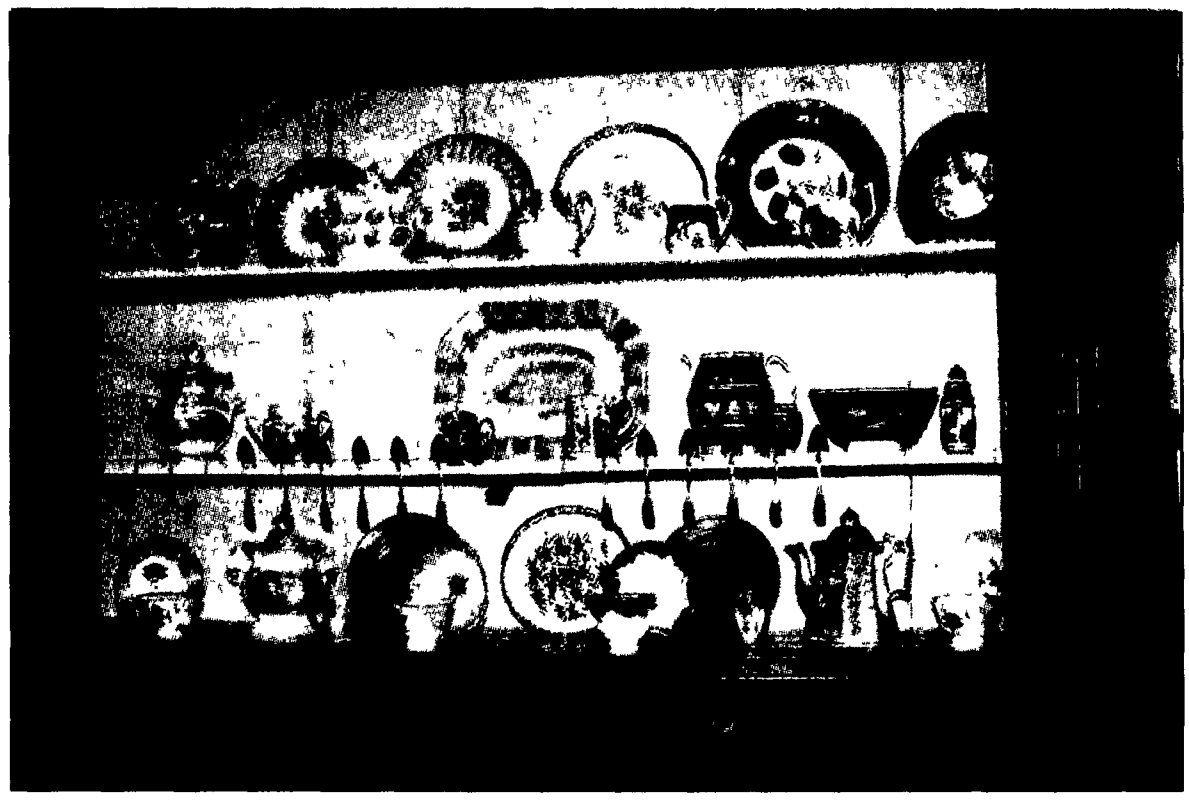
Admission is free to the Historic Manheim Preservation Foundation Inc. museum, library, and garden.

Winter hours for the Historic Manheim Preservation Foundation Inc., 27 Market Square, Manheim, are Wednesday evening from 6 p.m.-9 p.m. and Sunday from 1 p.m.-4 p.m.

For more information, call (717) 665-5560.

The Dutch cupboard, shown above, made from walnut wood in 1790 is unique in that it has 18 window panes and rat-tail hinges. Below a display of English china made for the American market shows the varied styles available. Patterns include spatterware, Leeds, canary yellow, and mocha.

R.S. Prussia china made from 1890-1910 was sold in Manheim stores. Each piece sold for less than $1 but now commands several hundred dollars each.



Antiques Questions And Answers

I have a frog "clicker" that I was given for Christmas back in the 1930s. Does it have any value? It is made of tin.

M.G. - Atlanta, GA

Clickers were an advertising give-away and a popular stocking stuffer at Christmas and Halloween parties. They were given to children as advertising promotions by such companies as Red Goose shoes, etc. Yours could sell in a shop for $25.

I hear a lot about how valuable Hall china is. I have a pair of salt and pepper shakers in the Crocus pattern. Are they valuable?

C.G. - Evanston, IL

Collectors began looking for Hall china in the 1980s as the next "hot" collectible. Dinnerware was made from 1911. It is still being made in East Liverpool, Ohio. They also specialized in commercial ware, teapots and refrigerator ware. Teapots can sell up to $350. Depending on the pattern, butter dishes with covers can sell for as much as $500. Your Crocus salt and peppers would bring around $50.

This black and white floral vase is painted on metal. It is marked "China" on the bottom. It is 18 inches high and I know over 100 years old. It is very lightweight. What can you tell me about it?

M.C.L. - Staten Island, NY

The clue to the age of your cloisonne vase is lightweight: early 20th century. The technique is centuries old in China, and later made in Japan. Enameling on metal, with designs drawn on a metal body. Wires follow the design, and are glued on. The wires are filled in with enamels. Vases, similar to yours can sell for $400 up.

My great grandmother collected colored Victorian glass. I have inherited this cruet that I have been told is plated Amberina. Does it have any value and what is "plated Amberina?"

G.D. - Miami, FL

How does $4,750 sound? This was the hammer price for a plated amberina cruet at a November James Julia auction, Fairfield, Maine. Patents for Amberina glass were first issued for the New England Glass works in 1883. It was a transparent glass shaded from deep ruby to amber. It was made in a variety of patterns and by 1884 by other glass companies such as Libbey. In 1886 a patent was issued by Libbey for "plated Amberina." A piece of opal glass was plated with a ruby-red mixture. The then, molded pattern had a ribbed-effect, characteristic of plated Amberina. Since it was made briefly in 1886 it has a higher price tag than ordinary Amberina.

This painted Coca Cola tray hung in my in-laws grocery store around 1914. I recently found it in the attic. Can you give a value?

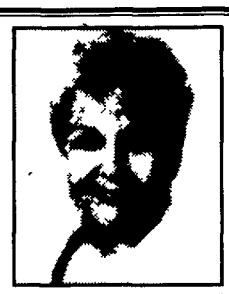
THE ANTIQUE DETECTIVE



Anne Gilbert

Popular Roly Poly Tobacco Tins Go Over Estimate

Even in these financially uncertain times, rare and unusual advertising tins still find buyers willing to pay over estimate when they come to auction. The November 22, James D. Julia auction of advertising, toys and dolls was no exception.

Several Mayo tobacco roly poly advertising tins sold for more than $400 each. One example depicting a storekeeper fetched $488,75. In the past the Mayo "Inspector" has sold in shops for over $1,400.

Collector interest in old advertising tins began in the 1960s. At the time there were still plenty of authentic, and unusual items to be found in basements and at the flea markets for under a dollar. These days even examples from the 1950s-1970s are selling for $30 to $100. Back in the 1960s, when small grocery and drug stores closed to make way for supermarkets, old advertising items, including tins, were tossed. Hard to believe but old Coca Cola tins and bread boxes and signs were considered trash. Those same items can be worth hundreds, sometimes more than a thousand dollars. In fact, there is nothing unusual for collections of "advertiques" are serious investments, insured by their owners. Many of the early collectors were city folk, such as young advertising executives.

It was a great career-collectible that tied in with their work.

Colorful lithography was first used successfully on tin by Huntley, Boorne and Stevens of England in 1877. By the end of the century, companies were hiring artists to showcase their products on tin.

Much of the appeal of old tins is influenced by the subject and quality of the art. The early designs often depicted popular fads and fashions from mid-Victorian, through the art Nouveau to Art Deco eras.

Subjects that bring top dollar include sports heroes, famous American heros and native Americans. If you are lucky enough to discover an Arrow Coffee tin with native American graphics it could be worth more than $1,000. Famous places such as Golden Gate bridge and race horses are collectible.

One of the most popular, and expensive tins for Log Cabin Syrup (1920s-1930s) was in the form of a log cabin. Once common, now scarce, it has sold for more than $100 in shops.

Among the most highly prized British tins are the British biscuit containers. Among the most expensive is the "Coronation Coach" made in 1936. Originally it held W.&R.

Jacob Biscuits commemorated the coronation of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

CLUES: Advertising items were given the name "advertiques" by the 1970s, and the big hunt was on in towns and country areas. Colorful examples began appearing in decorator magazines as trendy, decorative accessories. By the mid-1970s reproductions of the novelty tins, such as Roly Poly tobacco, were spotted.

Once you've decided a piece is authentic, check the condition. Since tin has a tencency to rust, get dented or discolored, a tin in mint condition is worth more. If it has a lid, it should be the original. If it has been retouched or repainted, pass it up. If there is a recent scratch on the bottom it could have been caused by removing a recent copyright date...in order to sell it as old.

There is still a good opportunity for beginning collectors, buying new tins. Some good examples are the cookie and candy tins depicting famous hotels like the Plaza or the tin depicted the main house at Sutter's winery. Even better, they can be used as containers while the collection grows.

Check the Gourmet food sections in stores to find unusual new possibilities. Basements and attics at house sales, as well as garage sales can still turn up old tins.

Your tray was made in 1916 and the name of the girl it depicts is Elaine. It could sell in a shop for $600 or more.

I have six silver-plated teaspoons. On the handles are images of the Dionne quintuplets and their names. Any value?

M.W. - Quincy, MA

Souvenir or commemorative spoons, made in sterling silver and silver plate have been made and collected for over 100 years. Value depends on popularity of the subject and workmanship. The Canadian Dionne quintuplets were considered a novel, multiple birth in the 1930s. These days such births aren't as rare. A shop could price your spoons at $130-150.

I have a Baccarat paperweight of Harry Truman from their Presidential paperweight series. Could you advise of the approximate value or where I might seek this information?

J.B. - Norwell, MA

The French glass house of Baccarat began making modern paperweights in the 1950s, as limited edition collectibles. You have one of the limited editions. Contact dealers Betty and Larry Schwab who buy, sell and appraise modern weights at (309) 662-1956. They advised a dealer price for yours is $100.

JUNIATA COUNTY DAIRY FARM AUCTION
Saturday, Feb. 22, 2003 - 12:00 Noon

Located in Milford Twp, Juniata Co, 3 miles west of Mifflin, PA, along Muddy Run Road, midway between Harrisburg and State College off Route 322. Follow Route 35 south of Mifflin, turn right onto Mowery Street (Route 333 west toward Lewistown), travel 8/10 mile, turn left onto Muddy Run Road, proceed 1.5 miles to farm.

42 Acre Juniata County Dairy Farm

A 42 acre dairy farm with approx. 35 acres gentle slope prime farm ground and 7 acres pasture with running stream. Buildings include a 24'X60' three bedroom ranch style house with modern kitchen with adjoining dining room, oversized living room, two full baths, laundry room and full concrete basement. Dwelling also offers 200 amp electric, oil-fired hot air heating system with woodstove backup, 12'X24' above-ground pool, and 14'X20' picnic pavilion. Dairy barn is a 50'X150' pole-constructed 70-cow freestall barn with 14'X75' pole addition, 32'X40' concrete block milking parlor, milkhouse addition and offside automated feed room with silos. Freestall barn also has 180-day concrete liquid manure storage, 70' concrete bunk with automatic feeder, automatic waterers and box stalls. Silos are 12'X60', 14'X60' & 18'X50' concrete stave, complete with up-to-date unloaders feeding into a stationary TMR mixer which feeds the bunker. Milking facility is an 8-stall flat parlor equipped with 2" SS pipeline milking system complete with 4 Boumatic Companion electronic pulsation milking units with automatic take-off. Milking system also has updated 5hp Boumatic rotary vacuum pump and a Dari-Chem automatic pipeline washer. Milkhouse is complete with 1,000 gal MilKeeper bulk tank, Sunset tank washer, LB White milkhouse heater, hot water heater and Crystal Clear water softener. Other buildings include a 40'X80' pole-constructed implement shed with shop, and a 48'X64' pole-constructed 4-bay concrete floor heifer barn with feed storage, concrete barnyard and automatic waterers. This property also has drilled well, on-site sewage and 1,871' hardtop road frontage on Muddy Run and Rockville Road. A modern dairy facility overlooking the Juniata River Valley, ready for immediate occupancy.

Renaissance Announces Startup Of New Manufacturing Facility

ROARING SPRING (Blair Co.) — Renaissance Nutrition has announced the completion and startup of its new, state-of-the-art manufacturing facility. The new plant allows the company to meet the demands of its sales growth with increased efficiency and continued quality. It also allows Renaissance to manufacture super concentrates, adding to its already extensive premix and base mix product line.

From its beginnings in 1986, Renaissance has shown rapid growth as a nutrition and premix company, serving the needs of producers in an expanding marketing area. It is currently the largest nutrition and premix company in the northeast and mid-Atlantic region, and is rapidly developing into the Midwest.

Construction on the new facility began in March 2002, with steady progress until its commissioning in January 2003. Capacity in the new plant will exceed 20 tons of finished product per hour and expand Renaissance's ability to obtain raw materials by rail and truck.

The facility also provides bulk storage for 1,000 tons of up to 20 different raw materials. It is fully mechanized and operated by WEM automation, helping to ensure a precise, quality output of every product manufactured.

The Roaring Spring location is the company's national headquarters. Renaissance serves producers with an extensive range of products and nutritional services, which include the most up-to-date technology and information available in agriculture. Approximately 85 percent of the company's total product output is made up of custom mixes for individual farms.

CLUTCHES/GEAR REDUCTION ASSEMBLIES

Our Specialty

We stock them, stock the parts, pinions, gears, bearings, seals & gaskets, splined out puts, shafts, housing adaptors/reducers, and pilot bearing holders. With little or no changes, these new clutch/gear reduction assemblies could fit your gas or diesel engine - 50-100hp. Five different gear ratios. A valuable link between your engine and power take-off shaft equipment.

CLUTCH / 5.8:1 Planetary Gear Reduction Assemblies

For 8-30 HP Engines
Fits most — Honda, Robin, Kohler, Kawasaki, others (1–2 cyl.)

- Fits most standard crankshafts – 1", 1⅛", 1⅞"
- Aluminum Castings/Housings
- Ball & roller bearings, hardened gears

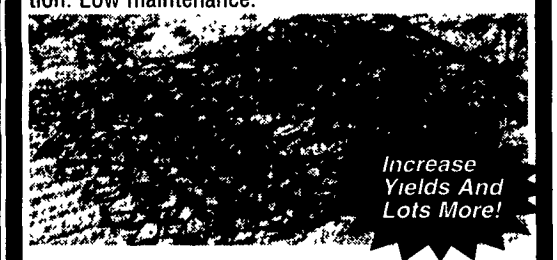
Binkley & Hurst Bros. Inc Offers This Low Cost Harrow

Fueust Flex-i-ble Tine Harrow

Aerates and scarifies to stimulate growth, improve moisture penetration. Breaks up manure to speed decomposition, reduce parasites. Works in seeds after reseeding. Maintains rings and tracks 4 to 42 ft. widths. Adjustable penetration. Low maintenance.



HERBICIDE INCORPORATION: Independent research using black light photography proves the Fuerst Harrow behind your disk or cultivator gives you "near perfect" incorporation in one pass – better than implements costing several times more! Shreds trash as it prepares & levels seedbeds

BROADCASTING SMALL GRAINS AND GRASSES: University of Illinois found overseeding by broadcasting followed by a Fuerst Harrow a superior combination, out-performing equipment costing more than 10 times as much Pulled behind the broadcaster, it covers seed to desired depth in one time-saving operation.

SHREDS STALKS: Shreds and spreads stalks in spring ahead of no-till and ridge-till planting.

4 to 42 ft. widths Flexes to cover every inch at 6-8 mph No maintenance Easy to use and store Insist on the original "Spreading Action" ® tines.

SIZES IN STOCK: 6', 8' AND 12'

Ultra Series
SNOW WOLF
Heavy Duty Skid Loader Plows

Trip Cutting Edge Design
The SnowWolf Ultra features a trip cutting edge design which allows full down pressure for incredible scraping ability in forward or backdragging situations It eliminates "false tripping" from snow load and will only engage if you actually strike an immovable object

Massive Construction
The SnowWolf Ultra is designed to take abuse from the largest skid loaders At approximately 100 pounds per foot of plowing width, you know the Ultra means business

Food for Thought
Did you know that a modern skid loader with a high speed transmission and a SnowWolf Ultra will outplow a pickup truck under most plowing conditions? A cleaner job, closer to the obstacles (without worrying about your fenders), and more acres plowed in the same amount of time!

INJECTORS

Have you serviced yours?

Bad Injectors Cause:

- Excessive Fuel Consumption
- Poor Starting
- Loss Of Power
- Misfiring
- Black Smoke
- Overheating

So service them regularly!
As always, injectors are checked free of charge

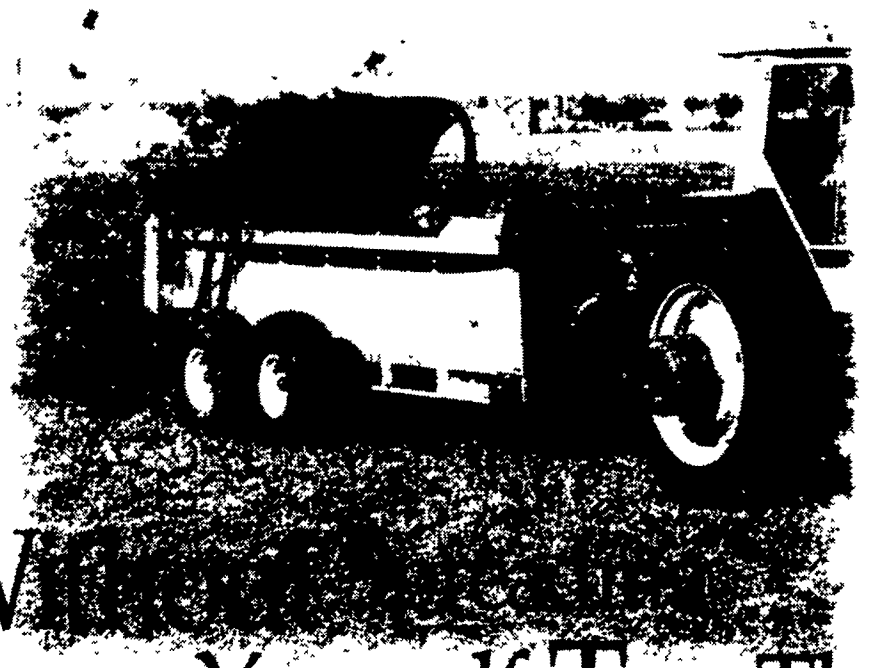
Match A Spreader To Your Needs



Without Selling Yourself Too Thin

Get Unmatched Flexibility At A Great Price.

With eight sizes to choose from and a wide variety of options, it's easy to see how the New Idea® 3700 Series Spreaders meet the needs of any operation Their aggressive, main beater paddles are strategically spaced and angled to shred a wide range of material while giving you a consistent spread pattern

Culvert-grade galvanizing over one-piece, copper-bearing steel sides provide a barrier against rust and corrosion And for hauling long distances, the truck-mount option proves to be the safest, most economical way to transport large amounts of material

To see how simple it is to customize your spreading operation, contact your AGCO® New Idea dealer today You'll be surprised how much time and money you'll save with the New Idea 3700 Series Spreaders.

GEHL.

YOUR LIVESTOCK IMPLEMENT LINE since 1859

PROVEN PERFORMER

Gehl's Scavenger® Spreader delivers the performance you need year after year, with increased durability and outstanding application control. All thanks to the following features.

- Heavy-duty round core auger with segmented paddles to blend manure. Powered both up and down to ram through heavy loads and break up bridging.
- Special "V" tank design to handle solid, heavy bedded, semi-solid, self-leveling and liquid manure.
- Adjustable auger and expeller speeds spread more types of manure.
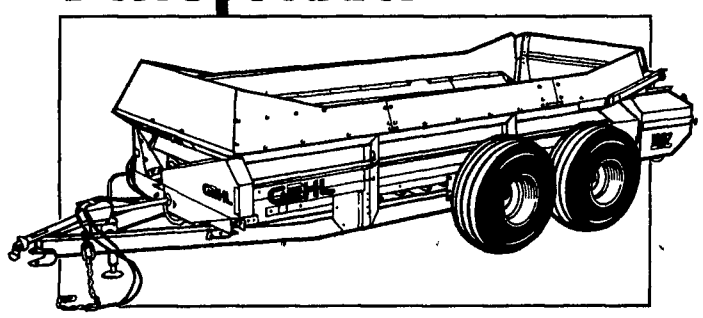
- Variflow™ discharge featuring square-tooth expeller paddles for smooth, even spreading at the rate you choose.

Cash Rebates up to $2,000

One Tough Box Spreader

GEHL the name means quality since 1859



Gehl Box Spreaders deliver outstanding performance in a variety of materials. And they're built extra-strong for more years of dependable service. Available in four sizes, these units can be custom-equipped to match your operation. See your Gehl dealer for complete details.

- Excellent Spread Patterns - In a variety of materials.
- 12-Year Warranty - On sides and floor.
- High-Density Polyethylene Flooring - Virtually indestructible.
- Options Include - Hydraulic remote control, hydraulic drive, hydraulic endgate and liquid side extensions

Your Next Skid Steer Might Not Be A Skid Steer

Introducing the RC•50, R•50, and RC•30

Twenty-four rubber wheels spread machine weight over a large ground contact area, so these machines exert very low ground pressure - ideal on landscapes or soft conditions.

Lifemaster SKZ is the answer for the heavy duty contractor looking for more tread life in highly abrasive applications such as asphalt or concrete. Lifemaster SKZ also has excellent traction on soft ground because of multiple "Z" shaped lugs. Due to its deeper tread design, the Lifemaster SKZ will deliver 30 to 50% longer wear versus even the hauler SKS. And at a very affordable price.

Cargill Feed Plant Construction Under Way In Blair County

ROARING SPRINGS (Blair Co.) — In stark contrast to last December's spring-like temperatures, Cargill Animal Nutrition began construction on their previously announced feed mill project in a much more traditional weather setting.

"With nearly 20 inches of snowfall this month we were very pleased with the efforts of Vigen Construction to start the project and stay on schedule" said General Manager John Griffin. Initial work included site preparation for the mill tower, re-routing power lines and general preparation measures geared to ensure that normal operations experience little disruption.

Griffin commented, "As important as this project is to meet the long-term demands of our customer base, we are making every effort to assure that operations of our existing mineral premix facility (Young's) continue to meet current business demands."

Cargill's new mill will be integrated into the existing plant to take advantage of current and new technologies. "Our employees have done an outstanding job in teaming up with Vigen's crew and all orders have been processed and shipped on time," said Griffin.

The new mill will begin operating in Summer 2003. When completed, it will be Central Pennsylvania's most modern facility. The design incorporates engineering technologies that allow Cargill consultants to design and deliver customized nutrition solutions via the Cargill Dairy Focus program.

Griffin concluded, "Dairy Focus allows our trained consultant team to deploy Cargill proprietary technologies directly to each individual farm client including the unique design of the feeds themselves."

Cargill Animal Nutrition employees over 9,200 people at 178 feed plants worldwide servicing a variety of species. Cargill, Incorporated is an international marketer, processor and distributor of agricultural, food, financial and industrial products and services with 90,000 employees in 57 countries.

Binkley & Hurst Conducts Va. Seminar

BRIDGEWATER, VA. — "We conducted a Binkley & Hurst Bros. Seminar on Friday, Jan. 24," said Don Hoover, sales manager of Binkley & Hurst, Lititz, who opened and closed the meeting here at Evers Restaurant. It was followed by a buffet luncheon .

Service personnel from Binkley & Hurst Bros. presented in-depth coverage of the topics slated to be discussed. Included in the subject matter was the preparation, use, maintenance, and operation of planting equipment in various soil and weather conditions.

In conjunction, Rich Watts of Kinze Mfg. provided a slide presentation on the planters.

Some 45 farmers attended the educational forum on all brand planters that was approximately 90 minutes in length.

All-Natural Product Stops The Run On Scours

CLARKSTON, Wash.—New, improved LCR Paste Plus can give the edge in raising a young animal, whether referring to cattle, sheep, goat, or horses.

Rick Larson of Larson Century Ranch has lifelong experience with cattle and knows that his product can answer the scour problem.

"After using it myself with my cattle, I started giving out samples," Larson said. "It was phenomenal. People loved it. We had it in liquid and then went to a paste."

The paste is placed in a device that looks similar to a caulking gun. It is easily administered.

Larson said that some of the worst cases of scours come with dairy calves. Because of the large number of cows confined in an area, they are susceptible to a number of problems. A calf can come into the world with one disease resistance.

Larson suggests that if you purchase beef or dairy calves, whether from a dairy or sale yard, administer a dose of the New Improved LCR Paste Plus before transporting them.

Describing the effect of the paste on a calf, Larson said, "They 'light up.' Energy wise, they pick up."

Friendly bacteria begins to flourish and the calf's immune system picks up vigor and is then capable of fighting off scours and other side effects, such as pneumonia.

For the cattle or dairy producer who raises heifers for replacement, the LCR Paste Plus helps to raise a more disease-resistant cow.

LCR Paste Plus is made up of the best mineral products available on the market and is easy and convenient to use.

Governor Signs Hershey's Veterinary Bill Into Law

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Veterinarians are now required to update their skills and knowledge through more continuing education courses, and farmers will benefit from clarification of the veterinarian-client-patient relationship under legislation authored by Rep. Art Hershey (R-13) and signed into law by the governor, Dec. 9, 2002.

"This bill updates the Veterinary Medicine Practice Act to reflect changes in the field since the law was adopted in 1986," said Hershey.

The new law calls for veterinarians to increase their continuing education requirements from eight hours in a two-year period to 30 hours. Veterinary technicians are also required to complete 16 hours of continuing education every two years.

"It is important that animal owners, specifically farmers, know their veterinarian has the most up-to-date training and knowledge of medications and techniques used in the field," said Hershey.

Farmers will benefit from clarification of the veterinarian-client-patient relationship contained in the legislation. According to the law, a relationship is established once five specific conditions are satisfied. The conditions are as follows:

- The veterinarian has assumed the responsibility for making veterinary medical judgments regarding the health of the animals and the need for veterinary medical treatment, and the client, owner or caretaker has agreed to follow the instructions of the veterinarian.
- The veterinarian has sufficient knowledge of the animals to initiate at least a general, preliminary or tentative diagnosis of the medical condition of the animals.
- The veterinarian is acquainted with the keeping and care of the animals by virtue of an examination of the animals or medically appropriate and timely visits to the premises where the animals are kept.
- The veterinarian is available for consultation in cases of adverse reactions to or failure of the regimen of therapy.
- The veterinarian maintains records on animals examined in accordance with regulations established by the board.

"As a dairy farmer and legislator I was glad to be able to update the Veterinary Medicine Practice Act to address changes in the field over the past 16 years," said Hershey. "This is an important piece of legislation that will greatly affect the practice of veterinary medicine and those that rely on their services."

Agway Announces Leadership Change

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Agway Inc. announced that Donald P. Cardarelli will resign as president, chief executive officer, and a director of Agway Inc. effective April 1. The company also announced that Michael R. Hopsicker, a 13-year company veteran, has been named chief operating officer effective immediately and will succeed Cardarelli.

"This was a decision that the board and I reached after assessing our progress to date and our needs going forward," said Cardarelli, who has been CEO since 1995. "By April we expect to have completed all of the major restructuring initiatives we announced early last year, including the very important step of selling our lease financing business. Agway will then be a more focused and smaller organization. The next phase is to develop the plan for the company's emergence from Chapter 11. That plan should be developed and carried out under the leadership that is expected to be part of Agway's future."

Agway Board Chairman Gary Van Slyke said that naming Mike Hopsicker to succeed Cardarelli was a unanimous decision of the Agway Board. "Mike Hopsicker has exhibited tremendous leadership capabilities and brings considerable experience as well as a successful business track record at Agway to this position. We are confident that Mike is the right person to lead us through the reorganization process and beyond," said Van Slyke.

Hopsicker recently served as executive vice president of agriculture and energy and president of Agway Energy Products. He joined Agway as a financial analyst in 1989. Over the years, Hopsicker took on a number of key assignments that have drawn on his expertise and talents in the areas of financial management, strategic planning, business restructuring and business development. Most recently, Hopsicker led the successful effort to sell the company's Agronomy and Seed businesses. Since 1996, Hopsicker has provided overall leadership to the Agway Energy Products team, which has taken this business to a level where profits are consistently earned each year. In addition to his new role, Hopsicker will remain president of Agway Energy Products.

New Arm Coulter Planter Makes No-Till Planting Faster, More Precise

COLCHESTER, Ill. — Yetter has unveiled a new 2960 Double-Arm Coulter for planter row units to add to its array of productivity-boosting tools. According to Yetter design engineer Lonnie Lucas, the twin-arm design ensures that the heavy-duty hub assembly stays centered in front of the double disc opener.

"In no-till, you need a strong, reliable coulter assembly to optimize the seed-to-soil contact that translates into vigorous root growth and uniform emergence," says Lucas. "This new twin-armed 2960 is just that."

Lucas adds that the unique design features of the 2960 Double-Arm Coulter enhance field performance and versatility. A universal mounting bracket that adapts to most popular planters includes eight holes, set at ⅜-inch increments, to permit precise coulter depth adjustments. This adjustment system also allows mounting close to the front of the planter unit, making it easier to integrate residue managers and other tools.

According to Lucas, the 2960 Double-Arm, like all Yetter coulters, features a heavy-duty gusseted hub that has proven itself over the past 30 years on farms all over North America. The hub centers on a 1¼-inch spindle with greaseable tapered roller bearings.

To best match their specific tillage practices, soil types and soil conditions, producers can choose from a wide variety of coulter blades. "The right blade will prepare the soil at the same time the seed is planted and lessen sidewall compaction while loosening the soil for enhanced seed trench closing," says Lucas. "And because you make fewer passes with coulter tillage, you use less fuel, reduce planting costs, plant more acres in less time and get a quicker return on your investment."

Census Is Counting On You

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The 2002 Census of Agriculture has begun, with farmers and ranchers all across the country being mailed forms that will help provide a comprehensive portrait of agriculture throughout the nation.

The Census, conducted every five years, helps in farm program development and other farm, food, and agriculture issues important to the farm sector.

"Input and participation from producers is critical," said U.S. Agriculture Secretary Ann Veneman, who announced various public outreach efforts being undertaken to increase participation.

Participation deadline is Feb. 3, 2003. Data provided are held strictly confidential by law. Statistical results are aggregated and published only in geographical summaries to prevent identification of individual farms.

EVERLAST II EVERLAST II EVERLAST II
Metal Roofs Aren't Created Equal

EVERLAST II IS BETTER:
- it is galvanized heavier, like old times.
- it is heat formed, less paint cracks.
- is cut while hot, prevents early edge rust.
- won't scratch as easy, paint is harder.
- won't bend or buckle as easy, stronger design.
- laps are tighter, and virtually invisible.
- nail/screws seal better, ribs fit tighter to head.
- zinc phosphate, not chromate under paint.
- still priced about the same or less.

EVERLAST II
is excellent for houses and barns.
DOUBLE DIPPED GALVANIZED is proven best for animals.
STANDING SEAM
is ideal for houses.

Galvanized or Galvalume?

For metal roofing and siding, which is better, painted Galvanized or painted Galvalume?. Galvanizing is many times better if it's mill certified G100. Why is it better? Galvanizing tends to "heal" when scratched The more galvanizing, the better. Everlast is ten times better at "healing" than galvalume because galvalume hardly "heals" at all when scratched Also cut edges rust quickly on galvalume.

Having Problems Getting Milk Cold?
Consider a Mueller pre-cooler. It's an excellent way to lower the cost of cooling milk. It reduces milk temperature with water pumped straight out of your well. Mueller® precoolers are available in sizes to work with any system. If lower electric bills would make your life easier, call us and ask for more information on Mueller precoolers.

BEEF TIPS
It is important that calves receive colostrum as quickly as possible. Livestock specialists say that calves need two quarts by the end of their first six hours and another two quarts before they're 12 hours old. Colostrum should be collected and frozen from the user's own herd, but can be obtained from neighboring dairies, if needed. It can be frozen for several months and still be effective.

- Dakota alfalfas are dormancy rated at "2" and proven to excel in winter hardiness and production!
- Trask Seed is American grown and priced to reflect no corporate monopolies!

PA farmers have great hay crops with South Dakota alfalfa seed. Painterland Farms, Westfield, PA, John Painter said "The Trask's seed grew extremely well. We recommend it to anyone. It is real leafy and yielded as well as any of the high priced name brand seeds. It cost 40% as much. We planted 294 acres. We intend to plant more this spring. It was exceptionally winter hardy and resisted frost damage. We are very pleased."

Join the numerous farmers in the PA/NY area harvesting superb alfalfa from South Dakota seed

Announcing:
Crude Soy Oil Now Available
With the addition of our new soybean processing facility, we now offer soybean oil as an animal nutrition product. Processing the soybeans ourselves allows us to utilize locally grown soybeans and support our local agricultural community!

Crude Soybean Oil
A product of Keystone's expelling process, this oil can be used in a wide variety of on farm applications. Crude soy oil is a natural alternative to animal fats and provides needed energy in various rations.

Uses of Crude Soy Oil Include:
- Use as a high energy feed ingredient in swine and poultry diets.
- Especially useful in sow lactation diets, pig starter and grow/finish diets.
- Used as an added energy source in broiler, turkey and layer feeds.
- Can be used for dust control purposes.
- Can be used as a lubricant for feeding systems.

Advantages of Crude Soy Oil:
- Use as a direct replacement for animal fat.
- Vegetable based product.
- Holding tank does not need to be heated if temperature is above 30 degrees, which reduces storage and handling costs compared to animal fat.
- Bulk delivery, partial loads available direct to farm by Keystone Mills.
- Customer may pick up to save delivery costs.

Other Soy Products Available:
- Keystone offers Golden Pro 46 XP which is 46% protein - 6-7% oil, Golden Meal 40 which is 40% crude protein with 18% oil.

Keystone Mills Soybean Exchange Program
- We will take your soybeans in trade for Golden ProXP 46, Golden Meal 40.
- Contact Keystone Mills for details on our soybean exchange program featuring these quality nutritional products.

FARMS & LAND NEEDED NOW!

You the farming Community were very good to me in years past especially 2002. 2002 was my best year ever in 34 years of continuous Real Estate Brokerage and Auctioneering. It has been a wonderful year with all those of you I came to know and appreciate. Since 1980 I've only handled farms and mountain land in my Real Estate Division. I now have added a young Apprentice Auctioneer - Ben Siegrist to my sales force. Ben lives in Willow Street and is familiar with farms and farmers. Ben understands your needs and is willing to get involved in solving your problems and needs Ben is also studying to become a farm Real Estate Agent and work from my office as an Independent Contractor. Call Ben (717-464-4268) or myself anytime of the day (Sundays excepted) Ben will be glad to talk to you as an Apprentice Auctioneer for cattle, equipment and/or Real Estate at AUCTION.

Present Listing Portfolio is low as most of my listing SOLD & SETTLED in 2002.

Listings now ready for quick sale & settlement
Coming Co 96 acres for beef, dairy, nursery stock or exotic animals Move in soon. Priced under $295K

Fish Farmer Explores Ways To Market

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

BOYERTOWN (Berks Co.) — "Farmers, by definition, are entrepreneurs — they have to think about the market. I have a great location here, I have the capacity to hold the fish, I'm near millions of people and hundreds of restaurants.

"I had to think about what are my strengths, and what I could do better or best compared to my competitors," said Mark Scott, Berks County Commissioner and part-time fish farmer of Mark C. Scott Aquaculture Corporation.

"I started with the customer and worked my way back to the farm. What the farm does is what the customer wants, not what I want to do."

Scott explained the progress of the farm, which has been in his family since 1949.

Scott's grandfather, Erwin Michelfelder, as a boy in southern Germany, used to catch and keep fish in water of the family's mill, then sell the fish to passersby.

When Michelfelder came to the U.S., "he always dreamed of raising trout," said Scott, so after working in the deli meat business Michelfelder found the farm he was looking for, complete with its own spring. In 1949 Michelfelder purchased the farm and opened for business in 1951.

He sold the fish to sportmans' clubs, private landowners, and restaurants, including the Blue Bell Inn, which Scott has continued to supply with fish since Michelfelder began selling to the inn in 1959.

After building the raceways and hatching areas for the fish, Michelfelder continued in the business, learning as he went, until he had a stroke in 1981.

At the time Scott was a lawyer in Reading but decided to tale a break from practicing law to move to Boyertown and begin work on the

PennAqua 2002 Highlights Growing Industry

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The PennAqua 2002 conference, conducted every two years, featured a growing industry with plenty of possibilities, according to several conference speakers.

The event, conducted Oct. 24-26 at the Penn Stater Hotel and Conference Center, drew 140 participants from Pennsylvania, Ohio, Virginia, West Virginia, New York, and even North Carolina and Florida.

Topics included hatch house management, the privatization of state trout stocking, designing ornamental systems, startup considerations, managing fish health on the farm, and effluent permitting and management, among others.

Speakers included specialists in a wide variety of industry disciplines.

Leo Dunn, Pennsylvania's aquaculture coordinator since 1991, opened the conference.

Dunn was followed by Dr. Ted Alter, associate vice president for outreach and cooperative extension, Penn State. Alter highlighted the opportunities and challenges in aquaculture.

"There is significant economic opportunity for aquaculture development in Pennsylvania," said Alter.

Aquaculture's variety — products can be used as food for human consumption, in the ornamental sector, and as sports and bait fish — "positions it as a viable opportunity that is relatively undeveloped to where it could be, in terms

Hort Expert: Get To The 'Root' Of A Plant's Ills

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — Most problems with landscape plants originate below ground, according to a Penn State horticulture specialist.

And nursery managers would do well to dispel some of the myths about what happens in the root zone during a drought.

Rick Bates, ornamental horticulture specialist at Penn State, spoke to about 30 nursery, landscape, and related business representatives in late October 2002 at a drought workshop sponsored by the Pennsylvania Landscape and Nursery Association (PLNA) at the Grantville Holiday Inn.

Nursery managers should learn to get to the root of the problem by looking at what makes a healthy root zone. That includes producing "the plant in as stress-free an environment as possible," said Bates.

Many believe, according to Bates, that the root actually is a "mirror image of the tree's crown," he said. In reality, more than 95 percent of the roots of a landscape plant such as a tree are in the top three feet of the soil, with most of the fine roots in the top six inches of soil. The roots also extend a great distance farther out — about two to three times the crown spread.

And more than 60 percent of the root systems can be located outside the dripline. Older plants do not have a taproot.

Why do they stretch out so far from the trunk? Mostly, it's an "oxygen issue," Bates said. The respiration needed to allow plants to grow occurs in the top layer of the soil.

Trouble is, 95 percent of the Mid-Atlantic Fruit, Vegetable Convention Feb. 4-6

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Fruit and vegetable growers from throughout the mid-Atlantic region and beyond will be gathering here at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center Feb. 4-6 for the 2003 Mid-Atlantic Fruit and Vegetable Convention.

About 2,000 persons are expected for the annual event that has become recognized as one of the premier fruit and vegetable grower meetings in the Northeast.

The convention has been jointly sponsored by the State Horticultural Association of Pennsylvania, the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association, the Maryland State Horticultural Society, and the New Jersey State Horticultural Society for the past 25 years.

The Great American Hall at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center will host the trade show with more than 130 exhibitors. Specialized horticultural equipment, farm market merchandise, and packaging will all be on display along with information on the latest seed varieties, fruit varieties, pesticides, and other supplies and services for the commercial grower.

Six or more concurrent educational sessions will be offered on all three days of the convention. The following full-day sessions are planned for the first day: tree fruits, season extension technology, vegetable production school, and wine grapes. Half-day sessions on sweet corn, alliums (onions, garlic, and leeks), beans, wholesale marketing, labor and legal issues, potatoes, and greenhouse vegetables will be offered.

On the second day, full-day sessions on peaches, tree fruits, direct marketing, greenhouse ornamentals (bedding plants and perennials), and potatoes will be featured. Also scheduled are half-day sessions on small fruit, weed control, irrigation, wine grapes, and wildlife management.

The convention will close on the third day with full-day sessions on tree fruits, small fruit, tomatoes (covering both fresh and processing topics), and cut flowers. Half-day sessions on peaches, pumpkins, and fall ornamentals, vine crops, organic vegetables will also be offered.

Many pesticide applicator update training credits are available to growers attending the sessions. The program covers nearly every aspect of fruit, vegetable, potato, and small fruit production. Commercial growers should not pass up this educational opportunity.

On Feb. 4, fruit and vegetable growers will be treated to a reception followed by the annual fruit and vegetable growers dinner. The dinner will include awards, recognitions, and entertainment.

On Feb. 5, the Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Board and the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association will each sponsor evening receptions for growers. The processing tomato growers with the highest yields for the 2002 season will be honored at the annual Tomato Award Luncheon on the closing day, Feb. 6.

For more information on the fruit program and registration, contact Maureen Irvin, State Horticultural Association of Pennsylvania, (717) 677-4184 or www.shaponline.org; William Tietjen, New Jersey State Horticultural Society, (908) 475-6505 or www.cccnj.net/(tilde)njshs/; or Robert Black, Maryland State Horticultural Society, (301) 271-7491.

For more information on the vegetable, potato or greenhouse ornamental program and registration, contact William Troxell, Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association, (717) 694-3596 or www.pvga.org.

Persons registered for either the fruit or vegetable program can attend all the sessions offered (fruit, vegetable, and small fruit sessions) plus the trade show. Registration either through the mail or at the door is required to attend both the trade show and educational sessions.

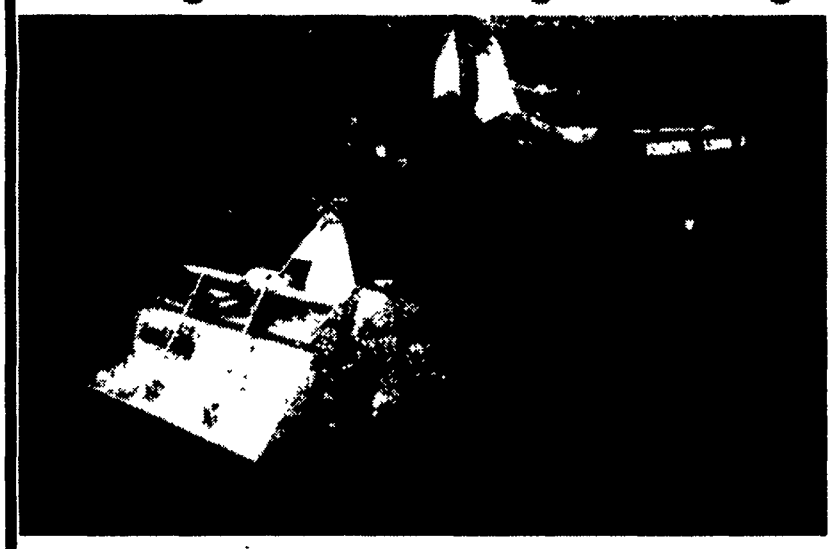
No Doubt ... The Best Rotary Tiller Money Can Buy.



Land Pride's Reverse-till Rotary Tiller is perfect for gardens, farms, orchards, landscaping, nurseries and commercial use. Its reverse tilling action and coil spring "sifting" tines create a ready-to-plant seedbed in fewer passes than a conventional tiller.

Available in 55", 62" and 70" widths.

Ag Progress Days Food Booth Sets Record

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Once again, bright sunny weather cooler than the scorching heat of the previous week, plus the aroma of the delicious vegetable stir-fry introduced two years ago, set the stage for another sales record at the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association food booth at Ag Progress Days.

After average sales of about $3,000 for the first six years with sales reaching $3,600 in 1999 and 2000, gross sales for 2001 exceeded $5,100 and continued to climb this year to $5,279.

About 550 servings of vegetable stir-fry were served this year compared to about 475 last year. A nutritious mixture of peppers, cabbage, zucchini, summer squash, broccoli, tomatoes, onions, garlic and seasonings, the stir-fry has gained a good reputation at Ag Progress Days. Some of the produce for the stir-fry is produced at the Penn State horticulture Farm.

The best seller at the booth, however, is the Strawberry Surprise slush drink. About 1,400 drinks were whipped up this year. Even though they sell equally well at the Farm Show in January, they are especially refreshing on a hot sunny August day.

Diced watermelon and cantaloupe continue to sell well along with corn-on-the-cob. The cantaloupes and some of the watermelon were also produced at the Penn State Horticulture Farm.

Overall, after direct expenses, a profit of about $2,700 was earned. Like the profits from the Association's booth at the Farm Show, these profits enable PVGA to contribute funds for vegetable and small fruit research and promotion.

Volunteer help from PVGA members and friends is the only reason these kinds of profits are possible. The Ag Progress Days booth is especially dependent on Penn State faculty, staff, and county extension agents as growers are so busy at this time of year.

Narrow Transport Width. The 2160 can be folded into a transport width of 113" for easier travel on roads and through gates Replaceable, full-length skid shoes are standard to help prevent wear to the deck mainframe. The 3/16" pan blade carrier is reinforced with a 3/4" steel plate in the bottom of the pan for added strength and momentum. The deck side skirts are 1/4" x 9-1/4" to handle large volumes of material Front and rear rubber safety deflectors are standard equipment

Servis® 1948 Hydraulic Boom Flail Cutters are designed for mowing grass and cutting brush in hard-to-reach areas including roadsides, ditchbanks, ponds, and fence rows. Large model with up to 18'8" horizontal reach and up to 4" diameter brush cutting

SE8
In Stock

The Rhino® SE8 is an economical rotary mower designed to help maintain larger acreages of grass, weeds, stalks, or material up to 1" in diameter.

The streamlined, close-coupled design allows economical operation on tractors as small as 30 horsepower on the SE8 The 85 HP center gearbox and 60 HP outboard gearboxes are protected from sudden shockloads by a slip clutch on the main driveline and torque dampeners on the side driveshafts Pan blade carriers help the unit glide over field obstacles and updraft blades with a 4" blade overlap provide a clean cut.

PAUL B. Zimmerman INC.
High Pressure Produce Sprayers
Trailer or 3 Pt. Hitch Models

Zimmerman's manufactures several different model sprayers designed for produce spraying. They are built for the small farmer that cannot justify a large expensive sprayer. Trailer models are available with a 200 or 300 gallon tank and 3pt hitch models with a 110, 150, 200 or 300 gallon tank. The 25' single sided boom has 7' plus clearance and requires a minimal amount of drive rows because of the wide span. It also has a hydraulic cylinder that allows the operator to level the boom from the tractor seat. A Hypro high pressure diaphragm provides up to 290 p.s.i. and non-drip nozzle bodies keep chemical loss minimal. Stop or call Zimmerman's today to see how we can help you with your spraying needs and improve your profit margin.

of potential," he said.

"The industry can not just be productive, but economically productive and profitable," in the face of considerations such as biology, nutrition, waste management, food safety, and consumer behavior and marketing.

The keynote address of Thursday was delivered by Albert Tacon, director, Aquatic Feeds and Nutrition, Aquatic Farms Ltd., Hawaii.

The challenges facing the aquatic industry are no different than any other food sector, said Tacon. The industry, which is growing at a rate of 9-10 percent per year, based on year 2000 data, is very heterogeneous, boasting more than 200 species of plants and animals.

Half of the aquatic products (mainly seaweeds, which command $2-$3 per pound) are grown in sea water and are mostly for human consumption.

Besides seaweed, aquaculture supplies 70 percent of all the fish that America consumes, to the tune of 14.8 pounds of seafood per person in 2001.

In fact, U.S. consumers spent $553 billion for fishery products in 2001, according to Tacon.

On the world front, China alone produces 72 percent of total world aquaculture production, followed by India and Japan.

Citizens of developing countries, he said, tend to consume more fish — 50 percent of the protein they consume — since it is a more accessible and affordable source of protein.

As a farming activity in the U.S., aquaculture still has a minor position in, for instance, government policy and considerations, he said.

"We have a seafood trade deficit of almost $7 billion. That the politicians understand."

The U.S. imports $3.6 billion of shrimp, for example. Major exporters of fish (by value) are first Thailand, then China, and third Norway.

America, which exports feed, runs the risk of supplying the world with cheap feed inputs and being swamped with higher cost food imports, he said.

In the U.S., 63 percent of aquaculture production is channel catfish, followed by the Pacific cupped oyster and rainbow trout.

Tacon sees the future of aquaculture in America in a positive light.

"We have a freight train and its growing very fast, although not in all sectors," said Tacon. Growth depends on how the industry faces certain challenges, he said.

For example, aquaculture operators will have to become environmentally and ecologically responsible and socially acceptable, he said.

"At the end of the day, the top of the food chain is the consumer, because they either buy or don't buy fish," Tacon said, so fish food and human food safety are important concerns to the industry.

Traceability and labeling will become more important to health- and safety-conscious consumers.

Also, marketing will also become increasingly important. "We've got to get a lot smarter at convincing people to eat a lot more fish and touting the protein's health benefits," he said.

Tacon sees increased biosecurity and increased transparency in food production on the horizon for the industry. In addition, aquaculture needs to position itself as a recycler of aquatic feed and wastes — turning by-products into food.

Marc Tosciano, Pennsylvania State Director, National Ag Statistics Service, informed conference attendees about the 2002 aquaculture census that will count all the aquaculture growers in the commonwealth. The project is funded by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and is a mandatory census. Results will be summarized and public when all the reports are in.

On the other hand, the trout census, funded by the USDA, includes 20 major states, and is voluntary. Results should be summarized and published by Feb. 28. Information in both surveys is confidential.

Thomas Zeigler, president, Zeigler Brothers, Inc., a specialty feed manufacturer, Gettysburg, also spoke at the conference.

"There is a growing consensus that aquaculture is destined to play a major role in supplying the world with food," he said. Industry leadership and vision, government support, and adequate research is necessary for growth, he said.

Zeigler presented details on several years of milestones in Pennsylvania aquaculture.

The commonwealth hosts 160 aquaculture facilities, he said. However, Pennsylvania is significantly behind in reaching its economic potential — it is lagging in its contribution to the total Pennsylvania economy, said Zeigler.

Greenhouse, Landscape School Feb. 26

TOWANDA (Bradford Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension in Bradford County will host a Greenhouse and Landscape School on Feb. 26 at the Patterson Building at Guthrie Square in Sayre from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

There will be concurrent sessions for both greenhouse growers and landscapers. Landscapers can come and learn which insect and mite problems that they can expect for 2003 here in northeast Pennsylvania.

Greg Hoover, extension entomologist from Penn State, will speak to landscapers about insect control. Also on the morning program will be Lee Nelson to speak about perennials in the landscape. Nelson is an authority on perennials and their care. In the afternoon, landscapers will be able to learn tips to help them more effectively prune trees and shrubs. Penn State urban forrester Vinnie Cotrone will lead the workshop.

Al Scala, consultant with Penn State Seed Company will speak to greenhouse growers. Scala has more than 40 years of experience in the green industry and will speak to growers on tips for successful greenhouse management. Also on the program for greenhouse growers will be Penn State Entomologist Greg Hoover, speaking on beneficial insects and their place in controlling pests in the greenhouse. In the afternoon, Lee Nelson will speak to greenhouse growers on perennials and their selection, care in the greenhouse, and point of purchase tips.

Cost for the program is $25, which includes a hot lunch. Pesticide credits will be offered for this program — two core pesticide points and two category points for categories 1, 6, 18, 22, and 23.

A complete program and sign-up form can be obtained by calling the Penn State Cooperative Extension Office at (570) 265-2896. Registrations are due by Feb. 17. If you have any questions about the program, contact Tom Maloney, extension agent, at (570) 265-2896.

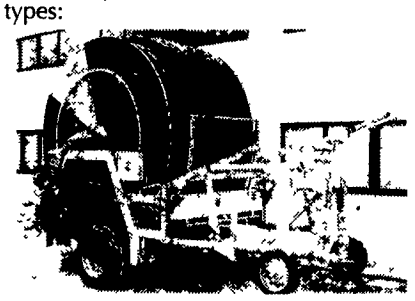
"TICO/FERBO HOSE REELS"

Now, a new generation of automatic hard hose reels that feature variable travel speed selection with automatic constant compensation to provide uniform irrigation over entire length of pass, and operate at low input pressure to easily, efficiently, economically irrigate or spread liquid manure.

TICO, a leader in irrigation systems for over 30 years, also offers these other types:



• WHEEL ROW
• GIANT SPRINKLER
• HAND MOVE • TRICKLE
• LIQUID MANURE AND WASTE WATER DISPOSAL

Also virtually all makes of couplers, fittings and gaskets, plus pumps, pipe, diesel, gas, and electric motors.

Need Irrigation or Waste Water Disposal?
CHOOSE AMERICA'S PREMIER TRAVELER FROM TICO/FERBO

• 52 Different Models
• 5 Drive Systems • 15 Hose Lengths

From 30-630 gallons per minute output and with hose lengths from 395 ft. up to 1650 ft. Standard features include Automatic Speed Compensation, galvanized cart and stabilizer legs, turntable, pto wind-up and optional hydraulic legs and cart lifting.

Economic Irrigation: With low input pressure requirements and constant speed irrigation, FERBO Travelers remain the leaders in low cost automatic irrigation. There isn't another traveler available that is simpler to operate or less expensive to maintain.

Waste Water Disposal: Our engine driven travelers are the simplest and most accurate on the market. Our computer controlled speed regulation ensures 99% accuracy to meet Federal/State design criteria while our simple yet efficient engine/gearbox drive ensures low maintenance.

Plus: We manufacture and market a complete line of: Slurry pumps, pump fittings, irrigation pumps, wheel row, giant sprinklers, hand move, trickle center pivots.

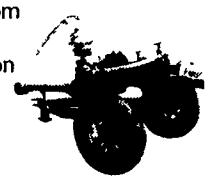
ROVATTI SLURRY PTO DRIVE PUMPS

Rovatti TL slurry pumps are high-pressure slurry pumps with a unique "bolt on" chopper system

The standard pump features a high efficiency open-vane impeller with an interchangeable wear ring and fixed cutting blade to handle all but the very toughest of straw, hay or other difficult residuals. For these conditions, the chopper unit can be simply bolted to the pump where it is driven by the existing pump shaft, enabling it to handle virtually any waste products requiring chopping.

A number of additional features make these the most versatile and reliable units on the market:

- Special permanently lubricated mechanical seal for longer life
- Over-sized bearings
- Lubricated chopper shaft bearings
- Chopper shaft shear-pin to reduce risk of damage to the shaft and impeller
- A range of four tractor pto pumps and four bare-shaft pumps with flows from 105-1000 gpm
- Replaceable wear ring
- 540 rpm or 1000 rpm speeds
- Finest grade cast iron for high efficiency
- Unique water-cooled gearbox for extended gear life.



The pump is mounted on a heavy-duty wheeled cart with pto shaft, 6" quick-action suction fittings and 4" discharge fittings as standard.

Growers Share IPM Experiences At New Holland Vegetable Day

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Three greenhouse tomato growers from the New Holland area reported good results using biological controls to control tomato pests, particularly aphids and spider mites. The panel spoke at the recent New Holland Vegetable Day at Yoder's restaurant.

Amos Sauder, Kenny Sauder, and Moses Sensenig reported similar success using predatory mites to control spider mites, as well as an aphid predator to control aphids.

The pest control methods are part of an integrated pest management (IPM) program being promoted in the area by Cathy Thomas, an IPM specialist with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

IPM involves regular monitoring of insects by using "sticky cards" which are hung at various location in the greenhouse to attract pests and are used to estimate pest populations.

"Sticky cards are extremely useful for scouting insects," said Kenny Sauder.

All three growers agreed that the predatory controls worked best before pest populations get too large.

For example, "If you have a big problem (with spider mites), you won't get rid of them with predators," Sauder noted.

The group agreed that chemicals may be required in cases where pest populations are high.

The panel pointed out some of the other factors that need to be managed in order to reduce insect and disease pressure in the greenhouse. These include controlling weeds — which harbor pests — and maintaining a well-ventilated greenhouse with low humidity.

Thomas said she is planning to expand the IPM program for controlling greenhouse pests, as well as pests in outdoor vegetable crops.

"We have so many tools to use today," Thomas said. "It's a whole integrated package.

Other IPM options include using nematodes to control fungus gnats. Predators are also available for whiteflies and thrips.

Thomas also pointed out that some recently introduced chemicals on the market are more compatible with the biological controls.

The three growers also employ bumblebees to pollinate their tomato crop. This saves labor and can improve pollination rates, according to panel members.

The bumblebees "know when to do it and they do it right," Moses Sensenig said.

A hive of bumblebees remains viable for about eight weeks. They can custom-ordered to match the size of the greenhouse.

The bees require caution because they are susceptible to various pesticides, the panel pointed out.

"You want to watch your chemicals (when using bumblebees)," Amos Sauder said.

For more information, contact Cathy Thomas at (717) 705-5857.

New Holland-area greenhouse tomato growers, from left, Amos Sauder, Kenny Sauder, and Moses Sensenig share their successes and challenges in using biological agents to control aphids and spider mites. The panel was part of the New Holland Vegetable Day at Yoder's Restaurant Jan. 20.

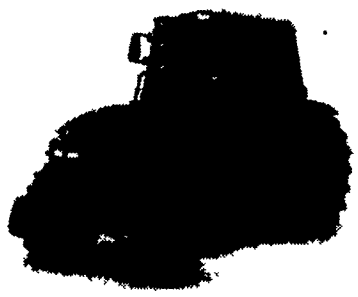
The McCormick F Series tractors (54-93 engine hp) engineered specifically for vineyard and orchard operations where compact design, maneuverability, power and stability are essential.

The F series' model variations include low clearance, long wheel base and wide wheel base options as well as deluxe cab or ROPS configurations to fit any production requirements. All models are powered by Perkins new-generation 3- and 4- cylinder engines. F series tractors feature a smooth, simple speed shuttle transmission with available creep and underdrive options, to provide maximum control.



Additional features:
- Hydraulic controlled PTO lever
- Integral Braking System (IBS)
- 55-degree turning angle
- Quiet cab for operator comfort
- L/XL/GE variations available

Brothers Manage 1,300-Acre Blueberry Farm

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

HAMMONTON, N.J. — In 1935, five Galetta brothers began propagating blueberry plants and selling the fruit from three acres in this area of the Pinelands National Reserve.

The Galetta brothers' new venture, which in the early years also included cranberries, steadily increased in acreage and sales. In 1949 the brothers purchased Atlantic Blueberry Company, which today is home to 1,300 acres of blueberry bushes and modern packing facilities run by six Galettas — sons of the original five brothers.

"As far as we know, we have the largest cultivated blueberry farm anywhere," said Al Galetta, one of four senior partners at Atlantic Blueberry Company.

The Galettas ship blueberries across the U.S. and Canada. Some of their berries are even exported to England and Europe.

Atlantic Blueberry Company fruit also ends up in a lot of Dannon yogurt, Mrs. Smith's pies, and other items such as McDonalds and Kraft products, Galetta said.

Originally home to pine and oak trees, the sandy, acidic soils of Atlantic Blueberry Farm are well-suited to growing the berries, which prefer soil pH around 4.5-5.0. The Galettas grow a range of varieties, from early-season to late, to maximize the harvest period.

About 60 percent of the berries are picked by the hands of 2,000 seasonal workers. The other 40 percent are harvested by tall, blue, three-wheel machines that straddle the row and coax the berries from the shrubs by flexible, orbiting 'fingers" that rotate on two vertical cylinders. The berries fall onto conveyors which carry them to the rear of the machine, where they drop into crates which are then stacked by a worker.

Most of the berries are harvested by hand when they first ripen. "It's best to go into all our fields the first and second time by hand," Al Galetta said. However, some varieties are better suited to a later mechanical picking.

The earliest varieties ripen in mid-June and the season continues until September with the late-maturing kinds. More than a dozen total varieties keep the harvesting season going for more than two months.

After picking, blueberries destined for fresh eating are brought to the packing house where they are washed, sorted, and packaged into "clámshell" containers. These pints are then packed in crates for shipping.

The sorting on conveyor belts is done both by hand and electronically, through photo cells that detect differences in berry color. Unacceptable fruit is sorted out by means of a computer that instructs tiny, targeted water jets inside a roller to shoot the bad berries out of the batch.

Fruit for processing is washed, sorted, and then frozen in an ammonia-based closed system called "individual-quick-freeze." In this process, the berries pass through a tunnel where they are frozen solid in about nine seconds, Galetta said. They are then automatically destemmed and packed into 10-, 20-, or 30-pound boxes for shipping.

The frozen berries for processing can keep for more than a year, Galetta said. Fresh berries have a shelf life of two to three weeks.

Several blueberry varieties were developed on Atlantic Blueberry Farm, including 'Duke' — named after Al's uncle Duke Galetta, one of the original five Galetta brothers in the blueberry business. 'Duke' berries are well-suited for machine harvesting, Al said. 'Bluetta' is another popular variety, taking its name from a combination of "blue" and "Galetta."

Duke did a lot of research on the farm, including blueberry trials conducted with the help of USDA and Rutgers University, Al said. Ways in which varieties can differ from each other include how sweet, firm, and big the berries are. The structure of the crown on the fruit is another factor.

The blueberry bushes are irrigated through solidset pipe and spray irrigation, with the water drawn from several wells on the farm and transported by a canal system to the fields. According to Galetta, water supply is not a problem.

"South New Jersey has one of the biggest aquifers anywhere," he said.

During the growing season the Galettas adhere to a 7-10 day spraying schedule to control disease and harmful insects such as blueberry maggot, leafrollers, and fruitworms. Hand pruning 1,300 acres of blueberry bushes is another big job which keeps part of the workforce on the farm through the winter. Pruning out dead and less productive branches begins in the fall and is finished around March.

Early-season 'Weymouth' blueberries ripening on the Atlantic Blueberry Company farm.

As in all types of farming, markets are "hard to predict" in the blueberry business, Galetta said. However, the supply-and-demand market generally starts high early in the season and "drops accordingly."

With their company's long history and substantial list of buyers, the Galettas take blueberry orders long before the first fruit ripens. Late last May, Al commented on the status of the 2002 crop.

"All our berries are sold," he said.

This machine picks blueberries by means of flexible orbiting "fingers" on the two vertical cylinders.

First on his agenda was to diversify sales. "I was looking for year-round cash flow," he said.

Scott quickly saw that he had to learn to debone fish to compete with the supplies from Idaho. He learned to debone — he was able to do 100 fish an hour — so he could have an edge on the market over the western fish, since the fish he could supply to East Coast markets were two days fresher.

The business grew, and "I realized I couldn't grow enough fish to meet demand," he said. "I decided to buy fish to supplement my supply to restaurants."

In 1982 he began calling other hatcheries for his trout supply. "I got great deals in summer," he said. The market swung seasonally and dropped after stream stocking demand was over. "I knew restaurants could give me year-round cash flow, so I could do year-round production and sales," he said.

This line of reasoning led Scott and, by now, several employees to butcher 1,200 pounds of fish per week and purchase fish from hatcheries in western Pennsylvania and Virginia.

Scott re-invested back into the business and bought a refrigerated truck.

By now, there was a marked change in Scott's operation from producer to processor and marketer. "My own supply became a backup to imported supply" he said, as he delivered fish to Philadelphia and surrounding areas.

A question from a restaurant chef who asked if Scott sold anything else sparked his idea to diversify even further into niche markets. He formed a working partnership with a nearby farmer who raised pheasants, rounded up a supply of quail eggs, ducks, and even began to cut watercress from his own ponds, which he sold to restaurants. He also began experimenting with free-range chickens and the sale of eggs.

In addition, "I went to trade shows to look for products as I shifted my focus from what to grow to what to sell," he said.

Reading about how Salmon is a high-quality alternative to trout, Scott decided to market Salmon from Seattle and Vancouver in the East Coast, especially Philadelphia.

The busy, 70-hour-a-week schedule, which began with picking up Salmon at the Philadelphia airport and included hours of set up and delivery of Salmon and the other products, "became labor intensive," he said. "I decided to go back into law and try my hand at politics."

In 1990 he was elected township supervisor, in 1992

Hatchling fish. "The longer you can keep them indoors, the less trouble you'll have with predators," said Scott. However, "outside it is less crowded and the fish get better color and grow faster."

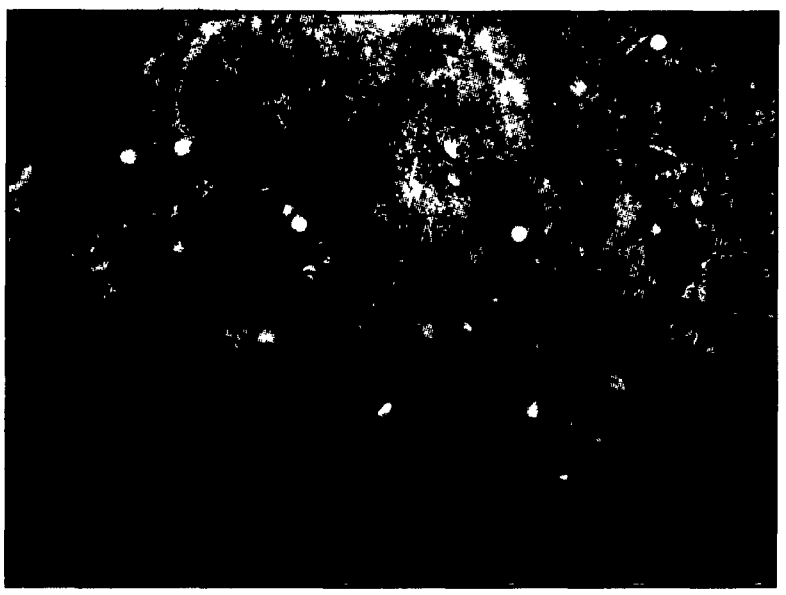
county supervisor, and 1996 he took the office of county commissioner — helped, in part, by a popular commercial featuring Scott hauling a fish out of the water, speaking about his goals, and surrounded by his family.

Although the farm demands time and attention, Scott sees his part-time vocation as a fish farmer as very valuable and the preferable alternative to being a career politician.

"Throughout (the political career) I still dabbled in part-time fish farming," he said. "It is just something that I can't seem to get out of my system. It gives me a balance — keeps me in touch with things that I might lose sight of in politics."

Scott is joined by his wife Donna (Dee), son Gunnar, 17, and Allison, 11, on the 127-acre farm. The cropland is rented out, which gives time for the family to not only raise fish but also sell take care of their own beehives and honey that they sell at their roadside stand. They also keep chickens for their own use. Additionally six horses, which Dee breeds and trains, also make their home on the farm.



Hatchling Brown Trout are also called "alevin," since the yolk sac has not absorbed. They are approximately one week old.

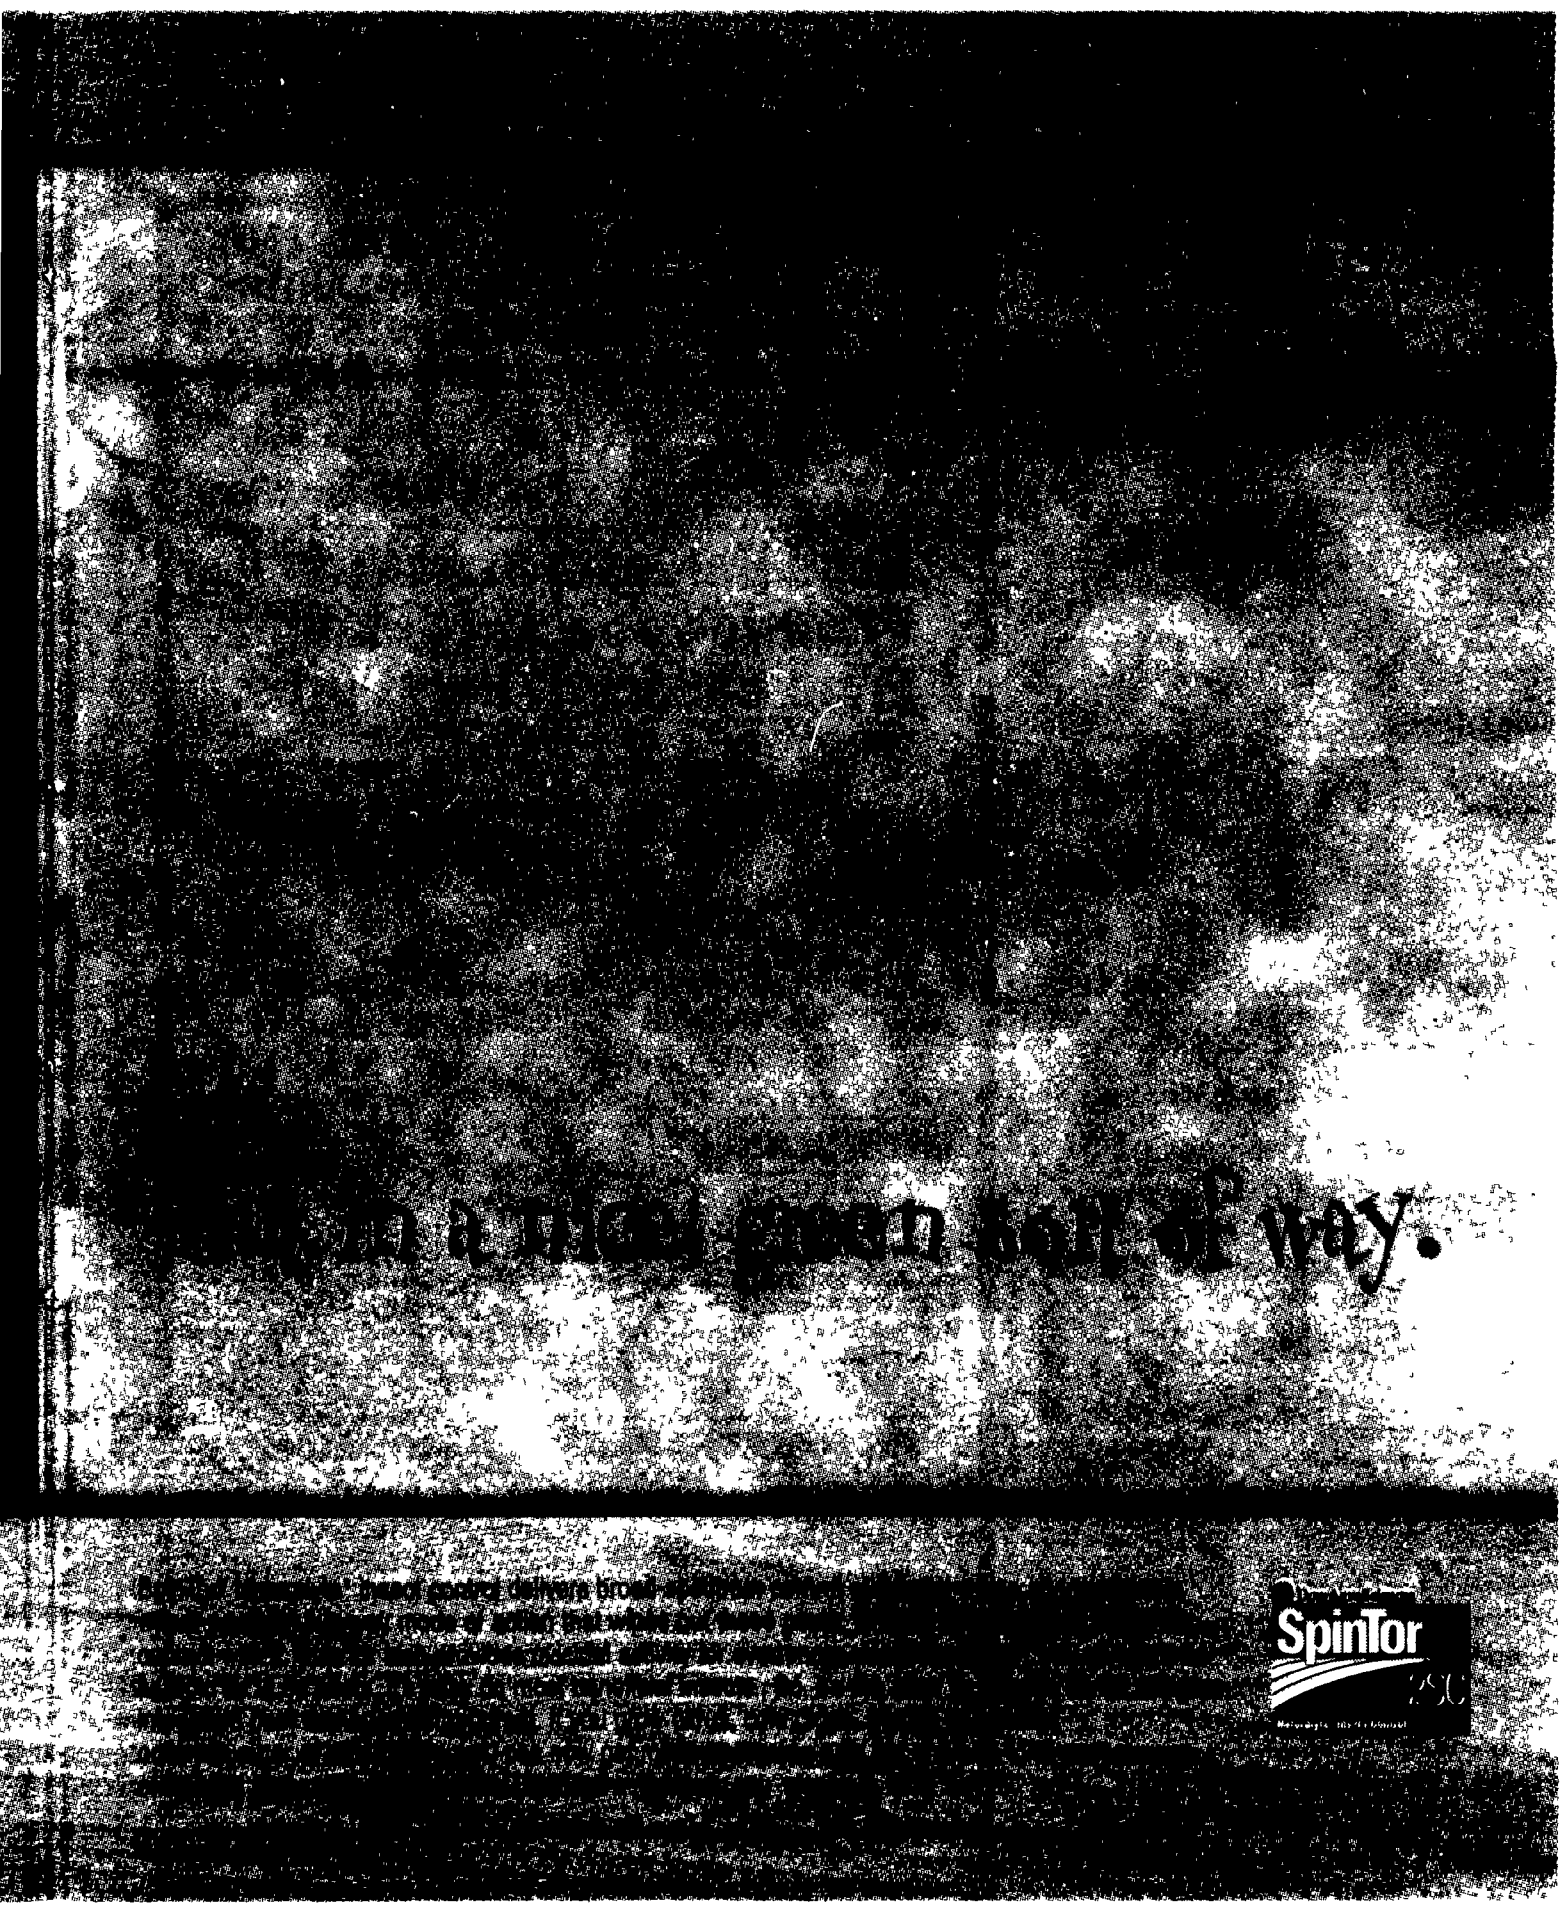
In addition, the family grows 400-700 tomato plants. The tomatoes, along with tomatoes purchased from area farmers, are used to make ketchup that is bottled under the label "Commissioner Scott's Berks County Tomato Ketchup" and marketed in convenience stores, private restaurants, and the Blue Bell Inn, Blue Bell, Montgomery County.



Mark Scott holds a Brown Trout male in the outdoor raceway.

This outdoor raceway has been essential to growing the larger fish on the Scott operation. Fish need to have a substantial amount of water moving through per hour "to keep fecal matter suspended and moving downstream," said Scott. "If it settles it attracts bacteria, decomposes, and takes oxygen."

roots are left in the nursery when the root ball is bagged or placed in a container for sale. On top of that, if the plants are planted in already dry soil, irrigation management is absolutely key to the plant's survival.

> "They intoxicate themselves with work so they won't see how they really are."
> — Aldous Huxley

Landscape managers and homeowners have to get on the "same page," Bates noted, to help provide an interface for the plant between the container media and the native soil.

"We need to be aware of water management in those issues," Bates noted. "The loss of the root system is of major concern in establishment of container stock."

The next issue is transplant shock. The root-to-shoot ratio has to be re-established. The more severe the roots are cut, the harder it will be to re-establish them. The roots will have to regrow before any top-growth takes place.

A key would be to plant more drought-resistant species, which include green ash, sweetgum, Baldey press, Zelkova, and others, but you "have to take these lists with a large grain of salt," he said. Irrigation management is still critical.

Start with good soil loam, good soil moisture retention, protection from wind, and other factors to help plant survivability in the landscape.

Bates noted that a one-gallon container shrub planted in the landscape requires watering every four days for the first four weeks after planting. After 21 weeks, the manager can water every 11 days.

What doesn't help are anti-dessicants or antitranspirants; fertilizing, because plants rely heavily on water; and pruning, which doesn't help the plant, because plant buds actually promote root growth.

Also, a popular belief that a plant's roots will stretch out to seek water is not true. Roots "don't proliferate in the absence of water," Bates noted, but simply stop until moisture returns. And root growth can take up to five weeks or more to resume after drying out.

Bates noted that while water is becoming a more valuable commodity, he said, managers have to deal with drought. "Drought should be expected," he said.

For Christmas tree growers, the past year has been "devastating" for planting evergreens. Everybody was out early in the spring, with May the perfect month to start, but then the drought struck.

In one area after a May planting, 80 percent of the Douglas Fir was dead by August, and "this is a drought-tolerant plant," Bates said.

"It was a very significant drought," Bates said. "If nothing else, we can plan on it happening."

For nurseries, there is simply "no reason not to use irrigation," he said.

> "Anybody feel like you are doing it and doing it and doing it and you're tired?"
> — Don Martin
> Director, Learning Resources
> Kutztown University SBDC

At the workshop, Don Martin, director of learning resources at the Kutztown University Small Business Development Center (SBDC), spoke about creating a business model for landscaping enterprises.

"You're in business — forget the landscaping," Martin said.

He pointed out how important it is to focus on the business and creating a plan, rather than simply, by rote, going about the small tasks.

"Anybody feel like you are doing it and doing it and doing it and you're tired?" he said. He challenged landscape business owners to transform their business and find out how to shorten the workdays and "get your life back."

Martin, who ran a landscaping company for a number of years, in addition to several sole proprietorships, worked for General Motors in the '80s.

What he noted, in running the new Kutztown SBDC, was that 80 percent of all small businesses fail in five years. After 10 years, only a small percentage survive.

"Eighty-four percent of those working with us in five years are still in business," he said.

The key: establishing a business or marketing plan to help the business grow. "You have to plan growth," said Martin. "It won't happen without it."

An unexamined business is not worth conducting, according to the audience who participated in the roundtable-type discussion.

Martin pointed to the following books helpful for small business owners:

- "The E-Myth Revisited," by Michael E. Gerber, published by HarperBusiness, 1995, ISBN 0-88730-728-0. Included is a quote from Aldous Huxley: "They intoxicate themselves with work so they won't see how they really are."
- "Who Moved My Cheese?" by Spencer Johnson, M.D., published by G.P. Putnam's Sons, 1998, ISBN 0-399-14446-3.
- "The Seven Habits of Highly Effective People," by Stephen R. Covey, Fireside/ Simon and Schuster, 1989, 1990, ISBN 0-671-70863-5.

Martin outlined the Business Plan For Success site that can be used as a planning tool. Check out the Kutztown SBDC Website at http://sbdc.kutztown.edu.

2003 Mid-Atlantic Winter Brambles Conference Feb. 7-8

LEESBURG, Va. — The North American Bramble Growers Association - Mid-Atlantic region and Virginia Cooperative Extension will sponsor a Bramble meeting Feb. 7-8 here at the Holiday Inn at Carracdoc Hall.

This event will offer high-quality information to existing producers as well as individuals interested in a thorough introduction to the various issues affecting the production of blackberries and raspberries. Brambles are a crop that can match agricultural production interests from the smallest farm sizes to larger operations.

The conference has a focus on subjects most currently critical to the production of bramble fruit (blackberry and raspberry) and factors affecting the viability of individual farms and the growing industry.

Key topics include season extension, irrigation in heat and drought, nutrition, in-depth cultivar discussion, specifics of insect pests, direct marketing, wholesale marketing, and grower profiles.

Speakers include Dr. Richard Funt of Ohio State University, Dr. Harry Swartz of the University of Maryland, Bryan Butler of Maryland Cooperative Extension, Dr. Doug Pfeiffer, and Dr. Tony Bratsch of Virginia Tech, Dr. Bill Cline and Dr. Zvezdana Pesic-VanEsbroek of North Carolina State University, Dr. John Halbrendt of Pennsylvania State University, Mike Droney of the Virginia Department of Agriculture, and discussions with individual growers.

Information including conference schedule and registration can be obtained at http://www.ento.vt.edu/Fruitfiles/HotBramble.html and http://www.nabga.com; or by contacting Jason Murray at jamurray@vt.edu and (703) 737-8978, or Richard Fagan at rfagan@mindspring.com and (301) 724-4085.

Spicing Up Your Veggie Market With Exotic Crops

PIKETON, Ohio — Looking to grow and market something different than tomatoes, cucumbers or peppers? How does amaranth, jute, Alaskan yard-long beans or malabar spinach grab you?

Researchers at Ohio State University's South Centers at Piketon are in their first year of organically raising such exotic crops to provide growers with alternative vegetables and cash crops that grow well in Ohio and satisfy the state's growing ethnic market.

Rafiq Islam, an Ohio State soil and water specialist, said the crops are ideal because they have a short growing season, require low maintenance, compete well against weeds and fetch a higher price than traditional vegetables.

"Most of the vegetables can be planted in May or June and harvested in September," said Islam. "Because they are high-value crops, growers can get a higher price for them and customers like them because they are high in nutrition and are what they are used to buying back home."

Amaranth, also known as edible pigweed, is one such crop that meets those characteristics. "Amaranth is fast growing. In 35-45 days it's in full bloom and ready for harvest," said Islam. An added bonus is that some of the varieties are heat and drought tolerant.

"The leaves and stalk are edible and are high in vitamins A, B and C," said Islam. "Amaranth is also cultivated for the grain, which contains high levels of protein."

Breakfast cereals, pastas and breads containing amaranth grain or flour are available in most health food stores. Ohio State researchers are growing 17 varieties of amaranth, found in India, Bangladesh, Sri Lanka, the Philippines and China.

Researchers are also seeing success with jute, a plant from India, Thailand, China, Myanmar and Bangladesh that produces a fiber used all over the world for making a variety of products such as blankets, clothing, upholstery and handbags. Jute is also used in the pharmaceutical and textile industries.

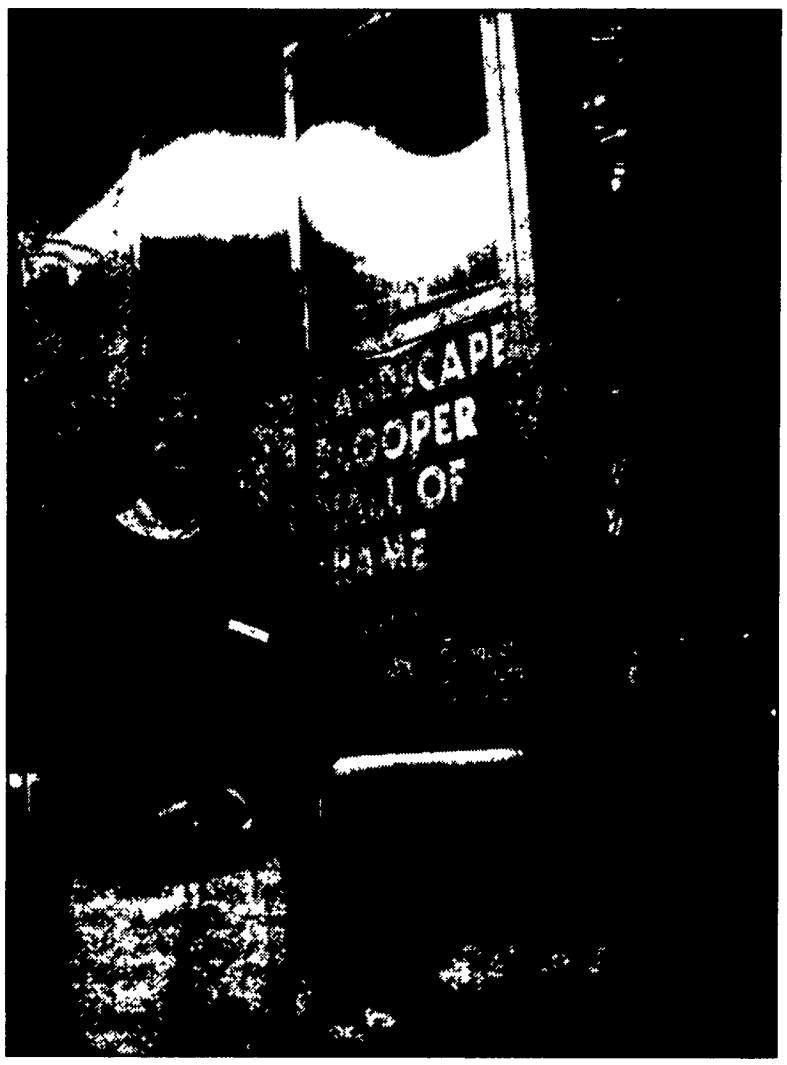
"It's a lot like hemp. It's a biodegradable product used to make products like rope and decorative wrap," said Islam. "The crop is also edible as the young shoots can be eaten."

Jute can grow as high as eight to 10 feet tall and is effective in controlling weeds. The crop is cut at the soil line and allowed to dry out. It is then bundled and fiber is extracted from the stems after they have been submerged under water and decomposed.

Malabar spinach, also known as Indian spinach, is not spinach at all, but a tropical vine that grows quickly on a wide variety of sites. The plant is cultivated for its leaves, which have high levels of vitamins A and C. Malabar spinach is originally from Africa and South East Asia.

Researchers are also growing yard-long asparagus beans, an Alaskan legume high in protein; Calabash gourd, a tropical vine whose young fruits are harvested and cooked like squash and matured fruits are used for decoration; and Luffa sponge, a plant in the same family as pumpkins and watermelons that is cultivated mainly as a bath sponge.

For more information on such alternative crops, contact Rafiq Islam at (740) 289-2071 or islam.27@osu.edu or contact Shawn Wright at (740) 289-2071 or wright.705@osu.edu.



Hort Display Enlightens Farm Show Visitors

Strawberry Plasticulture Offers Sweet Rewards

PIKETON, Ohio — Excess rainfall last spring worked to the disadvantage of many Ohio farmers, with the exception of a few unique strawberry producers. Despite the rain, strawberry research plots at the Ohio State University Extension South Centers sat high and dry on a bed of plastic mulch, said Brad Bergefurd, an Ohio State Extension horticulture agent.

"Plasticulture production may be a good option for Ohio strawberry growers to increase their yields on small-acreage farms," Bergefurd said. Ohio State researchers have been working with North Carolina extension agents and specialists to test plasticulture methods for strawberries, which produce earlier and higher, more consistent yields for North Carolina growers.

"If we can get strawberries to harvest two to three weeks earlier, that will get farmers in the markets earlier and possibly increase their income," Bergefurd said. "The potential is there to double yields on a more consistent basis than with the matted row system."

The plasticulture method could increase the typical 5,000 to 6,000 pounds per acre to 10,000 to 12,000. At this point, the smallest yield for the research trials was 11,000 pounds per acre, Bergefurd said.

"The work done so far looks really promising, but we only have one year under our belt and a long way to go," he said.

Traditionally, most Ohio-grown strawberries are bareroot plants planted in matted rows in the spring. In plasticulture, soil is mounded into 10-inch-high mounds and covered with a sheet of black, plastic mulch, Bergefurd said. Strawberry plant plugs are then planted in September through the mulch into the underlying mounds of soil.

Plants raised in plasticulture usually experience fewer disease problems from standing water and flooding problems because the water rests in between the mounds or rows, Bergefurd said. At the same time, the sheet of mulch conserves moisture, reduces weed growth by blocking out the sun, and keeps the strawberries cleaner by keeping them out of the mud.

The black mulch also absorbs heat so that the soil stays warmer to increase plant growth, Bergefurd said. Heat absorption warms the soil earlier in the spring and later in the fall, benefiting yields.

"More and more Ohio vegetables growers, especially fresh market, are using black plastic mulch because of its benefits," he said.

"The biggest drawback in plasticulture is the cost," Bergefurd said. "Over $10,000 an acre is invested in plasticulture strawberries before you ever pick your first strawberry. In addition, another $3,000 is needed to take the crop through harvest." These costs, figured by North Carolina agents and specialists, include every expense from a computer to Internet connection to a mulcher.

The plasticulture strawberry growers in North Carolina replant every season to maintain high yields. Ohio matted row growers typically replant every three to four years, Bergefurd said. Despite the annual $10,000-per-acre investment, the higher, more consistent yields in plasticulture strawberries result in more income for growers than matted row acres.

Ohio State researchers are comparing notes with Maryland researchers on a two-year system that could eventually be an option. "If we could use a two-year system, it would stretch the $10,000 over a longer time period," he said.

Only a few growers have made the switch to plasticulture, which is more commonly used in vegetable production, Bergefurd. "I could see matted row growers planting an acre or two of plasticulture strawberries to kick off their season earlier and stretch their income a little longer.

"If this system takes off, we could start a whole other business," Bergefurd said. "The new system would hit greenhouses when they're not busy, allowing them to produce the strawberry plant plugs needed by the growers, so it will give them a whole new market. And earlier harvested strawberries would also allow growers to begin marketing Ohio strawberries as early as Mother's Day, which could produce an earlier income for farmers."

PPA Names Leucanthemum 'Becky' 2003 Perennial Plant Of The Year

COLUMBUS, Ohio — The Perennial Plant Association (PPA) has named Leucanthemum "Becky" the 2003 Perennial Plant of the Year.

Leucanthemum "Becky" is praised for its long bloom season and its ability to stand well in heat and humidity," said Dr. Steven Still, PPA executive director. "Becky" can be used in "borders, containers, or in naturalized areas."

"Becky" is a single, white daisy with sturdy stems that do not require staking. The two- to three-foot tall plant begins flowering in late June and, if deadheaded, flowers into late August and September. This perennial performs well in USDA Hardiness Zones 4 to 9. It grows in average garden loam and full sun.

The selection of Leucanthemum "Becky" landmarks the 14th year for the Perennial Plant of the Year program.

"The Perennial Plant of the Year Program helps consumers select plants that perennial industry experts find to be outstanding and easily grown," Still said. "The homeowner can have great confidence that the Perennial Plant of the Year will grow well in the garden."

Gardeners can obtain this exciting perennial through their local garden centers or through the many mail order perennial nurseries.

YOU'VE GOT THEM, NOW MOTIVATE THEM!

I was recently talking with several people concerning the jobs they were working at in a direct marketing business. After a short time, the conversation turned from what the job entailed doing, to the sense of frustration they felt because of the feeling of being miscast in their roles in the business.

They agreed they brought a number of valuable talents and experience to the table that management was either overlooking or downplaying. Often they felt they were being asked to work on tasks that had utilized their skills in only a minor way or that could be collectively accomplished by one person in the organization.

Their underlying concern was that they felt a close allegiance to the business and had a strong desire to see it grow but weren't being fully utilized to accomplish what they perceived should be a shared goal, common to both management and employees.

Several times in the conversation, the issue of good leadership was raised and what attributes they felt were critical in a good manager. Characteristics such as being approachable, fair, supportive, resourceful, setting attainable goals, being reliable, and having the ability to motivate were mentioned. They also felt a manager should be able to see the "big picture" and translate it into a version that employees could work toward in their daily activities in the business. They further states that a top-quality manager should be a good communicator and ask for ideas, opinions, and comments from employees and encourage employees to ask the same of customers when appropriate.

So as a business manager or owner, what value do these comments have to you? First you need to recognize that if you have one or more good, quality employees, you work toward retaining them in a variety of ways. A top-producing employee is an investment of both your time and money. Stop and think for a moment how much mental time you spend replacing people when they leave and just getting back to a level of status quo in your business.

Next to dealing with environmental and zoning issues, finding labor in an agricultural business is the top complaint of owners. The hours usually aren't pretty and it's tough competing against other non-ag businesses on pay scales.

You have already surmounted these two issues with the people working for you or they wouldn't still be there. In fact although money is critical. survey after survey conducted with employees points to the fact that they rate high wages below such items as being appreciated, feeling they are a part of decisions that affect them or their job, the work being interesting, job security, and a manager being approachable on personal issues.

It's interesting to note that similar studies of managers illustrates the opposite is true. Money and growth (personal and company) are ranked highest. The lesson learned is that you think differently than those who work for you and you need to see that as a challenge to work through.

It's often said being a good leader is an art form. to get there, you need to learn to read your employees, finding the common ground between you, and working toward the same end. You want to develop a sense of ownership in your employees.

A landscape business owner recently related a personal experience to me. He talked of being in a men's restroom at a rest area along the highway washing his hands, when a boy in his late teens came in, used the facilities, and then proceeded to pick up paper scattered around the floor on his way out. The boy was a traveler passing through but demonstrated a sense of ownership by his action.

The businessman stated that ownership is the most important skill a manager can develop in an employee. It retains employees, prevents broken machinery, stops theft, and provides the best customer service possible. The best employees will scrub bathrooms, unload late deliveries, harvest on wet days, and even cheerfully deal with unhappy customers if you continually "read" them and provide the motivation they need.

Find and exploit the strengths of your employees instead of focusing on their weaknesses. Often the weakness of one is the strength of another and tasks can be assigned in that manner. Managing that way will create a stronger, stable, and more satisfied workforce. That in turn creates a happier owner/manager and a potential increase in the bottom line.

I Know You're In There!

How Can I Be The One To Feed You?

I have been asked a number of times this spring by growers of food crops how to break into the market of selling products in school settings. Actually the question should be larger, and asked as: "How can I sell my products to institutions?"

That's because other groupings of people are equally important as a market for your products. Don't overlook local, state, and federal prisons in your area, colleges, senior centers, health care facilities, nursing homes, and other similar locations. There are a lot of facilities probably within a short distance of your business that are purchasing products similar to yours, from companies out of the area. This can be a good market once you profile the institutional customer and learn to provide the right product.

I was speaking to Dan Schofer from USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service recently about a project he worked with in Florida dealing with a similar scenario. This was not just survey stuff. It was a real, in the field, hands-on effort between growers, school district buyers, and marketing researchers. It involved a group of growers looking for methods to get their products profitably into the kitchens of local schools on a routine basis. He offered a number of good suggestions

PLNA Announces Trade Shows

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Landscape and Nursery Association (PLNA) has announced dates for PANTS and the new POWER EXPO 2003.

In its 31st year, the Penn Allied Nursery Trade Show (PANTS) will host more than 1,100 booths showcasing green and hard good suppliers from across the country to more than 11,000 attendees. PANTS will once again make its mark as the largest show of its kind in the Northeast from July 29-31 at the Fort Washington Expo Center in Fort Washington.

In addition to the nationally-acclaimed PANTS show, PLNA has added a much-requested landscape, nursery and turf power equipment trade show, POWER EXPO 2003. The show will debut Nov. 12-13 at the Pennsylvania Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg. Organizers expect to draw up to 5,000 attendees, including landscape contractors and nursery owners, municipalities, school districts, state park and forestry employees and a host of other prospective buyers.

The show will host some 300 exhibitors.

$1.627 Million Marketing Boost For Florida Supersweet

NEW YORK, N.Y. — There's good news ahead for fresh supersweet corn and the corn-loving American consumer. The Florida Department of Agriculture has awarded the Florida Sweet Corn Exchange a grant of $1.627 million, budgeted over three years, for a marketing campaign targeting retailers, consumers and foodservice operators.

The initiative — the result of a $5 million federal grant for the promotion of Florida agricultural specialty crops — will be overseen by Mike Bess, manager, of the Florida Sweet Corn Exchange and implemented primarily by Lewis and Neale Inc., the public relations agency for the Florida Sweet Corn Exchange for the past five years.

"There's nothing better than top-quality Fresh Supersweet corn," said Paul Allen, president of the Florida Sweet Corn Exchange. "Our campaign will encourage consumers and chefs to add corn to their menus during the non-traditional fresh corn season — November through June — and provide retailers with valuable merchandising information."

"We'll be channeling important handling, usage, and nutritional messages to consumers through a wide array of media, including newspapers, magazines, television, and the Internet," according to Anita Fial, president of Lewis and Neale.

"Hispanic buying power is increasing at triple the rate of inflation," Fial said. "So we will blitz this important niche with information on the versatility and benefits of Supersweet Corn via Spanish language TV and print outlets. And we'll target the growing foodservice market — with its vast untapped sales potential for Supersweet corn — with a study showing how chains are serving fresh corn and intensive publicity in foodservice publications."

In the retail arena, the Perishables Group will be conducting research that will give retailers a better understanding of the Supersweet Corn category and best practices for increasing sales. The resulting data will be relayed to retailers through shippers, produce council meetings and merchandisers. The program will also include a display contest and trade advertising.

Berks County To Update Market Map

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Berks County Cooperative Extension is producing an updated "Retail Farm Market Map & Guide." The idea behind this project is to increase awareness and sales of locally-grown farm products. The target audience includes residents and visitors.

Today's consumer is seeking the experience of buying farm products directly from the grower. Local residents and the increasing tourist traffic in Berks County represent an expanding market for farm products. If you grow and sell agricultural products directly to consumers in Berks County, this is an opportunity to promote your products.

This publication will be a multi-fold sheet, similar to a traditional road map. The publication will have a "farm location" map on one side and detailed farm product information on the reverse side. Product seasons, preparation tips and agriculture statistics will be included as space permits.

The map will be available to consumers throughout eastern Pennsylvania at locations carrying tourist destination promotional materials. These locations include tourist centers, historic sites, inns, hotels, restaurants, realtors, malls, and libraries.

The response to the 2000 map was tremendous. The 2000 map was distributed over 22 months. This gave full, consumer exposure for all commodities. The updated one will do the same. The new map is expected to be ready by strawberry season. To cover expenses for printing, a fee of $25 will be required per listing. Please make check payable to "Berks Co. Ext. Special Account."

To be included in the updated Berks County Farm Market Map & Guide, or for more information, call John Berry at (610) 391-9840.

The Farmstand: Direct Marketing Tips

First, the most important issue they found was that it was critical to cultivate a strong, positive relationship with the district people that were doing the buying. Often this is mistakenly assumed to be the cafeteria supervisor. Most often, local buying decisions are made by the school food service director that has jurisdiction over all the schools in the district.

You need to find this key person and initiate the relationship. If you start by convincing your neighbor, which happens to be on the school board, and they strong arm the food director, you might get the initial sale but will quickly learn that "something is wrong" with your product and they are no longer interested in a purchase the next time you show up. This person will make you or break you, so work to get it right and build a sense of trust with them over time.

And don't make the second mistake by starting with the largest school district first. This is a whole new approach for you. If you start with the smallest district, gain valuable expertise, and make a fatal error, all is not lost. There are larger districts you can still go after.

Second, provide what they want. Seems simple enough, but do you know what that is? Many districts print their menus in the local paper or post them on their Websites. Look them over to find places where you could offer products to be direct substitutes for what they are already using. Or maybe you could offer others that they aren't using yet.

And by all means think value-added. If you can offer a product that saves them time, effort, cost, or has more customer appeal, you will go a long way toward developing a new, long-term buyer. Just because you have apples to sell and they're local doesn't mean they are going to be interested. They already get apples in #10 cans off a truck, delivered twice a week.

What can you offer to entice the purchase? Semi-prepared apple products, sauce, or prebaked items? Or maybe dried apple snacks? Be creative and don't overlook the nutritional angle.

You might even be able to enlist the help of a local nutritionist to develop proposed menu changes and the benefit to the kids. But don't overlook food safety concerns in value-added products and that is another area where the nutritionist can help.

Third, think quality! This is no place to get rid of lesser grades of your product. The director knows what top quality looks like and will expect no less from you. If you make a delivery and get a call about a quality related issue, quickly replace it with a no-questions-asked policy. And be on time with deliveries — your competition was and you'll be expected to do the same. Know going into the situation what the minimum is you are willing to deliver and the maximum you're able to produce.

This is another good reason to start small. And keep in mind this is mainstream. Organic is probably not going to get you a premium like it would at the growers' market in the nearby town.

The bottom line is there could be a good bottom line here if you learn to work the system and make calculated expansions over time. Explore all the facility possibilities in your area and carefully consider if you have the people skills needed to nurture sales with institutions.

You can receive the in-depth information on Dan Schofer's project by calling him at (202) 690-1170 and asking for his publication titled, "Innovative Marketing Opportunities for Small Farmers: Local Schools as Customers" and "How Local Farmers and School Food Service Buyers Are Building Alliances." He also has a number of related publications on the project that have a wealth of great tips on the subject. All the publications are free and worth reading.

Customer Service — A Quick Refresher

Good customer service is the difference between having a customer once and having a costumer forever. Since you want to be in the latter category, you need to train those new employees you're getting this season on the needs and desires of your clientele.

Never lose sight of the fact that your sales team is an extension of you and generally will be the face of your business the customers remembers. Teach your staff they are not just there to take up floor space, they are there to sell and cater to the range of customers you typically have. They need to realize they are the key ingredients to make your business a success and ultimately their own employment rewarding and sustainable (i.e. a job next year!). They shape your image with the customer that directly influences sales.

Customer service is giving the customer what they want, when and how they want it, and in such a manner they will pay a premium for it. Staff always need to be reminded of the value the customer plays in the equation. They also need to know that 60 percent of customers polled annually complain about the service they receive. Well, this is a refresher, so how about a few quick points to review:

1. Smile and be friendly.
2. First impressions are made in the first 10 seconds and influences most buying decisions.
3. Perception is reality and it's the customer's perception that matters.
4. Quality, consistency, courteousness, and willingness to listen always count.
5. Customer distress or uneasiness needs to be observed and corrected quickly.
6. Good attitude + good impression = repeat business.
7. Angry customers tell 20 others, resolve issues before they leave store.
8. Dialogues with customers and quickly call them by name after learning it.
9. Surprise the customer by meeting their expectations plus offering something extra.
10. Did I mention smile!

A Little Bit Of 'Barley,' A Lot Of Herefords Help Make Corn Contest Winner A Success

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

McCONNELLSBURG (Fulton Co.) — "I don't like to play golf or sit around the house — I like to farm," said Harry Johnston, Back Run Farm.

Johnston not only operates a 400-acre farm but also works full-time at Agronomy, Inc. in Mercersburg. The company sells fertilizer, spray, and seed and offers crop consulting and soil testing.

Perhaps it is this experience with crops and soils that has given Johnston an edge in farm management. Although his studies at Penn State (he graduated with a degree in agronomy) gave him a basis of understanding of crops, his work has really given him an opportunity to see "what other farmers do, and see what work for them," he said.

He has come in as a first-place winner in the three-year average division of the 2001 Pennsylvania Five-Acre Corn Club Contest. He also won second place in the ear corn class.

Johnston works Back Run Farm with his father, also named Harry Johnston, a general practitioner, who helps with farm work on the weekends and sometimes throughout the week.

The farm, consisting of 400 acres, includes about 110 acres of corn, 80 acres of soybeans, and the remainder in timothy hay that is sold to horse owners.

A cow-calf herd of 50 head of Hereford and Simmental/Hereford crossbreds also resides on the farm. The Johnstons also market beef to a

Taylor To Speak At Pa. Corn, Soybean Conference

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — The 2003 Pennsylvania Corn and Soybean Conference will bring together some of Pennsylvania's top corn and soybean growers to hear some topics on how they can better plan for the future and improve their bottom line. This year's program will kick off at 9 a.m., Feb. 7 at the Holiday Inn in Grantville.

The featured speaker at this year's conference is Marcia Zarley Taylor. Taylor is a Des Moines, Iowa native with 20 years experience in farm policy, agricultural finance, and environmental reporting. Since 1990, Taylor has served as editor of Top Producer magazine. Marcia recently was awarded the 2002 Jesse Neal Award for her series entitled " Brazil the Competitor You Can't Ignore" published in Top Producer.

In her presentation, she will discuss not only the grain production potential of Brazil but also recent investments in grain processing and hog and poultry production and what we must do now to remain competitive.

The morning program includes speakers on soy beverages and the Penn State football team, how to maximize the quality of corn and soybeans, and discussion of how the movie "Signs" was produced using a Pennsylvania corn field.

Our afternoon sessions will feature some in depth workshops on the Farm Bill and Crop Insurance, again with several top speakers.

Farmers Learn About Twin Row Corn At Field Day

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU

MILLERSTOWN (Perry Co.) — Farmers are always looking for early canopy, uniform plant spacing, and preserved moisture for their crops.

These issues are characteristic of narrow (7½-inch) rows, according to Penn State studies, says Scott Brown, C.B. Hoober, Inc. Brown discussed the subject at a field day in Perry County this August.

Earlier work at Penn State, where twin row corn was evaluated against 30-inch rows of corn, showed that the twin row corn had better moisture utilization and was 12-18 inches taller than 30-inch rows. The study showed

President's Message

Guy Wagner
President, PCGA

DROUGHT AND MARKET DECLINE

I'd like to wish everyone a happy, safe, and prosperous 2003.

Being a grower myself, I realize that this business is not nearly as easy as it used to be. Farmers as a whole are having a very difficult time making it work financially.

It is hard to not be discouraged by having 1970s prices for our products and 2003 prices for everything that we buy. I'm always amazed by the fact that two small bottles of water in a convenience store cost as much as a bushel of corn is worth.

The deep drop in the grain markets since September does not help either. It is difficult to look at your own crops being drought-stricken and watch the market decline at the same time. I know that many of you are struggling with the combination of poor crops three of the last four years and low prices on top of it. Even the dairy farmers are not immune with low milk prices as well.

On Feb. 7 the PCGA and the Pennsylvania Soybean Board will present the Corn and Soybean Conference at the Holiday Inn at Grantville. I'm excited about the program.

Marcia Zarley Taylor will be the featured speaker. She has been the editor of Top Producer magazine since 1990.

Since 1998 she has traveled to Brazil four times to learn more about our biggest competitor. She was recently honored

Pennsylvania Commercial Hybrid Corn Tests Report

Short-season hybrids (Maturity Zone 1) 2002 results

How to Use This Report

This report provides independent and unbiased information for the evaluation of commercial corn hybrids available in Pennsylvania. It should be used to supplement other sources of information such as seed industry performance test other independent testing data and on farm performance records when making hybrid selection decisions.

The first factor to consider when using this report is hybrid maturity. The hybrids listed in Tables 1 and 3 are ranked in ascending order by grain moisture with the earliest hybrids (lowest grain moisture) at the top. In Table 2 hybrids are listed alphabetically. Grain moisture is a good indicator of hybrid maturity. those with lower moisture are generally adapted to shorter season environments. Identify hybrids in the list that you know are adapted for your area, and then evaluate new hybrids that have similar moisture contents. Selecting hybrids based on yield alone may result in a hybrid that is too late for your farm. Note that there is considerable range among maturity in hybrids entered in each zone. Once you have identified the appropriate hybrid maturity range compare the yields of the hybrids that have been evaluated.

Yield performance is variable across locations and is best predicted by using data averaged over multiple locations, so the mean yield over all sites is the best guide to hybrid performance. Individual location hybrid means (Table 2) can help in assessing how consistent or stable the hybrid was across locations. For example, some hybrids may do well at high yielding sites but may not do well at low yielding sites. We DO NOT recommend using data from a single site even if it is close to your farm, to make hybrid selection choices.

Once you have identified some prospective hybrids consider their standability from the erect plants column as well as any disease rating data that may have been collected. It also is important to check with a seed company representative about other characteristics of the hybrid that may be important for your operation.

Once you have gone through this process you should be able to select hybrids that have above average performance. This is an important part of profitable corn production since as these reports demonstrate there is a wide range in the performance of corn hybrids.

Further we recommend that you evaluate selected hybrids on your farm under your growing conditions and practices. This is the best way to make a final determination of the proper hybrids for your operation.

Growing conditions

Weather influenced crop planting with 2 percent of the farms and fields in the 2 weeks of May which was 10 days later than in recent years. Planting was completed by May 31 even though planting conditions were less than optimal in many rainfall prevented some farmers and planting had not even started at all locations. There followed frost, drought and high temperatures in July and August. Hybrid planting dates for the Centre Clinton and Lycoming County sites were compared. The hybrids were harvested in little earlier than anticipated in the Centre and Lycoming sites, reflecting the difference in planting dates. In both cases, planting dates were 10 days apart. Harvesting dates were 10 days apart. The data in Table 4 indicate the growing degree days ranged approximately 450 units more than the 30-year average.

Diseases, insects, and other pests

Hybrids grown at the Centre County location were inoculated with the fungus causing northern leaf blight (NLB) (Race O Biotype 1) (CES). Entries were rated in Clinton in September 15 and are reported in Table 3 as leaf blight (LB) ratings. There was a mixture of NLB (CES) and northern leaf spot (natural inoculum). NLB (natural inoculum) occurred at the Crawford Lycoming, Mercer and Tioga County locations. Entries were rated for NLB in September 16 (Lycoming and Tioga Counties) and September 18 (Crawford and Mercer Counties) and are reported in Table 3. Stalk rot, head smut, and mechanical damage were not a problem at any location other than at the Crawford County site mentioned above.

Interpretation of results

Least significant difference (LSD) is the tool used to determine if two average values are statistically different statistically. The difference between two hybrids must exceed the LSD value to be considered significantly different. Example: Harvested LSD (.05) = 15.0 Bu/A. Hybrid X = 170.0 Bu/A. Hybrid Y = 185.0 Bu/A. 185.0 - 170.0 = 15.0 Bu/A difference. Since the difference between Hybrid X and Y (15.0 Bu/A) exceeded the LSD (15.0 Bu/A) Hybrid X was higher yielding due to hybrid superiority and not simply as a result of uncontrolled environmental factors.

Results from the 11 short season (early medium season and late medium season) and late season hybrid trials are available as a separate report from the office of Penn State Cooperative Extension.

Members of the county based extension staff assisted in conducting these tests. Their efforts were essential to the successful completion of the trials and were greatly appreciated.

The cooperation in this evaluation be expressed to the farmers

Hybrid Test Reports

Pennsylvania Corn Silage Hybrid Evaluation Report

In 2002 a new program to evaluate both the yield and forage quality of commercial corn hybrids offered to Pennsylvania corn silage producers was initiated This program is a collaborative effort among Penn State the Professional Dairy Managers of Pennsylvania and Forage Data Inc The objective of the program is to evaluate corn hybrids and provide unbiased information to producers and the seed industry on the yield performance and forage quality of corn hybrids for silage production in Pennsylvania

The tests were conducted at three locations in Pennsylvania Red Knob Farm in Peach Bottom in Lancaster County, Slate Ridge Dairy in St Thomas in Franklin County and the Penn State Russell Larson Research Farm in Rock Spring, Centre County Two maturity groups of hybrids were evaluated at each location these trials Each group was limited to a 5-day relative maturity (RM) range The early group consisted of 107 111 day RM hybrids and the late group consisted of 112-116 day RM hybrids Our original intent was to plant all of the evaluation tests on commercial dairy farms, but planting problems related to the wet spring forced us to use a back up site at the Penn State Research Farm Our goal in these trials is to evaluate hybrid performance over multiple sites and conditions as this is always the best indicator of a hybrids future performance

Procedures

This testing program was open to all hybrid seed corn producers in the state Hybrids were planted in paired row plots equal to 1 500 of an acre Each hybrid was replicated three times at each location Planting was done with a vacuum precision planter which minimized the number of plants needed to be removed to obtain a final population of 28 000 plants per acre The planter was set to drop 30 kernels per row When the corn was 12 to 18 inches tall extra plants primarily doubles and end plants were removed to reach to final population

Prior to harvest the dry matter concentration of several hybrids in each test was monitored and the harvests were targeted to achieve dry matter concentrations of 30 to 35% dry matter Rapid drydown caused by the dry conditions resulted in the Franklin test and the early hybrids at Lancaster to be slightly drier than desired All hybrids in each group were harvested on the same day At Rock Springs the harvest of the late group was seven days later than the early group At the other two locations both groups were harvested on the same day Because of the hot dry conditions, harvest was early at all locations August 21 at Franklin August 22 at Lancaster September 4 for the early hybrids in Centre and September 11 for the late hybrids in Centre County Plots were harvested with a single row custom designed forage chopper One row was harvested from each plot The forage from each plot was weighed and then thoroughly mixed Harvest samples were collected from the mixed chopped silage in the field

At harvest samples were collected immediately after the plot was harvested chilled on dry ice, and then frozen at the end of the day Samples were then sent to the Dairy One Forage Lab in Ithaca NY for analysis The samples were analyzed for crude protein acid detergent fiber (ADF), neutral detergent fiber (NDF) starch sugars non-fiber carbohydrates (NFC) ash fat, lignin 30 hour in vitro true digestibility (IVTD) 30 hour fiber digestibility (NDFD) neutral detergent insoluble crude protein (NDICP) and lignin These results were used to calculate the Net Energy for lactation (NEl) Milk yield per ton and milk yield per acre were then estimated from the CP NDF NDFD, starch, ash NDICP and yield using the Milk 2000 (version 7 4) spreadsheet from the University of Wisconsin

All data was analyzed with analysis of variance procedures and least significant difference (LSD) values were calculated at the 0 10 level for each variable where the differences were statistically significant When the difference between two hybrids exceeds the LSD (0 10) level, there is a 90% probability that the difference is not due to random variation Small differences that are less than the LSD value may be the result of random variation that occurs in these field trials We also calculated a coefficient of variation (CV) for each variable This is a relative measure of the uncontrolled variation associated with that variable in that test For yield, a CV of 10% or less is usually considered good For the tests that were combined over locations, we tested for a hybrid-by-location interaction Where a hybrid-by-location interaction is significant this indicates that hybrid performance was not consistent across the locations for that variable

Results

Conditions at each of the three sites were abnormally hot and dry At the Franklin County location, conditions were exceptionally dry resulting in corn that was approximately six feet tall with little ear development At the other two locations, plant height was less than average with ear development average to below average Because the Franklin County site was so severely stressed, it was not included in the combined analyses averages When evaluating hybrids for silage or grain, it is always best to rely on multilocation averages if possible, not on the data from a single site

Early Hybrid Tests

Combined Analysis

Analysis of the combined data from the Centre and Lancaster County sites are shown in Table 1 Hybrids varied in dry matter concentration at harvest by approximately 10 percentage units This could have an impact on forage quality traits Hybrids with higher dry matter concentrations are likely earlier in maturity Ideally hybrid comparisons should be made within a 3 to 4 percentage point range in dry matter to minimize maturity effects

The combined analyses indicated that for many of the variables the hybrid by-location interaction was significant This indicates that hybrid performance was different in Centre and Lancaster County This may have resulted because the backup Centre County location was a shorter season area than the Lancaster site The original Centre County on-farm site was in a longer season area As a result, despite our intentions to use combined data, the results suggest that this year for most variables, hybrid evaluations are best made at the individual sites for the early group Producers should decide which site is more representative of their conditions and use that as a guide in interpreting the data For some of the forage quality variables without hybrid-by-location interactions (NS), like NEl, IVTD, NDFD, and Milk/ton the results were consistent across sites, with significant differences occurring among hybrids

Lancaster County

At this site (Table 2) we encountered a wide range in dry matter concentration and the average dry matter concentration was slightly higher than our target of 35% dry matter These hybrids dried down much more rapidly than anticipated during the hot dry conditions of late August Yields at this site were about 60% of expected values and differences among the hybrids were not significant Many of the quality traits exhibited differences among the hybrids Dairy One average values in 2001 for NDF, Starch and NDFD were 44 7%, 30 5%, and 55 7%, respectively Relative to those values, hybrids at this site had lower NDF, higher starch and slightly lower NDFD than average

Centre County

At this site (Table 3), the range in dry matter concentrations was less than at Lancaster, but the dry matter concentration were also lower than Lancaster as well Yields were approximately 65% of average yields at this site Yield differences were not significantly different here as well, probably because one of the three replications had to be discard because of early season flooding Many of the quality traits exhibited different among the hybrids Milk/ton and Milk/acre differences existed among the hybrids Relative to the average Dairy One values, hybrids at this site had lower NDF similar starch and slightly lower NDFD than average

Franklin County

Dry matter concentrations at this site (Table 4) also tended to be higher than desired and hybrids here also exhibited a wide range in dry matter concentrations at harvest Significant differences existed among hybrids for most of the traits measured here As expected, NDF levels were higher than the Dairy One average starch was lower and NDFD slightly above average Despite the drought stress, the average energy content of this corn predicted using the NEl was site was 92% of the average of the other sites and the estimated milk/ton was 96% of the average of the other two sites Since this site was extremely drought stressed the results from this trial may only have limited value in predicting future performance at this location

Late Hybrid Tests

Combined Analyses

The late hybrid combined data analysis (Table 5) also showed significant hybrid-by location interactions for nearly every variable, similar to the situation with the early hybrid group This interaction indicates that at least some hybrids performed differently at the two locations After viewing a hybrids performance in this table, it would be wise to see if it performed similarly at the two locations Often hybrids with above average yields or forage quality at one location also had above average data at the other location It is interesting to note that the late hybrid group yields were not greater than the early group (Table 1) as is often the case This was likely due to the late season stress that occurred during this season

Lancaster County

Hybrids at this site exhibited a wide range in dry matter concentration, but the bulk of the hybrids were in the 32 to 37 % range Significant differences existed for all traits measured Large ranges in yield, NDFD, Milk/ton and Milk/acre were evident This test had the highest average Milk/ton and NDFD ratings of all the 2002 tests Relative to the average Dairy One values, hybrids hybrids at this site had lower NDF, higher starch and higher NDFD concentrations

Centre County

Hybrids had a similar wide range of dry mater concentrations (Table 7) here as at the Lancaster site Significant differences occurred for most variables except yield, lignin and Milk/acre These were likely not significant because one of the three replications had to be discarded at this location For some hybrids, yield and forage quality performance was consistent with the Lancaster location, for others it was not Similar results were obtained in a 2001 Cornell test located at the following web address (http //www.css.cornell.edu/extension/NewYorkCornSilageHybridTests2001.pdf)

Weather Website Provides Crop Production Insight

Mark Antle
Penn State

For those of you who like review recent weather information in your area, you might want to visit the Pennsylvania State Climatologist Website at http://pasc.met.psu.edu/PA—Climatologist/cityform.html.

This site provides not only recent weather data but historical information back as far as the early 1960s, in some cases. Once on the Website, you can view weather data from one of more than 50 locations throughout Pennsylvania. Some of these locations even provide climatic conditions on an hourly basis.

One way this site became useful to us was during the spring of 2002. The later half of May was extremely cold in some places, and many growers were worried about their corn crop.

At Penn State's Agronomy Research Farm in Centre County, some of the corn was at the V2-V3 stage and had experienced three consecutive nights of 28-degree temperature. The corn was uniformly frosted to ground level and the concern was that the corn would not recover, even though corn often exhibits a remarkable ability to bounce back after a frost.

Hourly weather data from the State Climatologist site indicated that the low temperatures of 28 degrees Fahrenheit (F) lasted for less than two hours each night. One theory is that the temperature needs to stay below 28 degrees F for four continuous hours to kill young corn plants. Since the corn survived with only minimal stand loss, the information from the State Climatologist Website helped support this theory and ultimately will help in evaluating early season frost damage in the future.

Hybrid Test Reports

Franklin County

The late season hybrids at the drought stressed Franklin County site had a very wide range in dry matter concentrations (Table 8) and averaged 34 3% DM As is typical of drought stunted sites the yields were variable among the replications and this resulted in a high CV for yield and no significant differences among hybrids for yield Forage quality differences were significant for all variables measured On the average this site has relatively high fiber levels, low starch, and low NEl and low Milk ton ratings compared to the other sites

Conclusions

This test represents a first effort at gaining a better understanding of hybrid effects on silage yield and forage quality While the dry weather limited our ability to combine data from three similar tests we did learn much from this study Considerable hybrid differences exist within each of the 5 day relative maturity groups Some hybrids were more consistent in yield and quality than others why this occurs is uncertain Also we learned that frequently many of the forage quality traits were more consistent than yield These will all be important for future work in this area

Using this Data

There are many opinions on how to interpret corn silage yield and forage quality information for use on dairy operations Generally some of the most important variables to consider are yield, NDF, starch and NDFD The Milk 2000 spreadsheet integrates the effects of these and estimates Milk/ton and Milk/acre Some have found these to be a useful guide for hybrid selection The optimum combination of yield and these variables will depend on farm specific agronomic and dairy nutrition considerations

Corn Production Down

Greg Roth
Associate Professor
Agronomy
Penn State

Corn production in Pennsylvania was estimated at 68 bushels/acre last year, according to the Nov. 1 USDA crop Report. Total production was estimated at 64.6 million bushels, down from 97 million in 2001 and 137 million in 2000.

Maryland production ws estimated at 32.3 million bushels, down from 55.8 million in 2001 and 62.7 million in 2000. Compared to 2000, we produced 102.8 million bushels less in 2002 in Pennsylvania and Maryland than in 2000.

AGCO WHITE PLANTERS

You've picked the perfect seed –

now plant the perfect row.
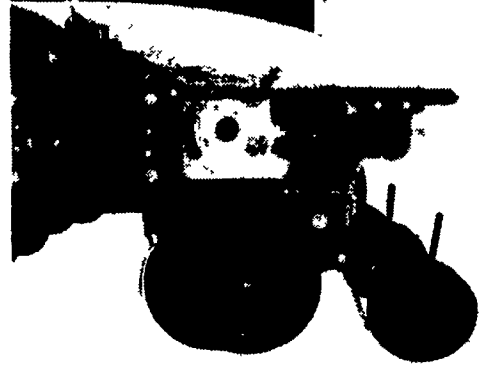
with WHITE



- Superior Seed Singulation
- ½ inch to 4-inch planting depth
- Improved Seed Meter Access
- Easy-to-View Seed Depth Indicator
- Quick Release Hoppers

INTRODUCING THE WHITE 8000 SERIES PLANTERS

You've done your research, prepared your field, and picked the perfect seed variety. Now plant that perfect row, with the 8000 Series planter from White. With 49 models to match your needs, they're packed with features that save time and plant 4 to 31 rows of corn or soybeans with unmatched precision. The 8000 Series features an improved seed meter design for outstanding accuracy with a wider variety of seed sizes. And standard walking beam gauge wheels along with increased planting depth range of ½ inch to 4 inches give superior depth control over larger surface irregularities. Select models feature "on-the-go" seed rate adjustment from your tractor cab. FlexFrame designs range from 30' to 60' for an "acre-eater" performance from one end of your field to the other.

It's time to plant the perfect row. Stop by your White Planter Dealer today and get it right with WHITE

EPA Adds Teeth To Bt Refuge Requirements

YORK (York Co.) — You'll have a bit more of an incentive to follow insect resistance management plans when you plant Bt corn from now on.

Under the new Compliance Assurance program (CAP), if you don't play by the rules for two years in a row (by planting a 20 percent non-Bt refuge within a half mile of any Bt corn field), seed companies will give you a one-year "time out." You won't be able to plant Bt corn for a year.

What's more, your local seed dealer will be charged with monitoring compliance, according to a Biotechnology Industry Organization representative.

"If a dealer knowingly sells seed to someone not eligible, he would lose the chance to sell Bt seed in the future," said Fred Yoder, president of the National Corn growers Association.

The CAP was developed by the Environmental Protection Agency and the four companies with Bt corn products registered in the U.S.

Capitol Region Grain Producers Gather For Seminar

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Several producers took advantage of a recent crop seminar to earn pesticide credits and learn information about grain crop production at a seminar conducted at the Lebanon Valley Agriculture Center.

John Rowehl, Cumberland County, a grain crops specialist for the region, discussed customizing cropping plans — how to make key plans to increase yields and minimize risk on drought-prone soils.

Fertilizer, said Rowehl, is important to manage correctly. Crop producers should adjust nitrogen rates based on yield potential. "Don't fertilize for 180 bushels of corn if what you're looking at is 120," he said. "If you are overfertilizing on your lower-producing soils, it could add up to some money.

"The trick is having good crop records to know what has been harvested over the years. You don't want to plan for failure, but you don't want to be overly optimistic."

During a dry season, "it's better to put nitrogen on up front and get good growth," which will help the crop to "withstand drought when it does come," since the "root growth was in the beginning of the season," he said.

Rotation was another topic. Well-drained, high-producing soils are more adaptable to no-till and short rotations, he said.

"My rule of thumb is, when in doubt, rotate," Rowehl said.

According to Penn State studies, "you can see the immediate benefits just when you get out of continuous corn and go into hay," he said.

"Most of the time, when soils are high in clay content and have low moisture and low organic matter, there is more benefit to rotation on poor soils than on rich soils," he said.

Del Voight, regional pest management specialist, spoke about the "bank" of seed. Putting the situation in perspective, about three percent of plant species have weedy traits — or 250 out of 8,000 plant species.

Weed seeds may remain viable for many years, so understanding what seeds are in the soils is an important weed management tool, said Voight.

Also, understanding weed life cycles is important, since "if you don't know what it is and how it grows, how can you manage it?" Voight asked.

Weed seeds are transported through animals or custom combines. "You can do something to prevent them if you clean your equipment," he said.

As a rule, weed annuals produce more seeds than perennials, which need chemicals targeted to their strong underground structures.

"Not all weed seeds germinates in the first year. They may remain viable for up to 39 years. I don't think you'll ever reach a point where you've eliminated all weed seeds in a particular bank," said Voight.

Altering the planting date impacts weeds that germinate following planting. Letting the weeds come up, then planting the crop helps to control weeds. "if you are planting early, you're going to really need to have your arsenal as far as weed control," he said.

Mapping the area, and knowing target areas for fall applications of herbicide, saves producers from spending the money to do the whole field, he said. When weeds are four- to six-inches in height is when herbicide application produces the best results.

Bob Anderson, Lancaster County crops extension agent, spoke about agrosecurity and ways to raise the safety standard of the American farm.

Pesticide storage, security, and control, a lecture developed by Penn State's pesticide education program, is "not just an issue for children, although that's important," said Anderson.

Also environment, vandalism, spills, and theft are reasons to keep tabs on farm chemicals.

The storage facility should not be near wellheads, "even if it (the wellheads) are no longer used," he said. Chemicals should also be stored away from livestock feed or feed storage areas.

"Consider the potential for runoff," he said.

Maintain a separate location to store pesticides, advised Anderson. Also post the storage area with warning and no-smoking signs.

Keep copies of the labels of each product, he said. The Website bluebook-tor.com or greenbook.net provides pesticide product information (labels, supplemental labels, and MSDSs) from pesticide companies to help users locate specific information. Keeping inventory of the products will indicate if products have been stolen or tampered with.

Keep pesticides in their original containers with readable labels attached. He also advised storing dry materials above liquids. Liquids, he said, may leak down over the dry pesticides. Ideally, however, using non-porous shelves would eliminate any problems.

Farmers should have tools for spill absorption, such as absorbent material, a shovel,

PENNSYLVANIA CORN GROWERS ASSOCIATION

Guy Wagner

with a Jesse Neal Award for excellence in business journalism for her series," Brazil: The Competitor You Cannot Ignore."

This year we will feature an afternoon roundtable session. These are always among my favorite presentations at previous conferences I've attended. It really lets the audience get involved.

I am really looking forward to the crop insurance discussion. As you all know, with the weather problems here in the Northeast the last four years, our insurance yield base is declining just as we need to keep our coverage up because of constantly rising input costs. Some of us are finding out that it is difficult to justify the premiums for the amount of coverage we receive.

This year, for the first time, PCGA is sending a delegate to the Commodity Classic in Charlotte N.C. NCGA has been asking PCGA to get more involved with its program at the national level, and we've responded. Dr. Greg Roth and I will be attending, and we hope to bring some good new input home. I am especially looking forward to meeting and speaking with the other state leaders.

Spread the word about the conference on Feb. 7. You do not need to be a PCGA or Pennsylvania Soybean Board member. Everyone is welcome.

Also, consider joining PCGA. We are constantly searching for new members, and this is an open invitation to one and all.

Again, let me say good luck, and be safe in 2003.

Mr. Planter Owner:

Thank you for taking a minute to consider this offer.

Binkley & Hurst Bros. Inc. is offering our annual off-season inspection and evaluation of your planter for the purpose of identifying worn, broken, or malfunctioning parts. Many times, seemingly insignificant wear will affect the accuracy of your planter more than you realize. If nothing else, it may be time to have your finger pickup meters checked on our test stand. Also, new innovations, attachments and options are constantly being introduced which may be of interest to you for installation on your planter.

Binkley & Hurst Bros. parts and service personnel are specifically trained and informed planter specialists, ready to examine your planter with you! If you determine that the planting proficiency of your planter could be improved with our service, we would be happy to provide that service for you. A technician will return to your farm with one of our well-stocked service trucks at a later date to assist you in doing the work. We encourage you to be part of the actual servicing so that any pointers or insight, which the technician may have for you with regard to planter operation, could be conveyed at that time.

What does it cost?

If you set up an appointment for a planter evaluation, you will be charged a flat fee:

4 or 6 row planter	$175.00
8 row planter	$200.00
12 or 16 row planter	$225.00

(Customers over 50 mile radius of Lititz, subject to mileage charge.)

At time of inspection we will recommend to you any item needing attention, also at that time we will remove your seed meters to take in for testing if you so desire.

Your cost of meter testing is $23.95. This includes testing, cleaning, & repair labor (parts not included).

If you have any questions, please contact the service department at 717-626-4705 or 800-414-4705.

Thank you.

Posting emergency contact information, such as the poison control center, is also a good idea. Additionally, farmers should contact their local fire authorities to tell them what is being stored on the premises.

Applicator equipment should be kept secure or off site, and disabled.

Big capacity. Uniform chop.

Only the FP230 and FP240 forage harvesters from New Holland give you best-in-class and chop quality.

- Rugged 1,000-rpm driveline matches higher-horsepower tractors up to 225 and 300 PTO hp.
- Massive 12-knife cutterhead produces a uniform length of cut from 3/16" to 1-5/8" with four knives.
- Knife sharpening and shearbar adjustment are easy to keep cutting performance at its best.
- Optional on-board Crop-Pro™ crop processor makes feed more digestible and saves the expense and time of using a stationary roller mill.
- Optional Metalert® III electronic metal detector gives you peace of mind.

Penn State Website Gets Facelift

Greg Roth
Associate Professor
Penn State

Last year we gave our Penn State Corn management Website a facelift and added a number of new features.

First, we simplified the name: it's now http://corn-andsoybeans.psu.edu/. You can even leave off the http:// and just type cornandsoybeans.psu.edu and it will get you there.

On the site, you find links to many of our Penn State corn related publications: the Agronomy Guide, The Field Crop News, our Agronomy Facts Factsheets, our Five Acre Corn Club and our hybrid testing information.

In our hybrid testing information, we have added a new feature this year to facilitate your use of the data. We have provided each table in Excel format so that it can be sorted and viewed or printed in the order you desire. Simply open the spreadsheet and highlight the data and the access the sort function of Excel and select the columns you want the data sorted by. You can produce your own customized hybrid testing tables.

Another new feature I added last year has been our diagnosing corn problems section. In this section, I have briefly summarized some of the corn problems I have encountered and how I arrived at the diagnosis. Where applicable, I have listed links to supporting information.

One of the features I use most on the Website is the links to other corn management resources. Here you can link to some other universities, USDA crop reports, and our PCGA and NCGA Web pages.

We're also building the soybean part of the Webpage and now include our Soybean Yield contest results and also the soybean variety test reports, also listed in Excel format.

Keep checking back for more updates as we progress with this upgrade.

Join The Corn Growers Association

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Joining the Pennsylvania Corn Growers Association (PCGA) is easier than ever. A one-year membership is just $30. You you can join online at https://gims.ncga.com/MEMBERNEW/Default.asp or simply fill out the membership form and send to our address.

PCGA is continuing the Membership Incentive Program (MIP) this year. The theme of the program is "Try Something New."

Take this opportunity to experiment when you choose your free bag of seed corn. This seed corn company sponsored program entitles any PCGA/NCGA corn grower, who plants at least five acres of corn with a 3-year new or renewed membership, to a free standard size bag of seed.

To participate, simply complete the membership form indicating the brand of seed corn you would like to try, along with your check for the 3-year membership. You will then receive a certificate for a free bag of seed from the sponsoring company of your choice, along with your membership card from NCGA.

In consultation with the local seed corn dealer, you make the ultimate decision about which hybrid you will receive from the company you have selected. PCGA will send the names and addresses by brand chosen to the appropriate seed corn company's statewide contact person and they will contact you.

In addition, you'll be joining thousands of other growers across the country who are showing their support for the corn industry. Locally, you'll be supporting PCGA's activities such as Corn Talk, our corn or crops conference, and local corn promotion activities.

Membership Program
Awards Prizes
For Recruiters

Now you can help the PCGA get new members and win some valuable prizes.

The PCGA is participating in a new membership program sponsored by NCGA and Syngenta to reward folks who recruit members for our association. To qualify, you need to recruit five new members in one of the next three months.

Prizes will be awarded to the top recruiters who have recruited a minimum of five new members in Pennsylvania for each month. In January, the prize will be a Palm Pilot. In February, the prize will be a $300 gift certificate to Sears. In March, the prize will be a gourmet ham plus a $100 gift certificate for groceries at a local supermarket.

To participate, make copies of the PCGA membership form in Corn Talk. Ask folks to complete the membership form and put your name on the Recruiter line on the bottom, and then send the form to the PCGA office. Or they can join online (https://gims.ncga.com/MEMBERNEW/Default.asp) and enter your name in the appropriate line on the application. We'll keep a record of the awards and send the prize to the qualifying recruiter at the end of the month.

Did you know?
• If 1 seed out of 12 is incorrectly planted, that represents 8% of your total crop. For a 150 bushel per acre crop, this represents 12 bushels lost per acre. Over 500 acres, this equals 6000 bushels that were lost.

Did you know?
• If you plant a double every 12 seeds, that represents over 8% of extra seed. If a bushel would plant 2 ½ acres, the cost of the seed per acre would be $40 per acre at $100 per bushel. That 8% extra seed would then equal $3.20 wasted every acre costing you $1,600 for 500 acres.

Did you know?
• A planter travels 88 inches per second at 5 mph, or 3/12 inches in 1/25 of a second. If there were a delay of 1/25 of a second in the meter caused by poor maintenance or operation, the seed spacing would be off 3 ½ inches.

local butcher shop.

Johnston uses Pioneer and Hubner seed — usually 113-day corn. "I'm not really in too much of a hurry to get it off," he said. "We have pretty decent fall season. It doesn't snow too early around here."

The soil that Johnston works with is limestone. He plants hay in the shale-soil areas.

"Compared to last year, it's almost half to 40 percent loss," he said. The soybeans, however, seem to be more drought resistant and he expects only a 20 percent loss.

"We had a few rains when they were shooting pods, and they filed out pretty nicely," he said. a local mill buys the soybeans and corn for feed.

"Feed rations started calling for soybeans, so the local mill decided to begin to roast beans," he said.

Johnston plants in 30-inch rows, as dictated by the planter. "When we were buying a corn planter, we found a decent one with narrow rows, and the yields are pretty decent," he said.

He uses liquid and granular chemicals for fertilizer. All the crops are no-tilled, allowing Johnston to make only three passes over the field in the course of a season.

"I read a lot of information about subsoiling," he said.

That technique, which Johnston does every three yeas, is "the only tillage I do, and it seems to be a big help."

He also soils tests every few years. "Around here, many farms are deficient in phosphorus, and that seems to play a big role" in yields, he said. "I always try to keep that up, if anything."

He is also careful to get the pH adjusted to whatever the soil test call for. Rotating soybeans, he said, helps since soybeans put nitrogen back into the soil. He also puts 150 units of nitrogen per acres on.

In addition to subsoiling, rotating soybeans, and corn helps to loosen the soil.

His corn usually ends up as shell corn as opposed to silage.

Soil fertility, a good herbicide program, and planter maintenance are keys to crop yields, believes Johnston.

"A lot of times it (crop yield) revolves around soil fertility and composition," he said. "Pay close attention to the soil test and watch pH. Don't let your soil tests fall behind." His crops receive a starter fertilizer two inches by two inches from the seed placement.

Along with soil fertility, soil compaction makes a difference in yield. Getting out in the field and chopping haylage early, when the ground is still wet, could be detrimental to the soil. "You have a ton of silage going over your field and that's going to cause a lot of compaction," he said.

Johnston no-tills 100 percent of his fields, but it is not a program that will work for everyone, he said. "No-till has worked for me, however producers must find the niche that works for their farm, depending on what their operation is.

"If you're a dairy farmer you can use one management system, but a crop farmer needs a different management system." A dairy farmer, for instance, emptying manure storage tanks, will need to incorporate the fertilizer.

The first time producers apply herbicides, they should not skimp on a product, he advises, since you'll have to re-spray. Put the recommend dosage on the first time around. This minimizes trips across the field, which contributes to soil compaction.

Johnston rotates Roundup Ready soybeans to help clean up problem weeds for the following year. We don't use too much insecticide because of the corn and soybean rotation, he said. Corn borer and root-

RESEARCH UPDATE

PENNSYLVANIA CORN GROWERS ASSOC., INC.

2002 CORN STARTER FERTILIZER ALTERNATIVES ON HIGH P SOILS

Shaun Heinbaugh
Department Of Crop And Soil Sciences

In 2002 we continued our alternative corn starter fertilizer research funded by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture to investigate the need for starter fertilizers on soils testing high in P. This on-farm study began in 2001 and continued in 2002 with cooperation from Pennsylvania farmers and county extension agents across the state.

Since 2001, we conducted starter research at 39 locations covering 15 Pennsylvania counties along with one site in New York. The sites tested anywhere from 51 ppm to 1030 ppm in soil phosphorous. We consider anything above 50 ppm to be above optimum in P. Our research evaluated three starter programs which included a common phosphorous starter (10-30-10), a nitrogen starter (ammonium sulfate) and a no starter "check."

Early Growth And Starter Response

In 2002 we found that an early growth response from a starter fertilizer occurred at seven out of 17 sites. Early starter responses occurred at sites ranging from 51-175 ppm soil P. Above 175 ppm, we did not find any significant differences in early growth between using starter fertilizer and the no starter "check."

Averaged over all sites, the 10-30-10 treatment had an early season dry matter yield that was 17 percent higher than the check, and the AS averaged eight percent higher than the check. In 2001 the early growth results were similar. Averaged over all sites in 2001, growth at V-6 using 10-30-10 was increased 23 percent and AS was 18 percent over the check.

Visual differences at many locations were apparent. Typically the AS treatment was dark green and often taller than the somewhat chlorotic check. The 10-30-10 treatment in most cases was visually similar to the AS treatment. Over two years we have seen an early growth response from starters occur about 50 percent of the time, even on these high P testing soils, however predicting when a response will occur is difficult.

Yield And Starter Response

The grain yield response to the starter fertilizers was generally smaller and less frequent than the early growth response. Significant effects from the starter occurred on only two of the 15 sites where yield data was collected. Yields in 2002 were generally lower than normal from the drought. Yields ranged from 34 to 174 bushels per acre and averaged 83 bushels per acre.

Averaged over all sites, the yields of the 10-30-10 starter fertilizer treatment and the AS were similar and averaged about two percent higher than the check. There seems to be a greater positive impact on yields from starters when the soil test P levels are at the low end of the high P range (50 to 117 ppm P). In 2001 this was also the case.

There seems to be no correlation between an early growth response and a yield response with starters. Over the two years of the experiment, we found a positive yield response from a starter about 25 percent of the time. As soil test P increased above 117 ppm, there were no significant yield advantages from starter fertilizer.

Starter Formulations And Pop-Ups

In 2002, we repeated the starter formulation trial that was conducted in conjunction with the farm operations staff at Penn State in 2001.

A field was selected that tested 121 ppm P and 232 ppm K, with a pH of 6.2 that had been previously in corn for grain. The treatments were designed to compare various dry blends of ammonium sulfate and P and K (10-30-10, AS, 16-8-8-16, 16-8-0-16, and 16-8-8) placed at 2x2, as well as three liquid pop-up fertilizers (9-18-9, 7-21-7, 7-17-3 Riser) applied in the row with the seed.

Early Growth

Differences in early growth were subtle and not statistically different, but there was a tendency for several treatments to have greater early season dry matter accumulation than the check. These included the pop-up treatments, the 10-30-10 and the 16-8-8. Early growth results were very similar in our 2001 study. Conditions for emergence and early season growth were good at this site.

Grain Yield

The grain yield response to the starter fertilizers was mixed at this site. Most of the 2x2 fertilizers tended to have higher yields than the check.

Corn grown on this high P testing site (64 ppm) in Hershey in 2002 showed a dramatic early season growth response to starter fertilizer. Rows on the right did not receive any starter fertilizer.

Overall, the 2x2 dry treatments averaged about two bushels per acre higher than the check. There was a slight yield depression where ammonium sulfate and 16-8-8 was the starter.

The pop-up treatments yielded slightly higher than the check by about two bushels per acre and averaged about two percent higher yields than the no-starter "check." There were no significant differences among the worm are problems in Johnston's area.

One way to eliminate a poor stand is to take care of the planter. Probably something people overlook the most is their planter, said Johnston. You could have the soil fertility up to 100 percent but you have to have the seed in the ground. For him, a seed firmer, placed in the seed tube, has helped to ensure the seed gets into the seed rut. The planter tends to bounce around a lot and the seed firmer helps to keep the seeds where they're supposed to go. Johnston uses a John Deere planter to plant 15-inch row corn. This year Johnston battled an early spring frost. We had four mornings where the weather was below 32 degrees, and one morning it dropped to 25, he said. Although he debated replanting, he left the stand to grow. The corn rebounded to produce some of his best yields. The setback the corn received actually allowed it to be ready to receive the moisture the area received when the crop needed it the most.

Subsoiling once a year, usually in the spring, has also helped to loosen the soil. He has also done custom work subsoiling for customers, with dramatic results. He planted four varieties of soybeans and two varieties of corn, just to try different varieties and see what's best for the area, he said.

Johnston does the spraying, planting, harvesting, and trucking on his operation, which allows him see everything from start to finish. This is his eighth year growing corn. Once on the career path of veterinary medicine, Johnston spent some time with a friend who did agronomy work, which helped him realize that he enjoyed being outside and working with crops. He procured the job at Agronomy? Right after college. The job has offered a flexible schedule, which is imperative over planting or harvesting time.

Although his full-time job and farming take the lions share of his time, Johnston also enjoys fixing and restoring two-cylinder John Deere tractors and hunting. According to Johnston, deer take a toll on the corn while groundhogs consume the soybeans. Especially in the fields close to the mountain foothills, deer pressure can be intense, so he plants timothy hay, since deer walk right through it to the cornfield. Deer probably account for five bushels an acre loss, he said. He is the son of Harry and Darlene Johnston.

There were 84 participants in the 2001 Pennsylvania Five-Acre Corn Club Contest. In the three-year average ear corn awards Harry Johnston, McConnellsburg, took first place with an average of 191.7 bushels per acre with Pioneer 33G26.

In the ear corn class, Harry Johnston, McConnellsburg, took home second place with a plant population of 25,478 with Pioneer 33G26 and a yield of 211.3 bushels per acre.

pop-up fertilizer treatments. Overall, the liquids and dry starter fertilizers yielded about two percent higher than the check; however no single treatment was statistically superior. During the growing season conditions were dry, especially during July and August.

Nutrient Uptake

In general, differences in nutrient uptake at the V-6 growth stage were small in our formulation study. There were no treatments that significantly increased uptake when compared to the check. Nitrogen uptake using pop-ups was increased about 14 percent over the check, while the dry starters averaged three percent lower than the check. Ironically, only three gallons per acre of each liquid was applied while 180 pounds per acre of each dry fertilizer was used.

Conclusions

The on-farm study data suggests that an early growth response from a starter will occur about 50 percent of the time, however this does not always translate into a yield response. We saw no significant yield response from starter when the soil P was above 117 ppm. Using a phosphorous starter on a high P soil has no apparent advantage. A better practice might be to substitute with ammonium sulfate as we have found it performs at least as well as 10-30-10 and is a good source of nitrogen.

Pop-up fertilizers are also showing promise. We saw an increase in early season nitrogen uptake and seem to yield as well as the dry starters provided early season N, P and K availability is good. Low application rates and less handling of material also makes them attractive.

an increase of 10-20 percent in corn harvests with the twin row planting, which allows more growing room.

New equipment on the market makes available an all-purpose drill that replaces a planter and conventional drill.

Producers can change row spacings from 7½ to 15-inch rows or 10 inches to 30 inch rows by removing a pin, sliding the fill tube to off, and replacing the pin.

The precision singulating meter system covers all planting needs, from small grains to corn to soybeans, in one package, said Brown, as one unit can plant corn, beans, and alfalfa. The wheels can be changed to plant a variety of seeds.

A 22-inch spread between the double rows allows farmers to use the equipment they already have (the center is 30 inches) to harvest their double row crop.

BIOTECH ISSUES FOR THE CORN GROWER

We're fortunate in Pennsylvania in many ways that we avoid some of the biotech issues that surface in the Corn Belt, where corn is processed. Even so, there are still many interesting issues that unfold as the biotech revolution unfolds here, too.

Late last year the Prodigene incident unfolded as traces of volunteer pharmaceutical corn ended up in harvested soybeans and resulted in a heavy fine and the destruction of 500,000 bushels of soybeans. Since this episode, the concept of pharmaceutical corn production has come under intense scrutiny.

Some believe that "pharma" corn should be restricted from being grown in the Midwest, others believe it should only be grown under tight security, while still others think that Midwest corn growers should have the right to produce these added value crops. If you think pharma corns are still a "pie in the sky" thing, think again. Several different events are already being tested.

The National Food Processor Association expressed their concern this fall over food crops being used for production of industrial and pharmaceutical compounds. This whole controversy has caused the government to begin to reevaluate guidelines on pharma corn production.

Closer to home, there are signals that the Roundup Ready corn market will likely begin to take off. This year both Mycogen and Pioneer added Roundup Ready hybrids to their lineup on a limited basis and more hybrids will be coming in the future. Some industry analysts are projecting 30 percent market share of Roundup Ready by 2005 or so. I hear mixed signals from producers and industry folks whether this will happen here, although we already have a good start, as I heard estimates that last year the market in Pennsylvania was eight to nine percent Roundup Ready already.

Weed scientists are a bit concerned about the idea of Roundup Ready corn grown in rotation with Roundup Ready soybeans. We may see an evolution of herbicide programs that include Roundup and other products to avoid weed resistance buildup and also to preserve some markets for traditional corn herbicides.

Coming soon we'll also see the rootworm Bt hybrids possibly as early as this spring but maybe not until 2004. Cost, performance, and resistance management will be issues with these hybrids. Efficacy testing data seems to suggest they work very well on controlling rootworms, but I haven't seen any yield performance data at this point. Other seed treatment insecticides may be an add-on to help control secondary insects, but this will add to the cost.

Initially, some on-farm testing will be necessary to see how these particular hybrids will fit. The seed industry is improving their ability to develop transgenic isolines that perform as well or better than their existing hybrids, so hopefully there won't be many surprises in performance.

Resistance management will likely be a serious consideration with the rootworm Bt hybrids. Now, annual surveys of corn grower adherence to insect resistance management (IRM) are conducted with the corn borer Bt hybrids. This year, as part of the IRM program, a survey of 551 corn producers in four regions of the U.S. was used to estimate the adherence to IRM guidelines. The survey found that 86 percent of Bt corn producers in 2002 planted the required acreage of non-Bt corn. As part of the reregistration of Bt corn in 2001, an IRM compliance assurance program was developed that included this survey and mandated more recordkeeping and grower awareness education by seed companies.

As these new products come on board in the next few years, all of us will be challenged to position these products and the stacked products where they will have the most value. Seed companies will need to address the seemingly endless combinations of biotech traits and the cost of inventory. Producers will have to push the pencil to make sure they capture some of the value of these more pricey products.

Taylor To Speak

ognized expert on the Farm Bill with the National Corn Growers Association, is another of our guests this year. Willet will describe and explain the new Farm Bill components that have direct financial impact on Pennsylvania farmers with the help of Penn State extension agent John Berry. Willet and Berry will be using real Pennsylvania examples to illustrate the local effects of this program.

A distinguished panel of crop insurance experts will be on hand this year to explore how to more fully utilize this part of our risk management efforts. Insurance agency representatives will give us information from the perspective of the actual product users. Gene Gantz and Cliff Parker represent the USDA, Risk Management Agency and will supply answers to our questions on the formulation and implementation of crop insurance regulations and policy. Bring your questions and concerns. This session is sure to be a lively discussion of this important topic.

The Corn and Soybean Conference is a joint program sponsored by the Pennsylvania Corn Growers Association, The Pennsylvania Soybean Board, and Penn State Extension. Registration for the meeting is $20 and reservations can be made by contacting the Department of Crop and Soil Sciences at Penn State at (814) 865-2543 before Feb. 1.
